A protracted fight has just been brought to a close in the Empire City town board as to whether stock should run at large. The "horse" ordinance, as it has been known, was put to rout, and domestic animals of all kinds will have the perfect freedom of the city.

Speaking of old pensioners, the Eugene Guard recalls Joseph Spores, who died six miles north of Eugene, November 28, 1890, at the age of 95 years and 5 months. Mr. Spores was born in the state of New York in 1795, and was engaged in the fight with the British at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., in 1814. He was a pioneer of 1847.

Miss Emma Smith, step-daughter of Mr. Pate, living at Corvallis who works in the family of M. John Sewell, living three and a half miles east of town, was seriously hurt last Saturday by a gunshot wound in the thigh. She and Sewell's 12-year-old boy were target-shooting, and the gun went off accidentally in his hands. The bullet has not been recovered.

The Oregon presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian church met at Woodburn Friday. Rev. G. A. Blair, pastor of the First church at Portland, preached the opening sermon. A good delegation was present and reports show aggressive work is being done. One special feature in the reports from the different churches was the large number of conversions. Rev. W. H. Jones was elected moderator.

From the amount of fish that was shipped on the Gatzert Wednesday morning for down-river points, the St. Helen's Mist thinks it would not require many weeks' fishing to place the average fisherman in rather independent circumstances. One fisherman shipped 2500 pounds, for which he received 5 cents a pound or $125 for the shipment. The fishermen up and down the river are greatly encouraged at the outlook.

Will Moore started from his place, near Chetco, last Monday, to fell some trees, and when he had gone about 300 yards from home, walking along at his leisure with his ax on his shoulder, he came upon a bear. Standing erect on his hind legs Bruin made a bow to Will, and offered his acquaintance; but the dog took hold of his hind leg and he started to run. The dog took another mouthful and threw the animal on his back. Will then rushed forward, killing the bear by a blow on the head.

The conditions are that five cents "picking money" is to be advanced.—Salem Statesman.

Simply Business. Dr. C. H. Mack, a Salem dentist, runs a half column advertisement in each of the three daily papers of that city, and he is having his hands more than full. The Journal says, in speaking of the fact: The professional man wants business the same as any other business man, and he wants as much as he can handle, yet many in the medical and dental profession deprive themselves of the much coveted practice by undue modesty. Dr. Mack is to be congratulated upon his courage in adopting this correct business theory, even though he stands high in his profession. It will not only bring him fame and patronage, but is will bring relief to many a sufferer who would otherwise have continued in distress.
