A gentleman in the East writes to a party in this city inquiring about our fruit industry. He says he has a copy of a horticultural society report treating of fruit pests and how to destroy them, and he infers from that, that our fruit industry is nearly destroyed by these pests. It appears that a lot of these circulars have been sent East through orders of the late legislature and some very undesirable advertising is the result. Fruit pests are found here, but they have not destroyed our fruit industry.

The passengers on the southbound Roseburg local had a narrow escape from a serious accident last Friday morning as they were approaching Oregon City. A horse was feeding about 20 yards from the track as the train approached the Abernethy bridge, and at that point the engineer had to whistle for a crossing. The engine struck it before it could be stopped, dragging the horse a short distance, when it slipped to one side and fell into the stream. The heads of the spikes used in fastening the rails down were broken off short.

In the U. S. district court Saturday morning Judge Bellinger made an order vacating his previous order which appointed R. A. Bensell as receiver of the Oregon Development Company. This action was based upon a large number of affidavits from prominent people throughout the Valley who averred in the strongest terms that it was and had long been a matter of common notoriety that Bensell had for years been so completely under the domination of the late Col. Hogg, that it would be impossible for him to be impartial. These affidavits were filed by the attorneys of Messrs. Blair and Brown, of New York City, holders of the majority of the bonds under the first mortgage, and who made the motion to have Bensell removed. No one has as yet been appointed in Bensell's stead, but Judge Bellinger will doubtless appoint some able and reputable man.
