H. P. HAYES ARRESTED

IN JAIL IN EUGENE

Charged With a Grave Crime. May Also be Called Upon to Answer the Accusation of Murder When all is Known.

EUGENE, Or., June 22.—H. P. Hayes, of Fall creek precinct, this county, was arrested at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Buttrick, two miles from Junction City, about noon today, and is now in the county jail here, with a charge of incest against him. He may also be called upon to answer the charge of murder before his case is settled. Hayes is a schoolteacher, and has a niece in the same neighborhood, Miss Susan Walker, who is also a schoolteacher. Miss Walker last night gave birth to a girl baby, and charges Hayes with being her betrayer and the father of her child. She went to her mother two weeks ago and made a confession as to her condition.

About May 1, the father of Miss Walker had an intimation of the condition of his daughter, and one day told Hayes that if his suspicious materialized he would kill the guilty man. May 15, Walker went to work in the morning about his barn, but was taken suddenly and violently ill, and was taken to his house, where he soon died in great agony, having spasms and violent convulsions. For some reason the case was not reported to the coroner, and Walker's remains were interred without any inquest or post-mortem examination. This morning, when Coroner Harris heard of the facts, he went to the place for the purpose of having the body exhumed and an analysis made of the contents of the stomach.

The people living in the neighborhood are very much wrought up over the affair. Hayes is being held here and will not be taken before Justice Callison for examination until the excitement subsides. Hayes seems to realize his position, and expressed a wish to end his existence.

Bandit Brady Still at Large.

REDDING, Cal., June 23.—The latest reports from Anderson are that there has been a battle between Bandit Brady and his pursuers. Sheriff Houston came in a while ago, and stated that he had heard several shots. There is a well organized posse of more than 100 men, under the direction of Sheriff Houston, watching the thickets which they have surrounded. Happy valley, so-called, where Brady is hid, is a long stretch of level land devoted to orchards and vineyards, and is well irrigated. Where not cleared it is very brushy, furnishing a good hiding place and plenty of water and fruit close at hand. About Brady's camp, apple cores and other traces were seen, but Brady was not there. It is thought he is working southward.

Tonight a large party left here under command District Attorney Rose to assist, and every young and able-bodied man is pressed into service. So far, Brady has outwitted them all. It is known that he is not badly wounded, as at first supposed. The marshal says Brady left his hiding place to come north on account of an accident which made him believe he was unsafe. The horse and cart were probably loaned him by a friend, as it is known that friends have been assisting him. People here assert that Brady is a son of a preacher named Gilbert in Fall river valley, but this is thought to be a mistake.

Brady will probably be captured tomorrow.

An Attempted Jail Break.

TACOMA, June 23.—Seven prisoners, headed by Tom Hayden, a noted convict, captured and beat Night Jailer Gibbs at the Pierce county Jail this forenoon, when he was carrying in their breakfast. They would have escaped, but for the quick action of Jailer Goodrich in closing the door leading out of the cage. Gibbs is not badly injured. Hayden has served eighteen years in the Pacific county prison, and goes to Walls Walls this week to serve four more for burglary. One of his fellow-conspirators was Frank Pomeroy, arrested for burglarizing a store last December at La Camas, in which the postoffice is situated.

A Sound Boat Burned.

SEATTLE, June 22.—The steamer Annie M. Pence, running between the Islands and Seattle, took fire at Saratoga Pass last night at 11:30 o'clock and was destroyed. T. H. Sullivan, cook on the steamer, was drowned, being forced to take to the water to save himself from the flames. The rest of the crew got on board a scowload of hay, which the steamer was towing, and, cutting adrift, they escaped death. The fire was a terrible one, and had enveloped the boat and the crew almost before any one was aware. The fire is supposed to have started from a spark near the boiler room. The steamer was half a mile from shore when she caught fire. After she had burned out, the steamer Munroe came along and beached her. The vessel was owned by Captain Joshua Green, and was valued at $5000.

The fire was discovered by the watchman, who rushed to the pilot-house and gave the alarm to Captain Joshua Green, the owner, who was at the wheel. By this time the flames had spread over the whole steamer and her cargo of hay, but the watchman knocked at the doors of each of the sleeping crew, who came out in their nightclothes, and saved themselves. He thinks that Sullivan came out also, but went back for a valise, and, becoming confused, jumped into the water.

Silver Will Advance.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The treasury officials anticipate that the payment of the Chinese war indemnity of 200,000,000 taels will result in material increase in the market price of silver.

The present quotation of silver is 57 1/2 cents an ounce, which is an advance of 4 cents over the quotations of a year ago. The present price anticipated to some extent the expected rise, and is also the result of the increased demand caused by the war expenses of both governments.

At present there is not to exceed 600,000 ounces of silver bullion in the United States, outside of the amount owned by the government. At the present price of silver the amount required by China would equal about $145,000,000 worth of bullion.

They Command Fancy Prices.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Strawberries as large as good sized walnuts, picked from vines in Seattle, Washington, arrived in this city Monday. It was the first shipment of the sort.

Representatives of leading hotels, restaurants and fancy grocery houses took the fruit readily at prices varying from $3 to $9 per case, or five to fifteen cents per quart. Seattle shippers were notified of the successful outcome of their venture and expressed their hearty satisfaction. It opens a new market for what has heretofore been considered commodities too perishable for such a long distance shipment.

A Firebug Lynched.

NEW ORLEANS, June 24.—In Gretna, a small town across the river, the body of John Frye, aged 22 years, was found dangling to a telegraph pole this morning. Frye belonged to a gang of young men who made a business of burning down property in Gretna. Last night the gang were caught setting fire to a disorderly house occupied by negroes. Frye was lynched and three other members of the gang are now in jail.

No Trouble at Astoria.

ASTORIA, Or., June 23.—Fish Commissioner McGuire and Sheriff Hare patrolled the river this morning. They found five traps running on the Washington shore and made two arrests. They will lay information against all before the grand jury tomorrow. No effort was made by the Washington authorities to arrest McGuire and Hare.

Portland Bonds Sold.

PORTLAND, June 24.—The bridge committee today opened bids for the purchase of $200,000 bonds. There were six bids. The bonds were sold to Cushman, Fisher & Co., of Boston, who bid par and a premium of 15.65 per cent, or $21,300 and interest for the $200,000 bonds.

Wanted to Kill Cleveland.

CLYDE, N. Y., June 24.—William Campbell, an old soldier from Buffalo, N. Y., is in jail here. He told Chief of Police Hamilton that he was on his way to kill Grover Cleveland. He is insane.

Pugh & Maney have just received a large invoice of ladies' children's and men's shoes. See them and you will buy them.

THE TRIAL OF SWARTZ

EVIDENCE ALL SUBMITTED

Argument in the Matter of the Confirmation of the Sale of the Oregon Pacific Ended.

The evidence in the Swartz trial is all in. The jury and an audience as large as the courtroom would contain, listened all day, the 19th inst., at Salem, to the details of the death of Edward Swartz, and the expert testimony of physicians, on the operation performed to save his life. The chain of evidence surely points to Alonzo Swartz as the murderer of his son. Swartz, while on the stand, testified that Edward rushed for a gun, and it was in wresting it from him that the knife was used. The testimony is unsupported. It is extremely doubtful if the evidence of the physicians will warrant the conclusion that the death of Edward was due to the operation, rather than the stab.

The trial was concluded last Friday afternoon, and the jury after three and a half hours' deliberation, returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. The first ballot of the jury stood five for murder in the first degree, five for second degree, and two for manslaughter. The sixth ballot showed them unanimous for the second degree.

Sentence was pronounced Saturday and the prisoner was taken to the penitentiary to spend the rest of his natural life. One of the jurors who sat in the Swartz case stated since that, that twenty years ago, he forced Swartz to put away a gun he had drawn on his wife.

The Argument Ended.

On the convening of the supreme court, June 19, at Salem, J. R. Bryson concluded his argument in behalf of the Oregon Pacific railroad, taking an hour and a half. Mr. Bryson contrasted the oft-quoted expression of Attorney Bronaugh, that "the Oregon Pacific road is worthless, beginning in a duck puddle and ending in a snow bank," with his present position. He claimed that the only question now is that of adequacy of price. Following Mr. Bryson, George G. Bingham spoke for a quarter of an hour in behalf of the employees of the road. He asked that, in case the sale be set aside, the cause of his clients be given priority over other claimants. In the course of his remarks Mr. Bingham charged that all appellants were connected with the Hogg faction.

Volumes of records in the Oregon Pacific case were filed in the supreme court, and its destiny left in the hands of the court. It is hardly probable that a decision will be reached within a month, and possibly a much longer time will be required.

The following order was entered in the supreme court: Charles L. Watson, appellant, vs. William Buckler et al., respondents; ordered that the time for serving and filing additional abstract by the respondent be further extended ten days from June 20, 1895.

A Lawmaker to be Hanged.

From advices in Portland, it is learned that Paul P. Lawson, a populist ex-member of the Idaho legislature, was found guilty, at Challis, Idaho, June 14, of murder in the first degree, for killing George W. Watson, near Houston, Custer county, and was sentenced by District Judge C. O. Stockslager, to be hanged July 28.

The murder of Watson by Lawson was particularly atrocious. The evidence in the trial showed that Lawson had lain in wait for his victim, and shot him in the back, May 15, with a shotgun loaded with buckshot and slugs. The only motive for the crime was that Watson last fall, in a fight with Lawson, had given him a severe thrashing; and, as Lawson had been posing as a "bad man" and "boss" of the settlement about Houston, he had concluded to "get even" for the loss of prestige entailed by the drubbing administered to him.

After the killing, Lawson stood guard for several hours over the body, refusing to let any one come near it, exclaiming: "This is my meat, and nobody can touch it till I say so," coupled with horrible obscenities. But finally a justice of the peace, friendly to the murderer, with the aid of a few friends, all of whom were armed, held what they called an inquest behind locked doors, returning a verdict of "justifiable homicide."

The residents of Houston and vicinity had by this time become aroused at the high-handed proceedings, and they delegated one of their number to proceed to Challis, the county seat, and swear out a warrant for the assassin. The sheriff and coroner repaired to the scene of the crime. The former arrested Lawson, and the latter exhumed the body and held an inquest, which resulted in the slayer being charged with murder "with malice aforethought." The subsequent trial at Challis lasted six days, and the jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree an hour after the case was submitted to them. The usual notice of application for a new trial was given, but the general opinion is that it will not be granted, as the judge was extremely fair in his rulings.—Oregonian.

Senator Mitchell's Views.

Senator Mitchell being asked as to the subject of bimetalism, says: "Any real bimetalism, except where silver and gold are treated exactly alike so far as coinage is concerned at a fixed ratio, is impossible. I believe in the unlimited coinage of both metals. I believe neither metal should be treated simply as a commodity, but as a money metal. I would prefer to see this accomplished by an international agreement. My hope is that this can be brought about by the faintest possible character. Therefore, I am in favor of independent action by the United States alone. I am in favor of sound money—gold, silver and paper—each dollar of which must be the equivalent in money value and purchasing power of the other two. I am unalterably opposed to a single gold standard. I do not believe with many that the opening of our mints to the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver would result in bringing us to a silver standard. I believe in the declaration of the first national republican platform in the use of both gold and silver as a standard money. By utilizing the two precious metals of the country as money as the constitution of the United States intended they should be, the people of this country would be furnished with a domestic money which would, in my judgment, result in vastly increased development of resources. Our reports to meet our foreign balances would be largely increased, and as a consequence the annual balances of trade abroad would be correspondingly diminished. The price of all commodities, especially foreign, would also be vastly increased. "I do not believe there will be a complete restoration of business prosperity so long as we adhere to the single gold standard. Of course the business of the country will improve. It is, in my judgment, improving somewhat now. The present prospect for good crops, especially on this coast, will do much in that direction, but in my judgment, this country as a whole, will never realize that full measure of prosperity to which we are justly entitled until silver is re-monnetized, and by this I mean simply the repeal of the coinage law by which it was demonetized."

A Rush for Silets.

There promises to be something of a rush for lands on the Siletz when the day arrives for filing. Four teams passed through Saturday, three Tuesday and one yesterday, all bound for that vicinity. Those who expect to settle should not forget that half a dollar per acre must be paid when the filing is made on the land and an additional dollar per acre when final proof is made. It is probable that many of the land hunters, when they find they cannot get gratis, a farm well improved by some Indian, with a fine house, hot and cold water conveniences, will turn their backs on the Siletz and return disgusted from whence they came.—E. J.
