THE GREAT STRIKE.

Very little information can be gathered here about the great Pullman strike. The Oregonian, upon which we mainly rely for news, does not get outside of Portland. We obtain, by telegraph and otherwise, information to the following effect:

All the railroads in the United States are affected—some are totally blocked, others are badly crippled. No passenger trains are moving and freight cars laden with perishing fruit and putrifying meats are standing in the broiling sun, guarded by strikers, who frustrate any attempt to move them. Thousands of pounds of beef are rotting in and around the stock yards of Armour, near Chicago. California and Oregon fruits are decaying along all the lines running East. Passengers are switched off to rustic for something to eat in desert places, on hot prairies and on snowy mountains. Women and little children are neglected and made to suffer hunger and thirst. The world, so far as the United States is concerned, is at a standstill. Millions of dollars of property are idle and tens of thousands of men are out of employment. All this is brought about by the orders of one Debs, who is the chief of the railroad employes. The Pullman Car Company had a dispute with its employes as to their wages. The men struck and the entire labor element has quit work in sympathy for these few dissatisfied men. Congress has ceased to discuss the tariff and are considering the great strike, endeavoring to find a solution of the problem as to the quickest and best way of letting the world begin again to move. Every man in the union, in fact nearly all the nations of the earth, are more or less affected by this strike. In many cities sufficient food cannot be purchased. No trains are passing through our valley—no mail, no express, no freight, no passengers. By the grace of God, the Lebanon and Albany branch is still working. We know very little of what the outside world is doing. We will have to wait, at the mercy of these strikes, who have thoroughly demoralized the country. This strike will go a long way toward placing the railroad men under the control of the government. Men may quit work if they wish, but no man has a right to force other men to stop work and demoralize the entire community. Severe punishment should be inflicted.

JONES ON THIRD PARTYISM.

[Published by Request.]

The third party, or party of the third party, or whatever you may call it, may get to heaven but they will never get to Washington. It's not on the way. Washington is the wickedest place on earth. It is the home of the devil. The average democratic and republican politician are little better than rascals, but the third party man is a fool. You can reform a rascal, but did you ever try to monkey with a fool?

They want to borrow money of the government at 2 per cent, when the government is now borrowing it at 5. We hear a great deal of fool talk about the rich getting richer and the poor getting poorer under the present law. There never was a greater lie, and I'll prove it. There's nothing the matter with the law. It's the man that's at fault. There's a lawyer on that side of the house making $20,000 a year. Here's a little pettifogger whose family is starving. The law is not to blame. Here's a physician making $10,000 a year. There's a little doctor on the other corner that can't make his salt. The law is not to blame. I preach nearly every day to 8,000 people, and here's a little preacher sitting behind me that can't average 300. The trouble is not in the law, brother, it's in your noggin.

The difference is organic. If all the wealth in the United States were divided out to-day each man would get about $1,160, and in less than six months some fellows would be riding in palace cars and others would be walking cross-ties and howling for another divy.—Canadian Record.

CRAZY or not crazy, Prendergast will hang on the 13th day of this month. If he is crazy it is such a vicious type of insanity that hanging is the only protection against it. The long delay in his punishment is a reproach upon the system of American jurisprudence.

THE LADY BARBER.

Before this newer age began
We thought the art torsorial
Belonged by right of birth to man
From ages immemorial.
But she has come, with fixed intent,
To prove to all the nation,
That man is not pre-eminant
In herbeous operation.
Oh, shaving is a sweet delight
Since she the razor wielded!
My heart unto her charms so bright
Has altogether yielded.
And, though she thinks 'tis only wash,
My ecstasies amaze her.
I hail her vices of comb and brush
And goddess of the razor.
Some day, with lather on my cheek
(Such is the plan I harbor),
I shall courageously seek
The hand of my fair barber.
But if she has already found
Some man to love and praise her,
Her "No" would "cut" me, I'll be bound,
More deeply than her razor.
—National Barber.

Shall Only the Few Be Saved?
Down on Madison street, between La Salle and Clark streets, a sermon is preached every day and at all hours of the day. Not a sound is uttered, but the words carry a force and effect that are seldom excelled in any of the Chicago pulpits.

The busy surge of humanity often pauses for a moment to hear the mute but eloquent appeal. Men with business suits sometimes drop out of the crowd to linger an instant and calculate with their wonted rapidity the marvelous lesson of a chart. Religiously inclined people hang for minutes musing on the figures, and at times a sigh escapes their lips for the condition of this world. Some take notes.

The text, as it is a sermon, is, "Go forth into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." It is a plea for missions at the top of a chart with 1,434 squares. Each square is about an inch and represents a million people, all of them together the population of the world. Each religious organization is characterized by a different color. The Protestants number 116,000,000; the Greek church, 84,000,000; the Roman Catholic, 190,000,000; the Jews, 8,000,000; the Mohammedans, 170,000,000, and the heathens the enormous number of 856,000,000. The heathen world is painted suggestively in black.

Right in the center are three white squares. They look lonely and endangered as a little white skiff tossed on the heaving boom of the dark and stormy sea. Only three small squares out of that vast number represent the Christian element in this world! And this only the nominal Christians, for three-fourths of one of these squares is red, representing 750,000 professed Christians. All kinds of remarks are made by the people who look.—Chicago News.

The Sole Woman Delegate.
Miss Annie Lincold was the sole woman delegate among the 50 who attended the fourth annual convention of the National Textile union recently held in Philadelphia. Miss Lincold is president of the Providence union, No. 42, and master workman of the Knights of Labor assembly, No. 4,947, of Providence. She is a cousin of Miss Mary O'Reilly, one of the deputy factory inspectors of Pennsylvania, and like her is a student of the labor question and a bright speaker. The National Textile union embraces in its membership all branches of the textile industry, including workers in cotton and gingham mills, lace curtain operatives and square weavers and dyers, and the delegates attending the convention represented 40,000 workers. Mrs. Martha Moore Avery of Boston was one of the speakers.—Philadelphia Item.

IN A GOLD STAMP MILL.

Crushing Hundreds of Tons of Rock For a Small Ball of Ore.

For recovering free gold from its ores the only successful method, though crude, which has attained any measure of confidence is that known as stamp milling. Imagine a long, low building, one side lined with portholes, through which rock is fed into huge mortars. In the so, ranged along the wall, pestles, called stamps, drop at regular intervals, pulverizing the rock in a bath of water. One hundred and twenty-five of these stamps, weighing 600 pounds each, pound away at the quartzose ore, with 70 or 80 strokes a minute, amid infernal din, contrasting strangely with the engine that quietly drives them all.

Each splash of the water that seems glad to escape the noisy thralldom and ceaseless pounding drives a little of the pulpy ore through screens in the front of the mortars and over inclined copper plates, the mercurial surface of which seizes the freed gold while the rock disappears over the tailboard, onward to the creek. Formerly no effort was made to recover any value from these tailings, which still contained over 50 per cent of the mineral. Now, however, the use of additional plates and tables adds to the total receipts, which are further increased by the introduction of blankets, in the nap of which some of the riches are mechanically collected. Though crude, this is an improvement upon the method of collecting gold in the Malay islands, where the washings swept over prostrate women, in whose hair the metal was caught. On every Sunday the giant pestles are hung up for rest, while the mercury gold alloy is scraped off the plates. After straining, the amalgam is of almost the consistency of thick cornmeal mush and contains about one-fourth of its weight in invisible particles of gold. From the results of each week's run the mercury is distilled, leaving a beautiful, porous cake of metal of the size of a baseball, as the fruits of prospecting, for mining and stamping of perhaps 300 tons of ore.—Cassier's Magazine.

His Order.

A speaker who has planned an address for a multitude and finds himself confronted with but a single auditor sometimes fails to readjust his remarks, and the result is apt to be ludicrous. A little story illustrative of this point is told in connection with a former president of the University of North Carolina.

One day as this dignified and stately personage was walking about the campus he observed an unlawful assemblage of students at some little distance. He did not hasten his steps, but proceeded slowly toward them, with his head down and his eyes apparently bent in contemplation of his own boots.

When this leisurely proceeding had brought him to the spot where the students had been gathered, only one young man remained, the others having precipitately departed.

The president raised his head and surveyed the solitary culprit with apparent severity, although the young man always contended that he detected a twinkle in his keen eyes.

"Sir," said the president in a commanding tone, "instantly disperse to your several places of abode."

Difficult though the feat required certainly was, the young man executed it to the best of his ability by "dispersing" without further delay.—Youth's Companion.

A Legal Till.

The following amusing contest occurred in Westminster hall between Lord Campbell and an eminent queen's counsel. The action was one brought to recover for damages done to a carriage which the Q. C. repeatedly called a brougham, pronouncing both syllables of the word brougham, whereupon Lord Campbell pompously observed:

"Broom is the more usual pronunciation. A carriage of the kind you mean is generally and not incorrectly called a broom. That pronunciation is open to no grave objection, and it has the great advantage of saving the time consumed by uttering an extra syllable." Half an hour later in the same trial Lord Campbell, alighting to a decision given in a similar action, said, "In that carriage which had sustained injury was an omnibus"—"Pardon me, my lord," interposed the Q. C., "a carriage of the kind to which you draw attention is usually termed a 'bus.' That pronunciation is open to no great objection, and it has the great advantage of saving the time consumed by uttering two extra syllables." The interruption was followed by a roar of laughter, in which Lord Campbell joined more heartily than any one else.—Argosy.

"Dyed Milk" For Londoners.

A writer reveals some of the secrets of the milk trade as discovered by himself in an attempt to run a London dairy upon honest principles. His first discovery was that all London milk has to be "dyed" to suit the London fancy. This is effected by mixing about one teaspoonful of liquid "anotta," vegetable dye of a harmless nature, with every eight quarts of milk. In vain he explained to his London customers that the proper color of most milk is white. "They insisted that my white milk was 'chalk and water' and other people's 'cream colored' milk was creamy, beautiful, rich and fresh. My milk was skimmed, etc. I gave way in this thing alone. I gave them their hearts' desire—the cream colored milk."—London Standard.

No Time to Waste.

Mrs. de Style—I should just like to know who that young man is that you seem to be encouraging.
Miss de Style—His family came over in the Mayflower, and among his ancestors are William the Conqueror, King Egbert, etc.
Mrs. de Style—That will do. People with family trees like that are always too poor to marry. Demiss him.—New York Weekly.

Diabetes Cured!

Wonderful Work.

A New Being Created!

Dear Sir: If you could see the writer of this letter and note the wonderful change that has been effected in his case by taking Dr. Grant's Kidney and Bladder Cure, you would certainly be astonished! I was a most wretched sufferer for three years, trying all kinds of medicine and getting no relief. The flow of urine was very excessive. I was very constipated and also covered with carbuncles, and felt at war with myself and the world at large; but, thanks to your wonderful medicine, I felt as though I was a new being, and I consider a wonderful cure has been effected in my case.

With my best wishes for your further success, I remain,
Yours respectfully,

Has Saved His Life!

Marvelous Cure!

HARNEY, OREGON, April 30, '93.
O. W. R. MFG. CO., Portland, Ore.

Dear Sir: About a year ago I was laid up with rheumatism. I was in a terrible state. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. As there was no physician in Harney I tried various liniments, but they all failed. When my condition was very serious, as the pain seemed to be striking near the heart, your agent came along and had a bottle of Congo Oil. Hearing I was ill with rheumatism, he called upon me, and brought a bottle of Congo Oil. He commenced rubbing me with it, and in less than five minutes I was relieved; in half an hour I was able to swing my foot out of bed, and one hour I was down stairs. He left the bottle with me and I applied it several times. From that day to this I have not been troubled with rheumatism. I feel that I owe my life to the wonderful oil. All this can be verified by Fred Haines, of Harney, who is the landlord of the hotel and several others. I always carry a bottle of Congo Oil with me now.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir: Ever since my eleventh year I have been sorely afflicted with Scrofulous sores breaking out on various parts of my body. The glands of my neck were the most affected. I have doctored with many physicians, but their medicine did not seem to do me any good. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Grant's Sarsaparilla and Grape Root and I felt that the first bottle was doing me good, so I kept on until I had taken eleven bottles, and am now completely cured, and have never felt so well in the last twenty-seven years. It certainly was a cheap doctor bill, as the total cost of the medicine was only $5.50. I now cordially recommend Dr. Grant's Sarsaparilla as the King of Blood Purifiers.
