CLACKAMAS county commissioners are talking of purchasing a county poor farm.

GOVERNOR Boise, of Iowa, has come out unreservedly for the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

THE frequent stage robberies on the route from Klamath Falls to Ager have resulted in Wells, Fargo & Co. again withdrawing from business over that line.

A MICHIGAN farmer and his wife signed what they supposed to be a marriage certificate, turned up later attached to a neatly penned note for $1,000. If the farmer can find the groom and bride he is ready to throw an old shoe at them for luck. His foot will be inside the shoe.

If the big dailies gave half of the space they give to scandal and pugilism each day to a truthful publication of the vast resources of the state and the many inducements offered home seekers, they would soon have a better field in which to work up their circulation, and at the same time they would be doing Oregon some service.

THE Orange Judd Farmer crop report for June declares that in the six central states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Mississippi and Kansas, the wheat crop will be an almost entire failure. Only a half a crop of hops is predicted in New York. In Oregon the vines never looked better. With a failure of wheat in the west and hops and fruit in the east, the outlook for a market for the northwest's abundance is very promising.

THE Roseburg Review sarcastically remarks that there "is a general feeling of disappointment because Colonel Alley refuses to become a candidate for congress from the second congressional district." There are two other equally available candidates in that district for the republicans to select from in the persons of Hofer and Barkley, which should have a tendency to relieve the general disappointment, especially among the democrats. Either of these great statesmen would stand as much show of an election as the gentleman from Lane.

A NEWSPAPER man is in some instances like other people. He respects his friends, appreciates a kindness, and is always willing to return a favor. In another respect he resembles his fellowmen. He will not continue to put a man on the back, tell what a good man he is, and how much he has done for the town, and give him a free business puff every week, when the man will not, through personal prejudice or otherwise, continue to aid in supporting the paper. In other words, he stands by the man who stands by him. That is about the way of the world, and a newspaper man can't be expected to be so much different from other people.

A DISPATCH from Chicago announces that the wages of not less than 250,000 men in the United States have been advanced materially within the last ninety days. Careful inquiry throughout the country indicates an advance averaging 11 1/2 per cent. The Chicago Tribune has compiled a list which embraces more than 250 firms which have within the last few weeks advanced the wages of their employees. A notable feature of this great industrial improvement is that the wages of these 250,000 men have, with hardly an exception, been advanced voluntarily by the employers, who have shown a spirit of willingness to share the results of the era of general prosperity which seem to have set in, without delaying the division of profits until labor grow impatient. Silvermania, or any other craze born of popular discontent, cannot live in the face of such testimony as this.—Telegram.

OBITUARY.

Mr. William A. Bishop died at his home on Sunday evening, June 23, 1895, near Lebanon, Oregon. He was born near Russellville, Ohio, on March 24, 1828.

Mr. Bishop was united in marriage with Miss Hannah T. Hopkins by Rev. Jesse Lockhart, Dec. 9, 1852. Two children were born to them, but both died while quite young.

Being a man of strong will and indomitable courage, he determined to establish a home on the prairies of the great West, and in consequence of this decision, removed to the state of Illinois in Feb. of 1855.

He united with the Presbyterian church at Champaign, Illinois, under the ministry of the Rev. Samuel Vandyke in the year 1857.

His faith was of that type which has upheld and fortified the true and living christians in all times.

Many tender ties of endearing friendship were formed in this new home, but this was not to be the field of his life-work.

In 1870, he removed with his family to the state of Nebraska, still carrying with him that love for the Master's Kingdom, which was born in him of the spirit of God, he became instrumental in organizing the Presbyterian church in the town of Alexandria, Nebraska, in the year 1873.

He was immediately elected, ordained and installed an elder of that church. The Sabbath school is the special part of the Master's vineyard in which it was ever his delight to labor; he believed that the careful training of the tender plant, would give it vigor and life in the time of fruit-bearing and, therefore, he advocated the christian education of the children.

He was called to give his influence to the cause of christ in another part of the field. On the 19th of April, 1892, he became a resident of Linn Co., Or., uniting with the Presbyterian church of Lebanon, and was at once elected and installed an elder of its session—he was still a member of this court of our beloved church at the time of his death.

Elder Bishop has gone to enjoy the triumphs "Rest that remaineth to the people of God;" but he has left footprints in the sands of time, if followed in the spirit with which he walked, will surely lead up to the right hand of God.

The funeral services were held in the First Presbyterian church, Tuesday, June 25, 1895, at 10:30 a. m. The services were conducted by the pastor, J. H. Beattie, assisted by the ministers of the city. The floral tributes were provided and arranged by the floral committee of the Y. P. S. C. E. and were perfectly beautiful and abundant. A shield of Calla Lilies occupied the center. Elder Bishop was a true hero; these sweet memorials proved a great comfort to Mrs. Bishop in the hour of her bereavement. B.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

How a Lawmaker Avoided Telling a Direct Lie.

"Some of our lawmakers," said a veteran lobbyist, who had had experience in many capitals, "have very curious consciences. I remember on one occasion that it became necessary to have a certain man in a certain state-legislature on our side in a little legislation of importance, and it was my duty to look after him. I did so, with various attentions, including wines, dinners, and so on, and at last, and couldn't fix him, I plumped a thousand dollar bill at him. My, my, but he was hot.

"No man can bribe me, sir! No man can bribe me," he fairly yelled, and he tore up and down in such a violent manner that I discreetly pocketed my thousand and left him. The next day—I don't know, of course, how it could have happened—one or two newspapers that didn't like my man published an intimation that the lobbyist was taking care of him. Then he was hotter than ever, and the next night I sent a lady lobbyist in my employ to see him. She came back to me in an hour without the thousand dollars and said he was all right. Then I saw him, and the next day he had a card in all the papers to the effect that he had repelled with scorn the advances of a lobbyist, and that he had accepted a bribe from no man. When the bill came up he voted with us and no comment was made because he had been on the fence anyway and nobody, except the few, knew how he would vote. All the same, he took a roundabout way to avoid telling a straight lie, didn't he?" and the lobbyist laughed.—Detroit Free Press.

Warding Off Cholera.

Persians have many rites which the superstitious believe are efficacious in averting attacks of the cholera. One of the most popular of these is that of passing under the Koran. Two elders stand opposite each other, holding between them a scroll of the Koran wrapped in a silken scarf. Under this swinging talisman the peasants pass one by one and then go home, convinced that the cholera will not be able to touch them.
