Editor - and - Proprietor

Men are just like hogs, however distasteful this may sound to the hog, says an exchange. When a hog get an ear of corn every other hog will trot along behind him and squeal and beg and whine and be ready for a bite, but just let the front hog get caught with his head fast in a crack and every son of a sow will jump on him and tear him to pieces. Just so with men. As long as a man is prosperous and has money he can't keep friends off with a baseball bat. The moment he is unfortunate and his wealth is gone he is not only snubbed by his former alleged friends, but they at once begin to do him all the harm possible. When a man starts up grade the world falls behind and pushes. When he starts down grade the world steps to one side and greases the track.

HON. THOS. H. TONGUE has been declared the congressman from this jurisdiction with a plurality of 72 votes. The populists claim the election of Vanderburg, and claim they have been counted out of about 600 votes and are talking of contesting the election. The Express has no hand in the fight and does not propose to take side. The only thing we want to see is a fair deal, and if Tongue has the most votes, we say hurrah for Tongue! But if Vanderburg has the plurality we say send him.

MAYOR-ELECT Pennoyer has written to a Salem friend: "If the policy I advocated had been adopted, and Vanderburg had withdrawn from the field when the democrats offered to pull off Myers, and Judge Waldo made the congressional nominee, he would have had such a majority over Tongue that he could not have been counted out. No other is to blame for the election of Tongue than the populists themselves."

A FRIEND of Gen. Harrison says that a newspaper offered the ex-President $10,000 to go to St. Louis and write his impressions of the national convention from day to day. The editor gave him the option of writing as much or as little as he pleased, it being understood, however, that he should send to the newspaper each day not less than 100 words, to be published over his signature.

His late returns elect Tongue by less than 100 plurality and Ellis by about 300. The populists drew from the democrats heavily in both districts, and in the second Bennett was defeated by gold democrats going to Northrup and about 3,000 to Quinn, silver democrats coming to the conclusion that the contest was between Northrup, Ellis and Quinn.

In spite of the scarcity of the democratic voters the next city council will contain a larger number of democrats than usual—owing to the nomination of exceptionally good and popular men, remarks the Portland Welcome.

The Evening Tribune, of Portland, a neat, newsy publication, has made its appearance. Fred A. Dunham is managing editor, and the policy of the paper will be to advocate the cause of silver.

DOUGLAS COUNTY cast, next to Multnomah county, the largest democratic vote in the state for supreme judge, and the largest vote for congressman in the first district.

It is said that Mayor Pennoyer will make Martin Quinn, the late populist candidate for congress, superintendent of the street cleaning department of Portland.

The democrats elected two state senators, Dufur, of Wasco, and Daly, of Klamath, giving them two holdovers in the session of 1899.

The Astoria strike gave the militia boys a splendid opportunity for a picnic down the Columbia river at the expense of the taxpayers.

A Clubbing Offer.

A great many of our readers in Linn county like to take the Weekly Oregonian. We have made arrangements whereby we can furnish it at a reduction from the regular price to those who want both the Express and the Oregonian. The regular price of the Oregonian is $1.50 per year, and of the Express $1.50 when in advance. We will furnish both for $2 per year in advance, a saving of one dollar to the subscriber. The Oregonian gives all the general news of the country once a week, and the Express gives all the local news once a week, which will make a most excellent news service for the moderate sum of $2 per year. Those who are at present subscribers of the Express must pay in all arrears, and one year in advance to obtain this special price.

HE QUESTIONED THE CAPTAIN.

New York Traveler Violates Salt Water Etiquette. "Once, on an ocean steamer," said a traveler to a New York Sun writer, we had a heated shaft bearing or something of that sort, so that the engine stopped for five or six hours. I had often read and heard about how the captain was the great mogul aboard ship; how about all things pertaining to the affairs of the ship he held aloof and must not be approached by the passengers, and that it was a sort of violation of the unwritten rules of the sea for a passenger to ask the captain anything. And there may be some reason in all this. If one passenger might ask him forty might, and surely the commander of the ship ought not to be unnecessarily disturbed by useless questions. We had been lying there three or four hours waiting. There was no danger whatever, but it was a delay and an incident of interest, and, of course, all the passengers talked about nothing else. The common information was that the delay was due to a heated bearing. "I was standing on the upper deck by the door to the main companionway leading to the deck below. The captain came along the upper deck from the after part of the ship and went below by that companionway. He must pass within a foot of me, and, under the circumstances, it did not seem like a violently unreasonable breach of salt water etiquette to ask him what was the matter, which I did. A passenger who stood on the other side of the doorway looked at me with the amused smile of an older traveler. The captain said nothing; he simply passed on, to all outward appearance quite unconscious of my question or even my presence."

"I think she is a two-faced creature," said one of the girls indignantly. "Oh, no," returned Miss Cordial. "If she had two faces she would never use this one."
