STATE AND COAST.

Taken From Our Exchanges Throughout the Northwest.

The house of B. J. Pendra, at Springfield, was burned Thursday night.

Forty colonists are expected to arrive at Union on the 15th, to locate in Union county.

Telephone connection has now been made between Jacksonville, Medford, Talent, Phoenix and Ashland.

H. J. Getzman, an experienced canner, has leased the cannery at Independence, and will begin work upon fruit immediately.

The contest J. C. Hayes against G. W. Harrington, sheriff of Morrow county, was terminated by the court sustaining the demurrer.

Nearly $300 has been raised by subscription in Springfield to construct a breakwater in the Willamette to protect the town, as the river is washing away the bank seriously.

Large numbers of seals are reported at the entrance of Coos Bay, and it is said they are playing havoc with the salmon. A move is being made to kill the seals with dynamite.

The Marshfield News says that 1,000 people were on the Benton beach last week, and that when the railroad to Roseburg is completed Benton will become a popular summer resort.

The plant of the Wasco County Sun has been sold and will be removed from The Dalles to Goldendale, to be used in printing a republican paper, after printing a democratic one for many years.

Dr. Sharpless estimates the crop of prunes in his orchard south of Eugene at 60,000 pounds. He has built a large warehouse and increased the capacity of his dryers to 500 bushels per day. Thirty hands are employed in gathering the crop.

A contract has been let to the Pauley jail company to put steel cages in the old Benton county jail for $2,940. The building will also be remodeled. These improvements were sadly needed, for the old jail at Corvallis is the vilest prison pen in the state and a disgrace to civilization.

The board of trustees of the Oregon state insane asylum has appointed Dr. W. A. Cusick to be visiting and consulting physician to the insane asylum. The appointment was made upon recommendation of Superintendent Rowland.

Gold-saving machines are being successfully operated on the north fork of the John Day river. Good hard times wages are being made by the miners. More gold has been shipped to the United States mints from Grant county this year than for many years.

Henry Rhinehart has at his residence in the northern part La Grande a large pond that is fed by springs. While on a recent trip to his farm on the Grande Ronde, Mr. Rhinehart scooped up a barrel of young carp which he has put in the pond, and expects in a short time to have fish for the millions.

Cleve Pearl met with an accident yesterday evening, says the Halsey News, that will lay him up for a few weeks. He was helping Doug Taylor drive stock, near T. A. Powell's farm, when the horse that he was riding fell on him breaking his right arm at the wrist joint. Dr. Michener set the arm.

The Oregon City Enterprise gives the following hard hit: "It was expected that teams from all the larger towns in the state would be present and compete in the races, but the companies of Salem, Albany and Eugene and McMinnville and several others were unable to raise the necessary money to defray their expenses, their towns being evidently too niggard-

ly to deserve a good fire company."

But there is no sense in it. The Albany fire company is among the the best in Oregon; but it was learned several years ago that there is nothing in hiring professional runners in order to win tournament prizes this year were the most niggardly in the history of the association.

An exchange says that Albany girls have discarded the ye-low garter and the pillow stuffed with letters, and have resorted to wearing the small bow which fastens the lining of a man's hat in their shoes. It guarantees a proposal in a month.)

A fire in Ashland Tuesday night burned the Thornton building and a portion of the Van Sant house. The losses were: Thornton building, $1200; Mrs. Mislav, on millinery, $2000; Van Sant building, $2000; Van Sant grocery stock, $1000, total insurance, $4300. The new water system worked admirably.

The senate failed to act upon the nomination of Marshal Patit, of Indiana, as Indian agent at Klamath agency before adjournment. Unless the president should reappoint during the recess of congress, the new agent can not take charge for several months yet, and Agent Matthews will likely have an opportunity to serve out his term which expires about the end of the year.

According to the Times-Mountaineer, the contractors at the government works at the locks expect to put 1,000 men at work in a few days. It is reported that another electric plant will put in operation, and gangs of men will be worked day and night. It appears to be the intention of completing the canal at the earliest possible date, and it is expected that boats will pass through the canal in the fall of 1895.

While out hunting, near Silverton last Sunday, Willie Saller, the 13-year-old son of Abraham Ballar, was shot and seriously injured by a companion Meyers, says the Woodburn Independent. The boys discovered a covey of quail and went on opposite sides of them. When the quail rose Meyers fired, the charge striking his companion in the face, two shot entering one of his eyes and three of the little pellets penetrating the other. Dr. Brewer is doubtful of his recovery, and fears that permanent blindness will result from the injury.

A Benton county man has received a letter from a friend in Iowa that says, "every thing on my farm is burned up by the drouth. I have finished digging an acre and half of potatoes, off of which, I got three bushels all told. There are many people here illy prepared for the long and cold winter that is coming." 38 cent wheat and a shortened crop in Oregon is bad enough, but in comparison with the Iowa picture Oregon farmers are in hayday of prosperity.—Times.

Parties from the mountains east of here, says the Eugene Register, report that Indians are engaged in slaughtering large numbers of deer there. A few days ago a gentleman saw three Indians with 90 deer and three or four bear. Indians come over from the reservation every fall and kill large numbers of deer and cure the meat in different ways for winter use. The white people feel that the Indians are being granted more privileges in the matter of hunting than are granted them.

Brigadier-General Compton, Colonel Freeman, Captains Moore and Siemens and Lieutenant Worthington, who compose the board that investigates the recent fire that destroyed $2,000 worth of troop B's property, held a meeting at brigade headquarters, at Klamath Falls, Thursday, and will soon report. General Compton gives encouragement that the troop will be refitted with new uniforms, saddles and arms, the latter consisting of sabres and revolvers, but no carbines. This will suit the boys very well, says the Klamath Falls Express.

Charles Weaver, aged 19, was the victim of a steam wood saw accident which will keep him on his back for some time, says the Salem Journal. He was employed by Thomas Long on the saw, and was engaged Thursday afternoon sawing wood for Rev. Templeton, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. In doing the work he threw his right knee forward a little too far and it was caught in the saw, which drew it under and inflicted a severe wound. It entered a few inches above the knee joint, and made a cut the shape of a horse shoe down through the knee, severing and cutting off the patella or knee cap.

MATT SCOTT ON HOGS.

He Was Interviewed in Portland by an Oregonian Reporter.

"Ex-Sheriff Matt Scott, of Linn county, was in the city yesterday, having just disposed of a carload of hogs, raised and fattened on the best quality of wheat his Albany prairie farm produces. Mr. Scott believes that raising "porkers" will be one of the greatest industries of the Willamette valley, just as soon as sufficient demand is made and a market opened.

"We could get 75 cents a bushel for wheat," said Mr. Scott, "by feeding it to hogs, if we had a pork-packing establishment here somewhere. At this time, however, there is market only for local consumption. Some pork is shipped east, but comparatively little. I have been experimenting in pork raising, and I am convinced we can produce pork equal to any in America with our wheat, and as I said before, get as high as 75 cents a bushel in this way for the wheat.

"Several old-time farmers living near me, stood watching me pour my wheat to the 'pigs' and at once concluded I ought to be sent to jail for extravagance. I didn't say anything but went right on sawing wood, and when the time came for taking my fat hogs to market, you couldn't put one of them in a wool sack after it was killed.

"I got $4.30 per hundred for my pork on pool. This pays me better than selling wheat at 40 cents a bushel. But, until there is a big pork-packing house in this vicinity, we can't all raise pork. I hope such an establishment will be founded and we can go into the business of furnishing it with the material to work on. Pork is now shipped from Eastern Oregon to the Eastern market, cured into hams, shoulders and bacon, and returned to Portland and the Willamette valley for consumption. This is not right, and something ought to be done to keep this business at home, also to give a sufficient market to infuse the pork-packing industry with new life."—Oregonian.

The following, which is from the Albany Democrat, gives the above a different aspect: "SOMEWHAT PADDED.—The Oregonian's interview with Ex-Sheriff Scott on hog-raising has excited considerable interest. Mr. George Piper was the reporter who did the work on Mr. Scott. Mr. Scott's ideas on the value of putting wheat into hogs and of the advisability of a packing establishment were as advanced by him. Otherwise there was considerable padding. That about his experimenting in pork raising and about farmers watching him pour wheat to the hogs was all in George's fertile brain. Mr. Scott lives in Albany and does not raise hogs at all. He is simply a buyer and seller of hogs, sheep, etc."

An Interesting Career.

Mr. Pete Hensley, the hermit of the Cascades, spent Friday night in Albany. The career of Mr. Hensley is an interesting one. When a young man he was wasting away with consumption, the youngest of fourteen children, so he came west and located in this county. His nature was ascetic and he settled alone at Lower Soda, but people began gathering around him, and he sold out and went farther into the Cascades, locating in Canyon Creek which he left when he began to have neighbors, a few years ago locating at his present home ten miles from Fish Lake, and thirty yards from the surveyed line of the S. P., where in the winter, without a neighbor within ten miles, he is surrounded by as much as seven feet of snow. He traps for a living, now not so extensively. Years ago he brought to Albany furs for which he received over $1,000 in cash. He has twenty-three varieties to hunt for and cover a large territory in his wanderings. At one time years ago, after one of his changes, he had over $3,000 in gold. A business man of this city, O. C. McFarland, then a boy, helped him put it in a belt previous to his departure for Portland. He was not heard from for over six years, and it was thought was murdered for his money; but he again resumed his life in the Cascades. While gone, among other adventures, he rode 1,000 miles down the Mississippi in a skiff. His money disappeared, some of it in bad loans never repaid, but he makes a living all right and is independent and contented. He is a confirmed bachelor but reads love stories and says he has married fifty couples last year. Mr. Hensley returned home this morning with John Shea, in a new Studebaker wagon and behind a fine span of mules.—Democrat.

A Good Joke on a Preacher.

The best joke of the season was perpetrated on Rev. Wallace last Saturday by some of the boys here. The reverend gentleman bought a big 81 pound chinook salmon and left it lying in front of a store while he carried some things up to Mr. Hawley's house, where he was stopping. While he was gone some of the boys, headed by the irrepressible Bob Campbell, took a three ounce vial and stuffed a scrap of paper in it on which was a scribbled statement that the aforesaid bottle was thrown overboard from a sinking steamer in the Alaska waters last February. The name of the vessel was unfortunately (?) blurred so that it could not be deciphered. This bottle they stuffed into the salmon's interior and awaited developments. Mr. Preacher came back and got his salmon and took it home to clean it, and pretty soon came down an excited preacher exhibiting his find. The boys held their sides to keep from laughing and looked solemn. But the best part of it came to pass yesterday when the Oregonian printed a communication giving the details of the whole. And our friend Wallace will never know how he was gulled until he sees this this expose. Another funny part is that one half of the people in the town could remember the sinking of the vessel until the joke leaked out.—Toledo Lander.

Irving W. Larimore, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., Des Moines, Iowa, says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, football players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocations; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one half the time usually required. For sale by N. W. Smith, druggist.
