NEW ISSUE OF BONDS

CLEVELAND WILL NOT WAIT

For Action by Congress. Negotiations Are Now Said to Be Pending With New Yorkers for Bonds at Three per Cent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—President Cleveland has decided that he will not wait for action by congress before making another issue of bonds. The Washington authorities are already in correspondence with New York bankers relative to the issue, and it is probable that the bankers will accept their proposition. Here is the proposition:

When the gold reserve falls to $75,000,000 the banks shall deposit $25,000,000 worth of gold in the subtreasury and take in return 4 per cent bonds on a 3 per cent basis.

The decline of the gold reserve to a danger point last spring forced the government to pay 3½ per cent for gold procured from the Belmont-Morgan syndicate. Credit has been re-established by that operation and the administration desires to take advantage of the better business confidence prevailing to secure the gold at the low rate of 3 per cent.

The Stanford Suit.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Leland Stanford, of California, is at the Fifth-Avenue hotel. She talked of the university founded by her husband in memory of their son, and of the government's suit which has tied up the funds formerly available for carrying on the university work. She said:

"The suit of the government against the estate of my husband, involving as it does the very life of the university founded by him, has caused me the deepest trouble and anxiety, and no one but myself knows what I have undergone in mental worry for the past two years.

"You see, I have not been my own mistress. I have been a creature at the mercy of the courts and subject to their behest day and night. Drawn-out and prolonged has been the contest. I now have hope that in three months the final decision will be rendered, and the matter be settled for all time. A favorable decision means a great deal to the people of California.

"The naming of this early date for a hearing is due to the attorney-general alone, and I am grateful to him. Had the case been obliged to await its turn on the docket, I am sure that I do not know what I would have done, as there are fully 300 cases ahead of it. If the case be decided against the estate, I shall have no alternative but to close the doors of Stanford university next June, when the college year ends. I intend before returning to California, to visit Niagara to examine into those wonderful operations which are in progress there to turn its tremendous power into a benefit to the cities surrounding it.

An Infant Incubator.

SAN FRANCISCO, 15.—An Oakland infant is being raised in an oven from which an incubator has been extemporized by Dr. F. E. McCullough, the physician who attended the mother. On Wednesday a girl was born to a young couple living at Piedmont Heights, but the little stranger did not get as fair a start in life as little ones should, having put in an appearance prematurely, and in consequence it is weakly. Dr. McCullough saw that the only hope for it was artificial nursing and hastened into town where at a stove store he picked out an oven used ordinarily for biscuits, pies, etc., and from it constructed a warm abiding place for the baby. The walls of the oven were lined with cotton and the baby was placed therein. A thermometer was attached to the top of the oven so that the attendant might readily note the temperature, and with a steady-burning lamp beneath, it is expected the baby may be nursed to strength. The incubator is watched incessantly by a nurse as the temperature must not be allowed to fall below blood heat, for fear of chilling nor to rise above that point for fear of overheating.

A Bank Failure.

SALEM, Nov. 14.—The Williams & England Banking Company closed its doors this morning, with the following notice posted: "Having reason to expect unusual demands from depositors, and in order to treat all creditors fairly and equitably, this bank is closed for the present. It is my opinion that all depositors will be paid in full, H. P. MCNARY, Cashier."

The bank was the dpository of the city treasurer, and also of the State Insurance Company, the Young Men's Investment Company, and it is said that Wells, Fargo & Company had some money in it. The belief is that all claims will be liquidated.

The assets are about $275,000 and the deposits $120,000. The bank held the principal stock of the State Insurance Company, and it is thought this company will go to the wall. Its business has been in a tottering condition for some time, and the failure was not wholly unexpected.

Suicide of Clay Humphrey.

PORTLAND, Nov. 16.—This evening Clay Humphrey, of Eugene, committed suicide at the St. Charles hotel in this city by taking laudnum.

The deceased was for several years engaged in the banking business in Eugene, in company with A. G. Hovey. Since the failure of their bank a couple of years ago, he has been speculating in hops and prunes, and it is said had lost considerable money in this way, also in gambling. It is believed he had become despondent over business reverses, and committed suicide in a fit of melancholly. He was aged about forty-two, and leaves a wife and child in Eugene.

A Quick Arrest.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Daisy Ortleib, wife of Alex Ortleib, a prominent merchant, while out walking with her six year old son, was attacked by two negroes in the residence district. She was knocked down and robbed of her purse, containing three diamond rings worth $600, a pair of earrings worth $150, $15 in money, a $90 deposit check and other valuables. Citizens and the mounted police were notified, and in half an hour had the negroes in jail with the stolen goods found on their persons.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 13, 1895.

In acknowledment of the manifold mercies vouchsafed by Almighty God to our state and people during the past year and in accordance with the proclamation of the president of the United States, and in compliance with a time honored custom, I, William P. Lord, governor of the state of Oregon, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 28th day of November, A. D., 1895, as Thanksgiving Day. Let us on that day abstain from our usual occupations, and in our homes and places of worship, offer praise and thanks to the Giver of All Good for many blessings conferred upon our people. Let us also devote it to the enjoyment of hospitality and the reunion of families; to the doing of charitable deeds and strengthening the bonds of friendship; to awakening sentiment of patriotism and respect for social order; to cultivating a high sense of duty, and to relieving the wants of the needy and distressed.

Done at the capitol, in Salem, Oregon, this 13th day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1895.

W. P. LORD, Governor.
By the governor:
H. R. KINCAID,
Secretary of State.

The State Insurance Co. Failure.

As a sequel to the bank failure in Salem, the following announcement was posted on the door of the State Insurance office at the closing hour by Edmond C. Giltner, manager.

"Owing to the closing of the Williams & England Banking Company's bank, in which our funds are kept, and to lack of available funds to meet the claims now becoming due, and in order to protect the interests of policy holders, the State Insurance Company will suspend business and ask for the appointment of a receiver."

The insurance company filed an application in the circuit court for the appointment of a receiver, and E. C. Giltner, the secretary and manager was appointed.

The liabilities of the State Insurance Company, aside from the capital stock, amount to $175,000; assets, $374,000.

The bank was not one of general commercial depsit, and will not affect general business of the city.—Ex.

Her First Appearance.

Mary Anderson de Navarro in her stage career memoirs, which will be published in The Ladies' Home Journal (the opening chapters in the December issue), gives the public a most interesting and entertaing view of the trials and hardships she successfuly combated in following out her conviction that the stage presented to her the opportunity for a splendid career. She exultantly refers to her debut in Louisville, Kentucky, on Saturday evening, November 27, 1872, upon which occasion the "tall shy and awkward" girl of sixteen interpreted Shakespeare's love-lorn "Juliet." The performance was arranged upon two days' notice—time for but a single rehearsal—and the aspiring Kentucky girl was jubilant when the theatre and a stock company were offered her, upon condition that she play without pay. Her happiness, however, was not unclouded, for of the event she writes with touching pathos: "That Thursday," (the day that her first appearance was arranged) "was one of the happiest days of all my life, filled as it was with the brightest hope and anticipation. Only one black cloud hung over it: the thought of Nonie and my grandparents who were all very dear to me. Had I known then that I would never see the face of the former, that he would die, my mother and I far away from him, and that almost until his death he would refuse to forgive or see me unless I abandoned the stage-life which he thought so injurious—nay sinfull—I would even then have renounced what was within my grasp. This estrangement saddened many years of my life, and has cast a shadow over all the otherwise bright and happy memories of him who was the father, friend and playmate of our childhood days."

Mrs. de Navarro evidently did not suffer from stage fright, the crushing terror of degutantes, for she writes that she stood impatiently waiting for her "cue" to go on. At last it came. "Then, in a flash, I was on the stage, conscious only of a wall of yellow light before me, and a burst of prolonged applause." The performance was filled with rather depressing incidents; one of the players forgot his lines and had to be prompted by the youthful star; "Romeo" neglected to bring his dagger, and "Juliet" had to perform her dispatch with a hairpin, while the lamp that hung in "Juliet's tomb, fell and badly burned her hands and arms. "Despite of these," she writes, "the night was a success, and I knew that my stage career had begun in earnest.

Northwest's Timber Resources.

Washington and Oregon have more standing timber than all the rest of the United States put together; they have more than ten times as much as Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota (the white pine states) combined; more than 400 times as much as the great lumber state of Maine, and more than 600 times as much as New York.

The nine largest lumber states of the South have only one-third as these two forest kings of the Northwest. The woods of Washington and Oregon would make a girdle 'round the earth three miles wide. If all the other forests of the Union were to go up in smoke these two states could meet the present demand until forests were regrown. At the present rate of consumption, and not allowing for new growth, the forests of the United States will be exhausted 120 years. The woods of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will be exhausted within ten years. Then Washington and Oregon will be the chief source of supply for the whole Union.

The prediction is made by an authority that for both quality and quantity, the rest of the world will look to Oregon for its chief source of supply and this supply is certain to steadily become more valuable in a few years. Therefore, the lumber industry may be fairly said to be in its infancy as yet.

Oregon Ahead.

Mr. J. C. Mackey, of Detroit, one of the best posted timber men on the coast, who has been through the Olympic range between Puget Sound and the ocean looking up the timber lands, having just returned from the trip, was in Albany Thursday on his way home. He traversed the entire region, and speaking of the lately reported volcanoes, says he saw them and that at present they are inactive, but that several years ago they must have been in a state of eruption as the track of the burning lava can be plainly traced on one of them. He says that Linn and Marion counties, in this state, leads the entire coast in the extent and value of forest lands.—Ex.
