Several Pests New to Southern California Discovered.

OREGON'S BRILLIANT DISPLAY.

The Brutality of the Foreman of a California Mine—Davis Will Case Again in Court.

Five large ships will load grain at San Diego this season.

The total valuation of the estate of W. S. Ladd, who died at Portland some time ago, is $7,500,868.

The Atlantic and Pacific railway is suing the Prescott and Arizona Central for $25,000 for use of material.

Portions of Southeastern Oregon are said to have been devastated by grasshoppers and crickets this summer.

Stockton is willing to contribute $100,000 and the right of way into the city if it can be assured of a competing railroad in the San Joaquin Valley.

Judge Ross at Los Angeles has overruled the demurrer in the case of the Southern Pacific vs. Juanita C. Araiza, involving a large amount of railroad lands.

The famous Davis will case is again up before the Butte (Mont.) courts. It is thought the Boot contestants and the heirs of John Davis will divide the estate between them.

The San Diego Union says: Several pests new to this part of the country have lately been discovered by Horticultural Commissioner Gunnis, among which are the black aphid, the woolly aphis, the Norfolk Island pine scale and the Tetranychus maculatus, commonly known as the six-spotted mite. Some of the above have never before been known west of the Rocky Mountains.

John McLaughlin, foreman of the Providence mine at Nevada City, Cal., beat Charles Runge over the head with a two-pound weight, and fractured his skull. This enraged the miners, and after McLaughlin was released by the court on a bail of $5,000 he had to be escorted by officials to his hotel, a crowd following and shouting to "hang him." If there had been a leader among these men, it is believed McLaughlin would have been strung up.

Twenty-seven canneries are packing salmon on the Fraser river this year, and 1,325 boats are at work. Sockeye salmon, which is the only variety packed there in large quantities, are running now in immense numbers, the average take by steady fishermen being 1,000 for twelve hours. The run has never been better than at present, and the canneries cannot get away with the quantity of fish supplied them, though some of them are packing 1,500 cases daily. Recently fish were so plentiful that 5 cents each was the price asked by many fishermen; but, owing to the great supply, numbers were unable to sell. If the run continues ten days longer, as it doubtless will, the pack will aggregate fully 450,000 cases, the largest ever put up on the Fraser river, while some canners expect the pack to run over 500,000 cases. Every packing establishment has made preparations to pack to their full capacity, and will fill every can.

The following item is from a recent issue of the World's Columbian Illustrated, the official organ of the exposition: "Oregon has adopted a unique and practical method of displaying the woods produced in that State. At Jackson Park there is a house constructed entirely of Oregon woods. It is ten feet square and nineteen feet high, and is surmounted by an open cupola. The body of the structure is a yellow pine. The roof is of red-cedar shingles, and is supported by four Doric columns. The columns are of maple, and are very richly carved. The roof of the cupola is supported by four small Doric columns of carved oak. The interior is finished with panel work containing about all the woods of the State, among which are manzanita, madrone, yew, laurel, myrtle, ash, maple, oak, spruce, balsam, fir, sugar pine, bird's-eye pine, cherry, curly maple and alder. The house forms the Oregon pavilion in the forestry building."

Here is another high compliment in a recent editorial correspondence to the St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald: "Adjoining the exhibits of Missouri in both the horticultural and agricultural buildings are the displays of Oregon, the Legislature of which State appropriated a scant $60,000 in all for the purpose of properly representing the State's resources and industries at the World's Fair. The contrast between the two displays is so great as to put all Missourians to shame. In the Oregon booth in the horticultural building over sixty varieties of apples are shown fresh and beautiful on plates, while there are countless jars and boxes of peaches, plums, prunes, etc., so arranged as to demand the attention of all who pass. Visitors rush through the dusty Missouri space to get into the Oregon booth and admire the products of the far Western State as arranged so captivately. The same is true of the agricultural exhibits. While the Missouri pavilion is more favorably located it does not command one visitor, while dozens visit Oregon and inspect her dozens exhibits of grain and grasses and the general product of the farm. Her wheat is shown in two-bushel sacks, and all who wish to examine it have only to delve into the sacks and try a handful."

CHICAGO EXPOSITION.

The daily cost of operating the World's Columbian Exposition is $10,000.

A straw hat, plaited entirely by Queen Victoria, has been sent to Chicago for exhibition.

Missouri will have eight herds of thoroughbred cattle of the different breeds at the World's Fair.

French and English newspapers now publish exhaustive correspondence from the World's Fair; some of it very amusing.

Arrangements have been made for excursions of colored people from the South to the World's Fair, and it is expected that 250,000 will thus be added to the attendance.

The Boston Journal opened up a coupon contest for ladies to go to the World's Fair. Miss Lizzie Borden received the highest vote, 100,000, but declined to accept, and the next highest was awarded the prize.

One of India's potentates, the Maharajah of Kapurthala, has reached Chicago, accompanied by one of his wives and his retinue. The Maharajah has come to see the fair, and will stay until he has "done" the exposition thoroughly.

At the present rate the total attendance at the World's Fair for the six months it is open will be 25,000,000. But the estimate was for a total of 35,000,000. The best months are yet to come, and perhaps the higher figures will be reached.

The picture, "In My Studio," in the German section of the art exhibits at Chicago has been slashed with a knife. The painting is by Kahler, who, it is thought, had the picture cut so as to attract attention. Artists think the injury can be repaired with little trouble.

The bonds of the World's Fair officials, found guilty recently by Judge Stein of contempt of court in violating the Clingman injunction by closing the fair to the public Sunday, July 23, have been filed, thereby suspending proceedings pending the action of the Appellate Court. The case in which the parties are held to answer cannot take precedence on the Appellate Court calendar, and at the earliest possible time will not be called before the end of next October.

Anthony Comstock is in Chicago. He called on President Higginbotham, and announced that he had come from New York to lead a crusade against the dancing girls on the Midway. Mr. Comstock had evidently investigated the places. As he went out he dropped a catalogue of the Midway. On the margins of the leaves crosses and stars had been made, showing that he had visited the theaters of the giddy Persian dancers and the dusky Algerians. Mr. Comstock will call on President Higginbotham again and make another protest against the dancehouses. Failing to have them suppressed by officials of the fair, he will probably appeal to the city authorities.

Chief Buchanan in charge of the stock exhibit at the World's Fair has announced the result of the cheese contest, which has been in progress there several weeks. The test was pronounced most complete, most carefully conducted and the most thorough ever made. The contest was between twenty-five cows of Jersey, Guernsey and Shorthorn breeds each. The result is as follows, being a decided victory for the Jerseys: Milk in fifteen days—Jerseys, 13,296 pounds; Guernseys, 10,988 pounds; Shorthorns, 12,186 pounds. Cheese made—Jerseys, 1,451 pounds; Guernseys, 1,150 pounds; Shorthorns, 1,077 pounds. Value of cheese—Jerseys, $193.98; Guernseys, $135.92; Shorthorns, $140.14. Value of whey—Jerseys, $6.20; Guernseys, $7.73; Shorthorns, $8.67. Increase in live weight—Jerseys, 14.72 pounds; Guernseys, 27.60 pounds; Shorthorns, 31.91 pounds. Total values—Jerseys, $217.96; Guernseys, $164.55; Shorthorns, $190.36. Net profit in fifteen days—Jerseys, $119.82; Guernseys, $88.30; Shorthorns, $81.30.

FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

Further instructions in regard to the acceptance of Chinese certificates have been issued to the Collector of the port of New York. The order calls for the detention of Chinese upon the vessels bringing them to this country until the Consular certificates are fully investigated and until the bearers are fully identified; in fact, until there is not the slightest doubt as to their right to enter the United States.

That a desperate fight is to be made to repeal the Geary Chinese exclusion act during the extra or regular session of Congress is no longer doubted by those interested in Washington. While Representative Geary claims to have learned nothing definite as to the administration's attitude toward the law, he acknowledges that it would not surprise him if there were a mighty effort made by the enemies of the bill to either repeal it in Congress or originate some other plan to nullify it. Mr. Geary would neither affirm nor deny the report that the Chinese Six Companies had levied another assessment on all Celestials in the country to raise a corruption fund to lobby through its repeal at the coming session. He did say, however: "It is possible that the Six Companies will not be able to collect the $5 per head assessment said to have been recently levied. Chinamen are very much displeased over the ill success of the Six Companies in expending the last money they paid to prevent the passage of the law or to have the fight made against its constitutionality in the Supreme Court. There is a possibility, however, that these Mongolians may come up smiling again with the money asked for. I don't know what kind of a fight I may have to make provided I and other advocates of the law are again called upon to assert our rights." It is believed that Geary has received a tip from some administration official that the administration will not act in any direction until after the arrival of the new Chinese Minister.

Frederick Emerson Brooks, the California poet, is a slyph-like creature, weighing 250 pounds. He has a face like the full moon, but it lights up marvelously when he begins to recite one of his quaint, droll and pathetic poems for a roomful of his friends. He is a native of New York State, but has lived in San Francisco for seventeen years.

General J. C. McKibben of Maryland, who was the second of Senator Broderick in the duel with Judge Terry in California, which resulted in Broderick's death, is still hale and hearty. Speaking of the duel the other day, he said that it was a most unfortunate affair, and that there was really no cause for it. There was nothing in the language used by Broderick that justified the combat, but the state of feeling in California at the time was such that duels were fought upon very flimsy pretexts or upon none at all.

Mrs. E. P. W. Packard, who has probably accomplished more in establishing the rights of women than any other one woman, is passing the summer in Chicago. For twenty-five years she has devoted her life to establishing the legal rights of woman. She is not a woman suffragist, and her friends think that alone she has accomplished more than the combined effort of the suffrage association. Congress and Legislatures have listened to her arguments, passing the bills she advocated and placing on the statute books laws which have given married women equal rights with men in control of children and property.
