

SILVER ORATORS.

THE great Silver orators Joseph C. Sibley and A. J. Warner of Ohio will address the citizens of Lebanon and vicinity Monday May 13. For further particulars see posters. Sibley and Warner are men of national reputation. Let everybody turn out and give them the grandest ovation ever given to a public man in Lebanon.

THE legislature of Tennessee has just passed a resolution, by a vote of 43 to 30 in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

IF the election of United States senators were left to the popular vote, it would destroy the political significance of the legislature. Then we might send men there who were not politicians and schemers, and who would enact more laws in the interest of the people.—Roseburg Review.

EUGENE is agitating a proposition to build a steamboat to navigate the Willamette between that city and Corvallis. The Guard quotes Captain Burt Hatch as saying that a boat can be built that will make such navigation successful the greater portion of the year. The estimated cost of the boat is $4,000 of which $1,500 has already been subscribed.

EX-POSTMASTER General John Wanamaker gave a splendid banquet at his home in Philadelphia, Friday evening. Governor Hastings and staff, all members of the legislature and prominent citizens to the number of 2000 attended. It is generally inferred that there was some political significance in the affair, and that while Wanamaker would like to go to senate, he would, also, like to see Harrison re-nominated for president.

AN exchange says that the much-talked-about bicycle dress is simply a pair of trousers, very baggy at the knees, abnormally full about the pistol pockets, and considerably loose where you strike a match. The garment is cut décolleté at the south end, and the bottoms are tied below the knees to keep the nice out. You can't put it over your head as you would a skirt, but you sit on the floor and pull it on just as you do your stockings, one foot in each compartment. You can easily tell which is the side to have in front by the buttons on the neck-band.

OREGON City Enterprise: Those parties who have willfully delayed the confirmation of the sale of the Oregon Pacific to the recent purchasers, are responsible in a great measure for the recent fatal wreck that occurred at tunnel number one. The road has been controlled by receivers, who had no means to make the needed repairs, until some of the bridge structures are decaying. Had the new purchasers been allowed to make the contemplated improvements that would have been completed ere this the terrible fatal accident would have been averted.

ALL signs point to a shortage in the cattle supply. A train load of one and two year old steers left Eugene Friday, of which 600 head go to Montana, and 300 head go to French & Co., The Dalles. Another train load is also being shipped from Miller's station, Linn county. Contracts are also announced for the delivery of 2,500 head of cattle purchased on the east side and to be used in stocking up ranges abroad. The Eugene Guard is in receipt of a letter from Paisley announcing that buyers are in the Chewaucan country to buy 2,000 head of cattle. It has been a long time since there was such a demand for cattle and it will be strange if prices do not stiffen.

It is said that the Chicago Telephone Company will soon begin to replace the signal bells with flash lights from an electric lamp.

THE wine industry is destined to play an important part in the future of the farming community by reason of the fact that there is money in it. As one farmer put it, when he jingled $20 pieces in his pocket, "that is the way to market wheat; drive it in on hoofs." And while some conservative ones fear that if a large number go into this branch of business the pork market is likely to be overstocked, still we believe it will be practically impossible to affect the market by all the stock the farmers of Oregon can offer for years. The fact remains that "there is money in hogs." 'Tis more profitable to drive hogs to market than it is to haul wheat over bad roads.—Plaindealer.

THE highest salaried employe in the United States is supposed to be the president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, Henry R. Hyde. He receives annually $100,000. John A. McCall gets $75,000 to be president of the New York Life. Samuel Spencer receives $50,000 a year telling Pierpont Morgan what he knows about railroads. Mr. Cleveland receives $50,000 a year and a house and lot for being president. Mr. Depew's salary as president of the New York Central railroad is believed to be $50,000. Cornelius Vanderbilt's cook receives $16,000 a year. The sheriff of New York used to make $100,000 and over every year. Masini receives $50,000 a season for singing his mighty tenor in Madrid, and so it goes, while most men are glad to make enough to live on.

IN speaking of the manufacture of the new diphtheria remedy an exchange says: The only place in Europe where anti-toxine, the new diphtheria remedy, is manufactured commercially in quantities at all commensurate with the demand is at Hoechst, near Frankfurt. The growth of the production of this remedy has been rapid, and the demands upon it are enormous. During the month of September last the entire product of the laboratory could not be made to exceed 3500 doses and many hundreds of urgent orders from far and near had to be refused; during November 50,000 doses were delivered; in December 2000 doses a day were sent out, and by last January the establishment was for the first time able to supply the demand made upon it. Between 75 and 100 horses supply the blood for the remedy here, and one of the most surprising things in connection with the matter is the amount of blood that a strong healthy horse can give to science without apparent injury to his physical condition. The record books at Hoechst show that from one of the horses ten liters (12.13 pints) have been drawn in two days, and the average for each animal varies from twenty-five to fifty liters per month. The most tender-hearted humanitarian becomes reconciled to the apparent cruelty of this wholesome blood-letting, when he reads that, through the agency of anti-toxine the death rate of diphtheria in Germany, ranging in some years to 60 per cent in the cases, has been reduced to 14 per cent, or less than one-tenth.

Resolutions.

Whereas, Rev. Estes has resigned the pastorate of the Lebanon Baptist church; and
Whereas, he was an esteemed member of the Pastors Association of Lebanon, a kind and courteous brother, a faithful and efficient pastor; and
Whereas, we deeply regret his departure; therefore be it
Resolved that in his removal from our midst this association has lost a true and active co-laborer, the church a valiant soldier and the christian community an uncompromising enemy of sin in all its forms. Therefore we earnestly invoke the blessing of God upon him and his labors; and we commend him to the sympathy and fellowship of one common christian brotherhood.

STILL A SISTER TO HIM.

Although Annie married him, she refused to be a wife.

Simply a sister to him. That is what Eugene F. File says his wife has been to him since his marriage, and that alone. File is a leather finisher and foreman in the shops of McDermott & Howard in the eastern district of Brooklyn. For the reason given he has begun suit for the annulment of his marriage, which was celebrated eight years ago.

Mrs. Moore keeps a boarding house at 225 Havemeyer street. Her daughter Annie, known in the neighborhood as Miss Moore, is slender. Among the boarders is Mr. File, who now claims that he is known among Annie's friends as Mr. Moore, her brother. In short, although the marriage ceremony was performed between them Dec. 1, 1896, he declares under oath that the ceremony ended at the church door, and that since then Annie has refused to play the part of wife to him.

File says that out of a salary of $15 a week he has paid his mother-in-law $13 part of the time and $10 the other part for the board of himself and "Sister Annie."

A year or two ago, maddened by the circumstances by which he was surrounded, he left town. His wife persuaded him to return, but it was not to marital happiness, for his wife continued to be a sister to him, as before.

At last the husband-brother got one of the visiting cards of "Miss Annie Moore, 225 Havemeyer street" and paid a visit to Mr. Westlotstrand asked him for advice. Papers were prepared and served upon the daughter.

The answering affidavit was to the effect that Annie had been his wife and lived with him as such until he left her and began proceedings. She asked the court that he be forced to pay her $10 a week and $300 counsel fees in order that she might defend the action. Justice Bartlett has signed an order directing the plaintiff to show cause why he should not put up the cash.—New York Journal.

Anarchist Lega Likes Jail.

Paul Lega, the author of the attempt on Signor Crispi's life, occupies an isolated cell in the Carceri Nuovi, in Rome, and is observed day and night through an opening in the wall. He sleeps well, and when awake talks to himself. The other morning on rising he drank thirstily from his jug of water and then said aloud, looking about him and beating his breast: "Now I feel better. I am in prison, it seems. At last I am in possession of a small estate." Then he began to laugh and whistle, drumming with his fingers in time to the tune. When the jailer entered the cell, taking him his bread and soup, Lega said: "Thank you. I am better served here than in an inn, all the more because I have nothing to pay. At last I have succeeded in getting a palace and servants of my own!"—London News.

Mr. Astor Criticizes His Newspaper.

Although Mr. Astor does not attempt to control the opinions of his papers, he occasionally ventures a criticism on their contents, and his comment sometimes takes another epigrammatic form. For instance, not long ago the editor of one of the Pall Mall publications—I forbear to mention which one—had a copy of the paper returned with, "Is this paper written for housemaids?" inscribed all across it in blue pencil. The editor retorted shortly afterward by returning an article written by Mr. Astor with the simple remark that it was "declined with thanks!"—London Figaro.

Guarding Royalty.

Fresh precautions have been adopted in England, as in other European countries, for guarding royalty. Scotland yard detectives now accompany the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York whenever they appear in public places.

Treatment of the Feet.

A writer in Boots and Shoes has been interviewing a chiropodist on the care of the feet and has got this information from him concerning the treatment for heated, tired feet after walking or standing:

He says, truly enough, that authorities differ as to the value of the various foot baths. "Hot water enlarges the feet by drawing the blood to them. When used, they should be rubbed or exercised before attempting to put on a tight boot. Mustard and hot water in a foot bath will cure a nervous headache and induce sleep. Bunions and corns and callousness are nature's protestations against bad shoe leather. Two hot foot baths a week and a little pedicuring will remove the cause of much discomfort.

"A warm bath, with an ounce of sea salt, is almost as restful as a nap. Pad-dle in the water until it cools, dry with a rough towel, put on fresh stockings, make a change of shoes, and the person who was 'ready to drop' will then be ready to stand up. But the quickest relief from fatigue is to plunge the foot in ice cold water and keep it immersed until there is a sensation of warmth. Another tonic for the sole is alcohol. It dries the feet nicely after being out in the wet. Spirit baths are used by professional dancers, acrobats and pedestrians to keep the feet in condition."

The ice cold foot bath seems rather a dangerous remedy to persons unaccustomed to it, and the caution is suggested to experiment with it in very mild weather.

A Practical Woman.

Mrs. W. G. Harris, president of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the First Baptist church of Boston and an active worker in the Ladies' Needlework guild, has started a new scheme for collecting funds for the poor. She has put up dainty mite boxes in the corridors of the Parker House and the Tremont House, with cards attached asking for contributions to be used only in cases which she has personally investigated and found deserving. She has visited and relieved about 60 persons during three weeks.—Boston Commonwealth.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and gives the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer the Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J.
