WHO IS THE ANARCHIST?

The gold bug papers are taking delight in denouncing Bryan as an anarchist. It is known that Herr Most, the leading anarchist of America, is out for McKinley. The strong-hold of gold bugism, Massachusetts, furnishes the following, clipped from the World:

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 27.—Rev. Herbert N. Casson preached in Labor church today on the subject: "Who is the Anarchist—Bryan or Hanna?"

His sermon was prefaced by the reading of James Creelman's dispatch to the New York World from Cleveland some weeks ago on the administration of McKinley as Governor of Ohio, in which it was shown that he nearly bankrupted the state and was the friend of corporations, and of Hanna's labor record.

"The real anarchist," said the preacher, "is he who seeks to violate the laws of nature for the exclusive benefit of a small faction of the nation. During the present campaign the epithet 'Anarchist' has been hurled at some of the noblest and most capable men that this generation has produced. Bryan is caricatured, as Lincoln was, as a highwayman, as a bomb-thrower, and in a thousand different ways. Whether his views are correct or not, who can deny that he is a citizen of whom any nation might boast? Compare him with the gagged, imprisoned individual who trembles in his mortgaged house lest Hanna may foreclose; compare him with the unfortunate Napoleon who has already met his Wellington and surrendered his convictions, and it is plain to see which best represents the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

"The law-breaking, aggressive spirit of monopoly has found a perfect embodiment in Mark Hanna. He towers above McKinley and above the republican party—the modern Bluebeard, who slays his workers instead of his wives. When McKinley was Governor of Ohio Hanna was his guardian and dictated legislation from the Governor's office. Therefore, it is, turning to Bryan's opponent, we look not at the servant, but at the master; not at McKinley the most pitiable figurehead in public life today, but at Hanna, his owner and tyrant.

"Give Hanna four years of power and he will paint the White House black. He will discover that it is cheaper to abolish manhood suffrage than to buy votes. If Hanna's servant is elected president prepare yourself for the worst. It will be the reign of King Stork among the frogs. Hanna's enormous corruption fund will be recovered from your wages. He is now trying to transform Old Glory into the flag of an auctioneer so that he can hang it on the Statue of Liberty and advertise to the money lenders of Europe: 'For sale, America.'

"No one can call Hanna un-American. No A. P. A. can blame the Pope in this case. Hanna is a domestic product. He is one of the manufactured articles that McKinley wants to protect."

IT IS WELL.

The present campaign is not one of partisanship. It is not a campaign in which the political boss is supposed to gather up the partisan whip, and lash veterans back into the ranks. When, for instance, the republican convention at St. Louis declared for a single gold standard it departed from old time republican principles. To take up a product of the United States, and by legislation increase the price of that product gave birth to, moulded destiny and made history for the republican party. To increase by legislation the price of every manufactured product, and to increase the wages of labor has been heard proclaimed from stump and platform in every political campaign as the avowed mission of the republican party. At St. Louis the republican party declared in favor of enhancing the price of gold, and instead of extending protection to the great silver mining industry, absolutely resolved to discriminate against it. The convention was willing to protect the wages of those who labor in gold mines, but it refused to extend aid and comfort to the equally deserving class who dig and delve in the country's silver mines. That act was hostile to the protective idea, and inasmuch was un-republican. How, therefore, can any republican be expected in this campaign to shout "protection" of one of the greatest industries of the Nation?

And the democrats, they are not heeding the swish of the party lash. The corporation attorneys, the railroad managers and owners, the eastern bankers and bondholders, as well as wealthy classes in all sections, who hitherto affiliated with the democratic party, are refusing to support Mr. Bryan. Indeed, a rump convention of alleged democrats made up of this sort of people has just met in Indianapolis and placed a third ticket in the field for the avowed purpose of defeating a man from among the people. All this means that the present campaign is not one of partisanship, but of principle. The people are to vote on the financial question, and it is alleged on both sides to be a question of tremendous importance. It means that among the masses as well as among the classes, the ballot this year is to be used with small regard for the dictates of former party affiliations and regardless of the selfish wishes of party bosses.

McKINLEY BILL AND WAGES.

The McKinley tariff law went into effect Oct. 6, 1890, and the Wilson-Gorman bill Aug. 28, 1894. The first effect of the passage of the McKinley bill was a general reduction in wages in protected industries. The World in 1892 printed several thousand instances of strikes and lock-outs in protected industries that followed the enactment. Yesterday the junior organ of the protectionists continued the tale of disaster to workmen under the McKinley bill by publishing the following as the experience of merely one protected firm—the Cambria Iron Company:

LOSS TO WORKINGMEN.
There were $888,494 less wages paid in 1893 than in 1892.
There were $1,506,410 less wages paid in 1894 than 1892.

The loss in wages in two years amounted to $2,394,814.

LOSS TO COMPANY.
The value of the product of the Cambria Iron Company in 1893 was $2,064,000 less than in 1892.

The value of the product of 1894 was $4,916,200 less than in 1892.

The shrinkage in two years amounted to $6,980,200.—N. Y. World.

The Portland Tribune says: Late last week a clerk in the employ of the firm of Goldsmith & Lowenberg, evidently acting under orders of a superior, asked all the employees to sign a paper pledging themselves to support and vote for McKinley. Some of the men demurred, but they soon found it was for their best interests to affix their signatures to the document. Two only absolutely refused to sign, and told the young man who was circulating the paper that they intended to vote for Bryan.

One of the men, a tinsmith by occupation, says he is momentarily expecting a request for his resignation. "I do not care if I do lose my position," he said this morning: "I am an American citizen, and I do not intend to sell my birthright for a paltry salary."

Hon. J. B. Montgomery, one of the ablest and brainiest republicans in Oregon, has joined the Bryan procession.

Overalls with aprons or without, 50c a pair at the Racket Store. Also have just received a large amount of new suits. Don't fail to see them.

In making a canvass of the business firms in North Yambill politically, it was found that they stood 15 for Bryan and free coinage, and 3 for McKinley and "the present gold standard." And none of the 15 firms are scared of a flood of 50-cent dollars.—Record.

Whenever there is a change made in the fire or police department, a howl goes up through the Oregonian. Any one that will take the trouble to look over the files of that paper prior to the June election will conclude that the removals are in accordance with the demands of that paper, and are not done any too soon, and had Mr. Cohen been elected, every Frank man would have been bounced long ago, and the Oregonian would have endorsed the act.—Dispatch.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system while entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle. HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Mother and Three Children Burned to Death.

SUMMIT, Or., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Thrasher, wife of Tom Savage, living two miles east of here, left Mr. Thrasher's house about dark on Oct. 4, for home two hundred yards off. She was seen by one of Thrasher's boys at the house about dark splitting kindling. Another Thrasher boy passed at eight o'clock when there was no light, and she had evidently retired. Yesterday morning Bert James found the house burned. He called the Thrashers. They examined other parts of the premises and found horses in the barn. Fearing the fate of the woman they sent to neighbors for tidings and help. On arrival of the justice he impanelled a jury for the inquest. The woman's body was found near the foot of where the bed had been, her limbs and arms burned off, her neck and trunk drawn out of shape, bones protruding and only skull of head left. An infant within arms length was burned to a crisp, on spring mattress two boys were bound, one with his arms across his brother. They were evidently smothered before burning as there was no sign of a struggle. An axe lay in the middle of the floor in living room with bed and bodies. The stove was in the kitchen. The jury's verdict was death by fire, cause unknown.

Very Insane.

Mrs. Celia M. Hart of this county, was declared insane Monday forenoon, upon examination of Dr. Clara M. Davidson, committed to the asylum and taken there on the afternoon train. On Aug. 24, she gave birth to a child, and shortly afterwards was attacked and has gradually grown worse, being very wild and uncontrollable at times; breaking furniture, threatening to commit murder, etc. During her examination Mr. J. E. Tillotson entered the judges room. Mrs. Hart's eyes flashed and she attacked the gentleman physically and madly. Of course he was glad to escape whole. Good treatment may restore her reason.—Democrat.
