A Statement.

LEBANON, OR., Aug. 22nd 1893.

Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir:—I desire to correct and modify the statement which appeared in last week's paper concerning myself. It places me before the public in a very awkward position and conveys the wrong idea entirely. Nothing could be more preposterous than the statement that the man referred to was seriously injured; although the Dr.'s precaution was not at all out of place. Pin scratches sometimes prove fatal. He was not as old by several years as was stated, and as far being feeble and unable to fight—well when he made the attack his boasting reminded me of Goliath when David went forth to meet him and my chances looked about as slim as did David's chances, but the strong hand of God always upholds and sustains his children. "The Lord saveth not with sword and spear for the battle is the Lord's." It ought to be a reproach to Lebanon for ever that a woman has been fined for fighting in defense of her honor and resenting blackguardism with a club. It is said we have a law for the protection of women from the insults and violence of wicked men. I fail to recognize in our laws any protection for such offenses. The remedy is worse than the disease. The offended complainant must by subtle and indirect means of honor and repeat the bad language which is so revolting to all decency, then when the criminal is convicted what is the penalty? A puny little fine or a few days imprisonment. Great indignation for a woman to be sacrificed. I am of the opinion that the remedy which nature has provided is the best. "Good full-grown clubs." My conduct has met with the approval of all intelligent, right minded people but there is a small minority of the population of Lebanon whose minds are so narrow and compressed that it disqualifies them from taking a proper view of any subject. The gossip-mongers and chronic meddlers who have been trying to attend to my affairs ever since Mr. Thom went out and have been giving me so much gratuitous advertising, while their own property were engaged in numerous vices and busy with the problem of "how many pockets an ordinary overcoat pocket would contain placed there when the clerk is not looking" would better try minding their own business awhile and strap the tarbaby off their own character.

Remember that curses, chicken like often root at home;

Don't speak of others faults till you have none of your own.

Say what you will about fighting, but the woman who sneers you to your face as a friend and then sneaks around behind you and strikes her unsuspecting victim with the poisoned tongue of slander is an abomination unto the Lord. This class of men and women do not need advertising they are known where ever they go. Some of the lords of creation (Noblist work of God, etc.) have so far retrograded that they go about the street prying into women's affairs, watching where she goes and wondering what her business is, striving painfully to create a scandal. They forget (or perhaps never knew) that suspicion is the outpouring of a corrupt heart and an evil mind. One of the most deplorable faults which I have ever taken in by Mrs. Grundy is that of laying clothes wearing apparel, spending money for foolishness, as she terms it, ready ought to go to the support of the Gospel, as to those who are supported by the Gospel unfortunately we do not enjoy advantages that we did, as pain leaves do not grow in Oregon.

Some people who are ostentatiously preaching the Gospel are in reality tilling among the neighbors causing disturbance of a very grave nature.

Mr. F. Springer died at his home in this city Wednesday evening after a lingering illness with consumption. He was born in Columbia county, Penn. 60 years ago. He came from Kansas to this place about five years ago. He is the father of twelve children, eight of which are still living. The bereaved wife and children have the sympathy of the entire community. Rev. M. Bashor will preach his funeral in the Cumberland church today after which he will be buried in the Masonic cemetery.

Hon. M. A. Miller's Reply.

Below is Hon. M. A. Miller's reply to Governor Pennoyer's letter to him in regard to the extra session of the legislature which shows how he stands on the question.

SYLVESTER PENNOYER, GOVERNOR, SALEM, OREGON.

MY DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 15th inst at hand asking my opinion as a member of the Legislature as to the advisability of calling an extra session of that body for the purpose of enacting a Stay Law. After a careful consideration of your letter, I would respectfully state that while I am decidedly in favor of a Stay Law and would support such a bill or any other bill tending to relieve the masses from the fearful effects of evil financial legislation and unjust taxation.

I doubt the expediency of calling an extra session at this time unless an assurance was had from the members that a majority were in favor of passing an act in addition to the Stay Law repealing many of the appropriation laws passed last winter entailing needless burdens on the industries of our people.

Should you issue a proclamation calling the Legislature together in extra session, I trust you will in your message call attention to the various appropriations which should at once be repealed. Very Respectfully,
M. A. MILLER.

Obituary.

Phoebe Keziah Torbet, second daughter of Prof. David A. Torbet and Olive A. Torbet, was born in Burbank, Ohio, April 18th, 1875, and died in Albany, Ore., August 21, 1893. In early childhood she gave her heart to God, and joined the M. E. church, South, at Norwood, Va. As she grew to womanhood, her Christian character became more and more beautiful, and all who associated with her felt themselves in the presence of a truly spiritual person. At home, she was always so gentle, so kind, so thoughtful. At school, diligent, modest, and retired. She had three homes, one where her father and mother lived, one at church and one where her mansion is in heaven. She read her bible daily, and had devotions all alone; and this, too, aside from regular family devotions with the others of the family. Besides performing her home and school duties, she found time for drawing and painting, and has left behind her several paintings and drawings to adorn the home of her parents. While known by many, and loved by all, she had but few intimate friends, and they were of the most pronounced christian character. During her last sickness, she never doubted, but always said she was ready to die if it was God's will. She preferred to live and do good, but had no other will than God's. She sat up till the last, and watched the setting sun from the porch on the evening before she died. Shortly before death she said, "Death has no terrors for the christian." Her last moments were very peaceful, and her family feel that their loss is her gain. Those who knew her best can but say, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

A Staring Preacher.

The Rev. F. A. Smith, of Silver Mine, Ct., has caused a sensation in the town.

From his pulpit last Sunday he informed his congregation that he and the members of his family were starving, simply because his salary was not forthcoming.

After preaching a good sermon and giving out the regular church notices, startled his hearers by saying: "I come to you this morning with an empty stomach. I have not had a mouthful to eat to-day, because I could not get it. There is not even a crust in the cupboard. For over a week I and my family have lived entirely on blackberries and bread. The reason my family is not here this morning is because they have no shoes to wear. I do not ask charity, but only that you pay me the salary that you agreed to, that I may not starve."

"I have been here two years next October," said the Rev. Mr. Smith, "and have labored hard to build up the church and instruct the people in the ways of righteousness."

"What I said in the pulpit was only the bare truth, and if it hurts anyone I can't help it. Had I accepted their invitation to take a vacation and leave the church I would make myself liable to church discipline, which says no preacher shall drop his church without permission of the president."

"I have preached here for five months, and only received $15 in cash and for two long months without receiving a penny, so, of course I had to get into debt."

"I won't say they are trying to starve me, but it looks that way."

Card of Thanks.
