PENNOYER'S MESSAGE.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER has been giving out, in conversation, some of the items he will present in his message on the convening of the legislature. He will confine his message to a detailed and exhaustive exhibit of state finances. He will show cost of state government and appropriations of legislatures for a series of years, as well as the appropriation and amount expended for each particular purpose by the last legislature. The governor estimates the total appropriation of the last legislature at $2,700,000, while he will show that only about $1,800,000 of this has been expended. Of $80,000 levied for the jute mill, only $3,000 has been expended for making brick. The rest will probably be conveyed into the treasury as the law will probably be repealed. The money levied for many other purposes including the branch asylum, has not been touched, and with a small amount added, the first building can be completed and furnished. The governor says with this and the present wing of the state prison nearly finished, Oregon will not need any more public buildings for at least four years. The governor will leave all suggestions for new legislation to his successor. Beyond making a comprehensive showing of state finances and briefly calling attention to some 24 recommendations in past messages, which have never been acted upon by the legislature, he will gracefully give way to the new order of things, realizing that Governor Lord and his associates have a more recent billet of fresh instructions from the people.

Governor Pennoyer is very well satisfied with the condition of the state's credit and its financial standing. He has unbounded confidence in the integrity of state Treasurer Metchan, and says that on January 1, 1895, after two years of penic and hard times, there will not be a state warrant outstanding, and there will be money enough on hand to defray the expenses of the legislature. The state has no debt and its financial standing is second to none in the union.—Register.

Much has been said about the Oregonian "reading out" of the Republican party all those who favor free coinage of silver. If such is the case, it can place on its "out" list three-fourths of the Republican voters in Lincoln, Benton, Linn and Douglas counties. This position, however, is so contrary to every thing pertaining to independent opinion, that we cannot accuse the Oregonian of such presumption. Any number of Republicans in Oregon have a right to differ from that journal on any question, and as a majority of them do on the silver question, it would be folly to attempt to coerce them to accept that paper's ipse dixit in regard to free coinage of silver.—Florence West.

PROMINENT democrats say there is no longer any shadow of doubt that James H. Budd will be seated as governor of California without contest. The democratic state central committee has entirely dismissed the idea of a contest as unworthy of serious consideration. It is learned that only a few members of the republican state central committee favored the notion of making a contest before the legislature. Those who were active in the scheme caused a canvass to be made of the republican members of the legislature, and the verdict was overwhelming in opposition to what many of them did not hesitate to call an attempt to steal the office.—Ex.

BALTIMORE mills got a contract lately for 200,000 yards of cotton duck for the Japanese government, and an Alabama foundry has just secured a contract for $870,000 worth of cast-iron pipe for the Tokio water works. If the Japanese government could have got its tent material cheaper in Europe than in this country it would probably have done so. In the case of the iron pipe the dispatch states "the American firm met the competition of English, French and Belgium bidders."

A negro convicted of criminal assault at Atlanta has been sentenced to be hanged. This will be the first legal execution for the crime in Georgia.

BENJAMIN F. HUNTER, a New York colored man, will build several mills in Virginia and the Carolinas, in which only black labor will be employed.

A Chicago capitalist has purchased nearly 200,000 acres in Mississippi for the purpose of settling colonies upon it.

Those strikers at Pullman who were not taken back have finally decided to settle in Alabama and found a co-operative colony.

A SONG OF THE LANDLORD.

One of Lebanon's poets, having written the following, handed it to us for publication:

If you ask me of the landlord,
How he vanished one day, wildly,
I should tell you, as was told me,
Told me by one Phillip Messer,
Told to him by Isaac Brinemasah,
And this story I'll relate:
Came one day an irate landlord,
To the mill of straw and paper,
Straightway through the great machine-room,
Straightway till he reached the North room,
Glared among the beaters wildly,
Till he found the man he looked for,
Till he found the Son of Erin,
Stirring up the straw galore.
Hold! he cried, in tone so fendish,
Opening wide his vent of furies,
Tore his long hair with his fingers,
With his fingers made the lint fly,
Saying then with accents wildly,
"Empty is my inside pocket,
Pay to me that sixteen dollars,
Pay the board bill that you owe me,
Pay the spot cash now to me.
Then the mighty son of Erin
Got a chance to get a word in,
Said, "Get out, yer dirty spalpeen,
Not a dom cent do I owe yer,
Paid for every meal I got there,
Every meal and extras paid for,
Dom the cent will I pay more."
Black with rage then grev the land lord,
Shouted fiercely "You're a liar,"
Shouted, "Pay me sixteen dollars,
For the grub that I have fed you,
Or, by the blood of my ancestors,
Who came over in the May Flower,
You will find it getting hot here—
I have said it, now beware."
Then the mighty son of Erin,
Not afraid of man or woman,
Waited not for sign or token,
Grasped the first thing that he came to,
Grasped by then the monster boiler,
Used to cook the straw and lime in,
Raised it o'er his head and higher,
Hurled it at the fray land lord,
Hurled it with his might and vim,
Through the air it went a hissing,
Hissing like a shot from cannon,
Struck the land lord like a cyclone,
Struck him on the cheek and jaw bone,
Knocked him down stairs to the south room,
Knocked the stuffing out of him.
Soon he rallied strength and courage,
Bravely climbed the stairs once more,
Shouting fiercely many a curse word,
Shouting fiercely, "Let me at him,"
Swore he'd have that sixteen dollars,
Swore he'd have revenge or die.
Up the stairs he came a snorting,
Snorting wildly like a mad bull,
Like a mad bull snorting wildly,
Up he came until the last step,
There he saw a sight that froze him,
Chilled the marrow in his bones.
Before him stood the son of Erin,
Stood before him like a giant,
In his hands the monster smokestack,
Swinging lightly, swinging wildly,
Swinging like a great shillalah,
Backward, forward, upward, downward,
All the while a great noise making,
Like the rumbling of an earthquake,
Like the thunder's awful roar.
With a yell the land lord started,
Started down the stairs again,
Made the first jump, take him half way,
Half way made the next one take him,
Found the spot he struck before.
Never stopping, never faltering,
Howling like a Kansas cyclone,
From the north room, to the south room,
From the south room through the straw yard,
Through the straw yard to the timber,
Lost to sight forever more.

The Boy Recovered.
Any one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mulford, of Plainfield, New Jersey. His little boy five years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope, and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now, and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it to them and that is the last of the croup." For sale by N. W. Smith, druggist.

BRAND THE CLAIM AS FALSE.

World's Fair Officials Expose a Pretended to an Award.

CHICAGO, ILL.—One of the odd results of the World's Fair is the claim now made to awards by some who were not even exhibitors. Officials of the Exposition have not as yet taken final action in the matter, believing the quick wit of the people will detect the spurious claims. But to the case of a New York baking powder, that has been widely advertising an award, the attention of the Chief of Awards for Agriculture, has been directed. He brands the claim of this pretender as false, declaring "Neither the records of this department, nor the official catalogue of the World's Columbian Exposition, show that this New York Company was an exhibitor; consequently it could not receive an award at the World's Fair."

Those who fairly won their honors at the Fair seem disposed to treat this fraud as any other fraud should be treated. The Price Baking Powder Company, of Chicago, having received the highest award, say they are convinced their claims, and those of all other holders of rightful honors, will be fully vindicated by the public.

A Bad Accident.

Last Saturday morning at 8 o'clock Ex-County Commissioner Alex. Brandon, on his farm near Plainview, undertook to put a halter on an unbroken colt. The colt wheeled and kicked with both feet, one of them hitting Mr. Brandon over the left eye, crushing the bones of the nose and the frontal bone of the skull and rendering him unconscious. Medical assistance was summoned as quickly as possible and on arriving found that the only hope was in relieving the brain by removing the pressure from the crushed skull bones resting upon it. Dr. Mason, of Albany, assisted by Dr. J. B. Henry, of Brownsville, trepanned the skull of the injured man, raising the depressed portion, removing the blood clots and fragmentary portions of bone, giving relief and a chance for life. Citizens of Linn county will be shocked to learn of the seriousness of the accident, for Mr. Brandon was widely and most favorably known.—Herald.
