Printers' Ink says: "The best place to put an advertisement is in the paper that enjoys the confidence of the community."

Are the people of Oregon to be afflicted with an argument through the press, between Timothy Tugmutton Geer and Dr. Sydney Dell?

Texas is a big state with great possibilities. Of the 234 counties into which the state is sub-divided sixty-four are so thinly populated they have no local newspapers, and in fifteen of these counties there is not a single postoffice.

Some holiness fanatics of Indiana have set September 15, as the day on which the world will come to an end, and are making their arrangements accordingly. They claim to have a divine presentiment to that effect.

A good point for business men to bear in mind when writing their ads. is to "pick out their strongest point in the goods, put it in simple phrase and persistently use it." Such advertising pays.

The best man in the church does not always seat himself in the "amen corner." We have seen him occupy a less conspicuous seat, and be content to take a doorkeeper's place in the house of God, and be commended the confidence and respect of all who knew him.

A company with $1,000,000 capital has been formed to build an elevated bicycle road from Chicago to Milwaukee. It is to be sixteen feet wide and nearly straight. It is to be a toll road—charge 10 cents—and it is thought that 20,000 persons will travel over it every day.

The fourth annual re-union of soldiers and sailors will be held at Ashland, September 17 to 21, 1895. Among the noted speakers who will be present will be Senator Mitchell, ex-Senator Dolph, Senator McBride, Congressman Hermann, Captain O. C. Applegate and General Compton.

The latest bulletin, just issued, by the Oregon Fruit Union says that "the eastern markets still remain firm and the outlook grows more favorable for the shipper." That means, we suppose, that the railroad companies will realize more from the shipments of our fruit growers—they seem to take all the proceeds.

A new law in New York goes in force September 1, which requires secrecy to be maintained by all who handle telephone messages. Under it provisions any telephone employe who improperly reveals a message may be fined $1000 or imprisoned for six months and the same penalty is fixed for any person who wrongfully obtains a message. The law makes no distinction as far as secrecy is concerned between the telegraph and the telephone.

The editor of the Portland Leader, a populist paper, in a farewell address to his readers gives evidence of a contrite heart and returning sanity: "My debt of gratitude to those who have done all they could to sustain the paper is only exceeded by the debt I owe for presswork. If God in his infinite wisdom and mercy will forgive me for neglecting my family in my past earnest endeavor to publish a paper in behalf of oppressed humanity, a very large proportion of whom do not appreciate the effort, I solemnly promise not to do so again."

The Southern Pacific Company has made a new move to thwart the operations of the ticket brokers. General Passenger Agent Goodman has issued an order abolishing all tickets limited to six months over the company's lines and to points outside the state. Hereafter all tickets single tickets sold on full route.

points in Oregon, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico, including El Paso, or from California to points in Oregon, or any other of the above mentioned states will be limited to thirty days. All such tickets now unused in whole or part will be redeemed at a proper value upon application to the general passenger department or to the local agent. This new rule cannot be applied to local first-class tickets sold between stations in California owing to the interstate commerce law. The ticket brokers say that this latest action of the Southern Pacific Company will seriously affect their business, for it has been upon the six months tickets that they have made their principal profits.

UNCLE SAM'S BIG FLEET.

It is Scattered All Over the Earth Protecting American Interests.

At no time within recent years has the United States government been so well represented in foreign waters by an armed naval force, nor so poorly provided for in ships at home, as at present. Three big cruisers are at Rio Janeiro, two more are on their way there, and this number will be increased to six by the monitor Miantonomoh. The gunboat Yorktown is at Callao, Peru, and the corvette Alliance has sailed to join her, from La Libertad. The old Yantic is stationed permanently at the mouth of the Rio de la Plata, charged with the duty of attending to American interests in adjacent territory.

The Ranger, which sailed from La Libertad recently for Corinto, Nicaragua, is assigned to the west coast of Central America, where revolutionary outbreaks are so frequent, while the corvette Kearsarge, now en route from New York to San Domingo to afford protection to American life and property in the threatened uprising there, will cruise about the West Indies, and, until relieved by the cruiser San Francisco, along the east coast of Central America. The Philadelphia and the Adams are at Honolulu. The Asiatic or China station, which has become so important through the hostile feeling of the Chinese toward Americans over the exclusion law, has six vessels attached to it, and it is expected that the Machias, now at Brooklyn, will sail soon to join them.

The North Atlantic or home station has nominally five, but actually only one vessel in commission to its credit, for the San Francisco is on her way to Rio, the Kearsarge is bound for San Domingo (which can hardly be called a "home" port, although within the lines of the station), and the Machias is destined for China. The dynamite cruiser Vengeance is therefore likely to be the sole war vessel left for service on the eastern coast of the United States, and the practicability of the Vengeance as an effective battleship is in serious doubt. At the navy yard at Mare Island, Cal., the old Mohican is fitting for sea service, presumably in the South Pacific. The coast defense vessel Monterey is also at Mare Island.

TEXAN HOSPITALITY.

The Passing Stranger Always Invited In and Taken Care Of.

"The latch string hangs out" expressed the hospitality of the southern frontier in the days "before the war." If a traveler rode up before the fence that separated the log cabin from the road he was greeted by "Light, stranger, light!" Without this salutation no one dismounted, but it was rarely withheld. Mr. Williams, in his recent book, "Sam Houston," thus describes the impulse of hospitality, which made every traveler a guest during the early settlement of Texas. The traveler who rode up to the front fence was instantly invited to alight. His horse was staked out or hobbled to feed on the prairie grass and the visitor sat down to exchange the news with his host. The coffee mill was set going, if there were any of the precious grains in the house, and the hopper in the hollow log to grinding the corn. The venison or bear meat was put on the coals and the ashtray laid.

After the meal and the evening pipe the visitor stretched himself on a buffalo robe on the floor with the members of the family and slept the sleep of health and fatigue. In the morning the response to any inquiry as to the charge was: "You can pay me by coming again."

The story that a certain hospitable settler used to waylay travelers on the road and compel them to visit him at the muzzle of a double-barreled shotgun was only a humorous exaggeration of the instinct for hospitality which characterized the community.

The visitor was a living newspaper, who brought the only news obtainable, and was a welcome relief to the monotony and loneliness of the wilderness.

Long Reigns.

According to the "Gotha Almanac," which has just been issued for 1894, the queen of England has reigned longer than any other ruler in the world, having ascended the throne in 1837. Next to her in point of time are Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria and Frederick, the grand duke of Baden. The monarchs who have reigned the shortest time are Prince Friedrich of Waldeck and Duke Alfred of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The oldest monarch, according to the "Almanac," is the pope, who is more than eighty-three years of age. The grand duke of Luxembourg and the king of Denmark, respectively seventy-six and seventy-five years of age, stand next to him in this regard. Grand Duke Karl Alexander, who lives in Weimar, is fourth in point of age, and Queen Victoria, with her seventy-four years, is the fifth oldest monarch. The youngest crowned heads are the little queen of the Netherlands, who is thirteen, and the king of Spain, who is seven and a half years old.

Assassination by Bomb.

Vaillant, who hurled a bomb in the chamber of deputies in Paris recently, paid only thirteen cents for the canister that contained the explosive, says the New York World. There are other deadly missiles which the anarchists have learned to make, and the ordinary cane or umbrella will conceal them. The plan is to take the cane or umbrella into the theater, store or stock exchange and lay it upon the floor or counter. The setting of it up in its natural position will cause it to explode with fatal result.

The head of the cane holds two glass vessels, oblong in shape, and each filled with an explosive liquid harmless in itself so long as it is kept away from the others. The cane is carried by the anarchist in perfect safety by being held horizontally. But when lifted up and placed against the wall the fluid in the upper bottle runs into the lower and the explosion takes place.

THE IDEAL TAILOR.

Requisites of a Perfect Worker of the Scissors and Tape Line.

The ideal merchant tailor should be a good-looking man, for the same reason that a meritorious book should be handsomely bound; he should be well dressed, because a good-looking man who is not well dressed, unless he cannot afford to dress well, seems ungrateful for the physical gifts with which nature has endowed him, and because a tailor who is not well dressed insults his trade and advertises himself as an alien to it except financially; and he should be obliging and pleasing manners, because if he is not his nature and presence will be as completely out of harmony with the character and duties of his business as the tooting of a tin fish horn in a string band.

He should be well educated, brainy, and thoroughly familiar with business usages, for unless he is he can understand the requirements of his trade no more than a bookbinder can the phlogiston of the chemist Stahl; and he should be in every thought and instinct an artist, for only an artist can appreciate, much less worthily exemplify, the grace and beauty that are possible to clothes.

He should be familiar with his trade from waxing a length of sewing silk to properly trying on a coat, for this kind of familiarity is as sure to create confidence in and respect for his ability, as too much of another kind is certain to breed contempt.

He should do business in an elegantly finished and furnished store, containing comfortable dressing-rooms and every necessary convenience for his customers, and should carry a choice if not a very large stock of goods; for his establishment as well as himself should suggest comfort, art and refinement, and be in every way in perfect harmony with the most cultivated taste of the time.

He should be, in short, a gentleman, a thorough master of his business and an artist. The ideal tailor, then, would seem to be an ideal man who is very comfortably fixed; for his trade is an ideal trade, able to exert innumerable refining influences that cannot fail to benefit mankind and give to civilization a polish and charm. — Sartorial Art Journal.
