La Grande Anti-Chinese.

LA GRANDE, Or., Sept. 25th.—The anti-Chinese agitation which has been going on in this county for the past two weeks culminated last night. An armed mob of 200 met outside the city limits at midnight, marched to the Chinese quarters, and after looting the houses marched the Chinamen to the edge of the city and ordered them to leave. The immediate cause of the action of the mob is said to be a meeting at Red Pepper school-house, at Sand Ridge, twelve miles north of this city, yesterday, at which inflammatory speeches were made by one Esteh, an attorney, and others. At this meeting the mob was organized and moved toward La Grande, led by H. C. Cotner, a rancher, and Jos. Truesdell, a saloon keeper, gaining recruits as it advanced until when it reached the city there were at least 200 men in line. Marshals McLachlan and Ardrey, Constable Walden and Deputy Sheriff Lindgreen attempted to quell the riot, but as it was unexpected and no preparation had been made, they were soon overpowered. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the ringleaders. The feature which is causing the most talk to-day is the heroism shown by Mrs. Trumble, wife of the Baptist Chinese missionary, who was alone in the house with her daughter. About thirty Chinamen had sought refuge at her house. When the mob demanded their delivery she appeared with a Winchester and announced that the first man to enter her house would be shot. The mob dispersed.

How is This?

Something unique even in these days of mammoth premium offers, is the latest effort of Stafford's Magazine, a New York monthly of home and general reading.

The proposition is to send the Magazine one year for one dollar the regular subscription price; and in addition to send each subscriber fifty-two complete novels during the twelve months—one each week.

Think of it. You receive a new and complete novel by mail, post paid, every week for fifty-two weeks, and in addition you get the magazine once a month, for twelve months, all for one dollar. It is an offer which the publisher can only afford to make in the confident expectation of getting a hundred thousand new subscribers. Among the authors of the coming series are, Wilkie Collins, Walter Besant, Mrs. Oliphant, Mary Cecil Hay, Florence Marryat, Antoinette Trollope, A. Conan Doyle, Miss Braddon, Captain Marryat, Miss Thackeray and Jules Verne. If you wish to take advantage of this unusual opportunity, send one dollar for Stafford's Magazine one year. Your first copy of the magazine and your first number of the fifty-two novels (one each week) which you are to receive during the year will be sent you by return mail. Remit by P. O. order, registered letter or express. Address

Engines on Bridges.

From the Salem Statesman.
At least two bridges in this county have been broken down this season by steam engines which were crossing contrary to law. Only a few days ago one near Silverton was broken. The owner of the engine repaired the structure but it is said that when high water comes it will readily wash away. Another bridge in the northern part of the county collapsed under the weight of a heavy traction engine, but another of the same kind was immediately following and compelled the first one to put the bridge in passable condition at once. And the driver of the second machine observed the law so that no liability could attach to him for any damage to the structure. Last week a big traction engine went across the big steel bridge without taking the precautionary and protective action required by law. The driver swore he'd be blanked if he cared for the county court or any other court. He seemed to base his immunity from the law on the fact that a team was drawing the engine—it was not being driven by steam. The statute says that four pieces of two-inch plank not less than twelve inches wide and ten feet long, shall be used under the wheels of an engine in passing over a bridge, and they shall be used so that two pieces shall be under the wheels all the time. The purpose seems to be to distribute the weight over a greater area and also to prevent the toes on the wheels from cutting into and splitting bridge planking. The big bridge was injured by the passage of this engine and false work may have to be constructed under the east end to get the structure properly repaired. There is a disposition to show the obstreperous driver that the law has jurisdiction, even on the orphan bridge.

A Good Thing to Keep at Hand.

[From the Troy (Kansas) Chief.]
Some years ago we were very much subject to severe spells of cholera morbus; and now when we feel any of the symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as sickness at the stomach, diarrhoea, etc., we become scared. We have found Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the very thing to straighten one out in such cases, and always keep it about. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial, but to let our readers know what is a good thing to keep handy in the house. For sale by M. A. Miller, Druggist.

A Letter From Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 17, 1893.
EDITOR EXPRESS:—Will you please send the Express to my address here, 416 South Main St., and you will oblige me very much. Perhaps you may want to hear something about this country, so I will tell you what I think of it after being here two weeks. In the first place I will say that I like Southern California very much, and Los Angeles is good enough for me and here I am going to stay, in this city of the lost angels, in the land of sunshine, the land of the fig, the orange; where the wind blows and the cactus grows.

Los Angeles is a city of 65,000 as happy and as contented people as you will find on the Pacific coast, and she is growing like a green bay tree and she is destined to be a very large place as she has no city near by of any consequence, so she is sure to be the leading city of Southern California. Los Angeles seems to stand and does stand the hard times at the present better than any city of her size in the United States. At a recent clearing-house report Los Angeles showed an increase of 45 per cent in her financial business, which was the only city in the U. S. that showed any increase at all, the balance showing a falling off in all the large cities, which is a feather in her cap during these panicky times. The question is, what is doing it? From my observation of the resources of this county I should say that it is the fruit business, which, taking one year with another, pays the farmer much better than anything else. And if Oregon farmers are wise they will pay more attention to raising fruit and not give all their attention to wheat, which has not paid hardly what it cost to put it in for the last four or five years in Oregon. California stands at the head to-day in the fruit business in the United States, but in a great many varieties Oregon can and does beat her. Among those I might mention is the apple, which even the Californians will admit that Oregon leads them, Bartlett pears, prunes, and the Royal Ann cherries. On all these Oregon cannot be beat, and the only reason why Oregon fruit dealers and farmers are not making money on their fruit is just because they do not sell any because they have none to sell; while California is getting the reputation of being the great fruit raising state because she raises the fruit and does have it for sale.

The climate here in Los Angeles is just delightful at present—it could not be better if it was made to order. The population of Los Angeles is made up by eastern people almost entirely, and comes as near being a strictly American city as any place you can find. To be sure you will find a great many Chinamen here, but they have a judge here—Judge Ross—who has the backbone to put the Goary law into effect, and here it was that the first Chinese deportation has taken place, and every day you can see the pigmies marched through the streets on their way to San Francisco to be shipped to China.

About the best known man in Oregon among Californians generally is our own and original governor Sylvester Penoyer, who, without a doubt, is truly very popular with the laboring classes and a long many that do not labor, and with all the men I have talked with I have never found any person who has anything disrespectful to say of our governor, and on the other hand I have heard very many—a large number—say that he is the coming man on this coast. These are simple facts, whatever my own private opinion may be. They all say we have a governor that is not afraid to speak his opinion.

I am inclined to think that the Administration at Washington is not popular in California, and if Mr. Cleveland was running for president this fall he would be beaten 20,000 votes in California, if the people mean what they say. However—I think they are a little bit on the Grover, yet the fact remains that Grover Cleveland has reached the high-water mark here and is going down very fast.

The woods are full of Populists here, and they are growing like a snowball and are sure to be an important element in politics in California, and if there was an election to-day they would come so near carrying the state that it would take the official vote to decide, and the chances would be very good that they would win it.

C. C. HACKLEMAN.

Parties who were to pay their subscription in wood will please haul the same now.
