It was Mr. Greenbaum's intention to go to Portland and enter a hospital, but died about an hour after reaching Lebanon and will be buried here today. He has no relatives in this country. Mr. Atkinson requests us to say that he feels very grateful for the assistance the kind people of Lebanon rendered him while here.

Obituary.

Mrs. Dulcena Ridgway, nee Fletcher was born in Montgomery county, Ky. June 28, 1820, and died in Buckley, Washington, May 2, 1896, attaining the good old age of 76 years.

When 8 years old, she moved with her parents to Ill. On Feb. 16, 1835, she was happily married to James Ridgway, who for many years was an honorable member of this community. She came with her husband to Oregon in 1852 and settled in this vicinity. Here the greater part of her life was spent. She was esteemed and loved by everyone who knew her, and her memory is still sacred and fragrant. When only 18 years old while in the bloom of young womanhood she gave her heart to God and joined the Methodist church. Her consecration and devotion were sublime, her faith was vigorous, and her life was pure. When the angel of death came, she was ready. She died in great triumph.

Her funeral services were held in the Methodist church, in this city, in the presence of a large number of old friends and acquaintances. After a few brief remarks by the pastor, all that was mortal of Sister Dulcena Ridgway was borne to the silent tomb and laid by the side of her husband, there to await the resurrection morn.

In this city, a chittum wood cane with silver head. Any one finding it will be suitably rewarded. Leave it at the EXPRESS office or my office.

D. G. HARRON.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

The Tariff, and Not the Money Question, Is the Issue.

A well attended and interesting meeting was held Monday night under the management of the Republican club. Messrs. Hartmus, Duncan and Somers, were the speakers. Mr. Hartmus spoke briefly on the political issues, but dwelt upon the tariff, and labored to prove that hard times had always been and is now the result of a low tariff. He didn't think the money question had much to do with it. The gentleman showed some feeling because he had been charged with being a carpet-bagger. He went into a lengthy and tedious account of the republican primary at Lyons to show that a disgruntled citizen of that vicinity had made the charge because the son of the citizen of Lyons had not been nominated for constable by the republicans. He claimed to have been a resident of this county for several years. That he sometimes spent a month or two in Salem and Portland, being a widower and his children being away, and had been postmaster under Harrison in Marion county, but with all of these temporary changes of residence he had always considered himself a voter at Lyons, and that he paid taxes on land in Linn county, and was therefore not a carpet-bagger. He was not particularly anxious to go to the legislature, but was anxious to have the republican ticket elected in order to instill hope and energy in the hearts and minds of the St. Louis convention.

Judge Duncan followed Mr. Hartmus. He was in favor of protection and was a devout believer in McKinleyism. He thought the principles of protection should be narrowed down to even the towns we live in. That we should patronize our home merchants, lawyers and doctors. That if he was caught in Portland in a shabby suit of clothes, he would wait until he returned to Albany to buy one. In fact, he was a great friend of his own town and believed in protecting its interests against the world, so great was his faith in protection. After giving his views on these principles of republicanism the speaker read the figures he had prepared from the county records and claimed that the administration had nothing to lose by comparison with former administrations. That he had been fair, honest and economical. He stoutly defended the present officials and was quite certain that no future administration could do any better. He thought that his official household was worthy of re-election and could not imagine why his opponents should think that the people's money had been too liberally spent. The officials were entitled to their money as he naturally supposed that they had not idled their time away although he had not thought it necessary to keep a strict watch over their movements. He had probably made mistakes, but anybody was liable to do that. He did not wish to take up too much time by going any further into the alleged extravagances of county officials. His address was well received and he took his seat amidst the cheers of the audience.

Mr. Somers made a forcible speech and indignantly denied that he had slandered the populist members of the legislature. He quoted freely from the records of the legislature, to show that the populist members, in proportion to their numbers, had cast more votes in favor of objectionable measures and fewer votes for their repeal than the republicans had done. That the populists, and not the republicans, favored big appropriation, and were deserving of a share of the "cussing" to be given. The speaker said he wished to be fair with the populists, but that their record was very bad, even worse than the republicans'. He solemnly declared he would not vote for Dolph, but was a Mitchell man. He said there were two kinds of silver men, one the republicans, who had an honest faith in silver, the other, the populist, who shouted for silver as a step toward flat money, and were really no friend to the white metal. The speaker seemed to be sincere in his quotations and offered to verify them by the books. His argument made a strong impression on the audience and he has put the populists in a very unenviable position. The EXPRESS never dreamed that the populists were guilty of one half of all these things. Surely their speakers are able to successfully explain these matters. If not, then Mr. Somers has got Mr. Smith where the wool is short.

DEMOCRATS AT SCIO.

The Town Was Out in Full Force to Hear the Speaking.

SCIO, Or., May 4, 1896.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS:

There was democratic speaking here on Saturday. The rain came down in torrents, but the people came by the dozens, foot, horseback, and in wagons and the town was out in full force. Mr. T. J. Munkers presided with dignity. Mr. McElmurry spoke first and made a fine impression as an honest advocate of the people. Mr. Garland was then introduced and was received with much enthusiasm. He spoke about thirty minutes and gave a plain, unprejudiced and polite statement of county affairs, criticizing in a gentlemanly way the official acts of the present administration. Mr. Garland, who was not previously well known in this community, impressed the audience as a fair and impartial man, well qualified to attend the affairs of the county. He made a fine impression and won many friends.

Mr. M. A. Miller was next introduced and soon had the undivided attention of the audience. He showed the insincerity of the republican speakers who tried to cover up the main issues by yelling tariff. He proved that the money question was the issue. That the democrats had declared for free silver in unmistakable words. He showed that the republicans had openly or secretly aided and abetted the corporations, trusts and monopolies for thirty years, while the democratic leaders, with but few exceptions, had always stood firm for the masses. He showed conclusively that the issue of bonds was the secret aim of the republican bosses. Mr. Miller has risen rapidly as a clear and eloquent advocate of the people and is recognized as a leading democrat of the state.

Mr. Watson, the democratic nominee for the legislature, defused his views and was in perfect accord with the democratic county platform. He showed that the republican leaders of the state were tied to the Portland ring. That the people were powerless in their hands. That the republican voters were as honest as any other, but their leaders in this and other counties could not loosen the hold of the ring bosses. He was in favor of strict economy and would guard the interests of the people with a ceaseless vigilance.

Mr. Watson impressed his hearers with his integrity and ability. He will poll a very large vote here irrespective of party. The democrats have awakened to their duty and Scio will return its old time vote.

DEMOCRAT. SODAVILLE HILLS.

ED. EXPRESS:—The oppressive storms in this locality have to a great extent suppressed public operations.

Vegetable producers are still lying on the shelf awaiting the anticipated sunshine. Should it fall to show its shining face a few days longer, beans, corn etc., will be pretty scarce in this region.

Occasionally a gold bug up from Albany hunting for office and trying to apologize for the McFeron-Needham combination, presents himself upon the rostrum. The old stand by republicans are not in favor of monopoly and cannot, nor will not be hoodwinked into the parade with these fine haired would be leaders of the republican party. Their highest ambition is to feed their own gluttonous and craving appetites regardless of people or party interests. Their free cigars and other campaign funds will no doubt be liberally lavished upon the voters of Linn county until the first Monday in June, at which time they will see the folly of their ways.

Last but not least. The thing that created the most wonderful surprise of all; Judge Duncan, after being tailed off by the combination machine and perchance a man, Dr. Cole, of Scio, whose honor and dignity would not permit him to thus be branded with such political trickery being the product of the machine for county judge, withdrew his name as the nominee. To the belligerent this was a shock of no small momentum.

The machine was readjusted and turned once around and put the tail onto Judge Duncan and now he is a full fledged candidate for county judge of Linn county at the tail end of the McFeron-Needham combination ticket where fate is as certain and where prospects for office are as hopeless as theirs.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J.
