PEOPLE IN GLASS HOUSES.

The assertion is often made by the gold bug press and speakers, that the respectability and intelligence of the country favor Mr. McKinley, and that the lawless, bankrupt and anarchist element are the only supporters of Mr. Bryan. That the debt paying, industrious and honest part of our population are for McKinley and the rest are for Mr. Bryan. In fact, republican speakers are advertised to address the people of Lebanon on "the anarchism and sectionalism of Bryan." This is untrue and those who make the assertion know it is false. There never was an election, where all the honesty was on one side. There never can be. The "sectionalism" of Mr. Bryan is ridiculous. What section does he favor? Where, in any of his utterances can "sectionalism" be pointed out? The "anarchism" of Mr. Bryan is a falsehood manufactured for the occasion. Where has he ever said or done one thing that would justify such a charge? This talk comes with but poor grace from Mark Hanna, the recognized champion of monopolies, all of whom are opposing Mr. Bryan, and zealously aiding Mr. McKinley. Where stands Herr Most, the recognized leader of anarchists? He is an avowed supporter of the gold standard and its nominees. Is all the respectability of the country monopolized by Wall street and its millionaires? If so, then Mr. McKinley is the candidate of the respectability of the country. But if the laborer, mechanic and farmer are entitled to claim respectability, then Mr. Bryan has some respectable people as supporters. Our own little community should be a fair sample. Can our republican friends claim all the respectability of the two Lebanon precincts? By no means. No party can claim all the honesty and respectability of their, or any other community. McKinley buttons, as well as Bryan buttons, are worn by unprincipled men. Let us be sensible and concede to each other what belongs to each.

DRUMMERS.

A great blow is being made that the commercial travelers are solid for McKinley. The following, clipped from the St. Louis Republic, will be of interest:

Resolved, That we, the true traveling salesmen, who have studied the financial problem from an unbiased standpoint, and who are from both parties, emphatically deny the assertion made by the Chicago delegation of traveling men, who on their recent visit to McKinley pledged the entire support of the Western traveling salesmen to the republican ticket; and we further declare their "inability to deliver the goods."

A correspondent to an Iowa paper says: "What the country needs is not more money, but an extension of banking facilities. A clearing house system could be devised which would be practicable for individuals as well as banks. Certificates of indebtedness could be exchanged and balances only be paid in money, or its representatives. If gold is really too scarce and too dear, such a system would lessen the demand and make it cheap, while values of commodities would assume natural relations to each other. The settlement of accounts would be greatly facilitated and business would move along more briskly."

How about the extra expense of running the clearing houses? It would seem to us a cheaper method to make more money, by free coinage of silver, and then no clearing houses for individuals would be needed.

Overalls with aprons or without, 50c a pair at the Backet Store. Also have just received a large amount of new clothing. Don't fail to see them.

The Express takes pleasure in acknowledging a receipt of a copy of the Lebanon Truth, a weekly paper published here during the campaign by the republican club in the interest of the gold standard ticket. We take no stock in its arguments, but freely acknowledge it to be a most creditable journal. Dr. J. A. Lamberson, the editor in chief, is a worthy representative of the republican party, and wears with becoming modesty the burden of honors heaped upon him by his political associates. Mr. W. M. Brown, a talented lawyer of this place, and Mr. Frank Nickerson, a forcible writer, are associate editors in the management of the paper.

Bear in mind that every voter who wishes to vote for Bryan and silver must cast his ballot for N. L. Butler, E. Hofer, Harry Watkins and W. H. Spangh, the fusion electors. Don't make a mistake and vote for the "national democrats"—the traitors who are trying to assist McKinley by running that poor old back number bolter, Palmer, for president.

If the gold standard is a good thing, why do the republicans want to change it and have free coinage of silver by international agreement? What is the use of changing from a good thing? The declaration of international bimetallism in the republican platform, is merely a subterfuge to catch votes.

The hop-raiser has a protective tariff of 8 cents a pound, but he has the hardest kind of work to get 5 cents a pound for his crop. Why does not the patriotic McKinleyite give the producer at least the duty? The tariff protects some people, but not the producer. The blessing falls to the lot of the rich manufacturer and monopolist.

Cassius M. Idleman, $3,000, W. S. Duniway $2,500, total $18,000 per day at public expense, out lecturing for sound money, says the Salem Journal. And it is since learned that Bob Hendricks, superintendent of the state reform school, has joined the speaking aggregation.

Bryan supporters are called "popocrats." This does not sound very pretty, but it is just as melodious as "Hanna crats."

The imported gold bug orators consume almost one half their time in explaining why they flopped from silver to gold, but they forget to give what is often the true reason, their self interest. For instance, Senator Mitchell has convinced the state that he has flopped in order to help him to the United States senate. Many change their position by reason of an honest change of convictions. But, if the truth was known, selfish ambition actuates many of our prominent men.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system while entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

SLANG WORDS AND PHRASES.

The Origin of "Outsider," "You're a Daisy" and "Too Thin."

"Dun" is a word whose meaning is now known to everyone who understands the English language. About the beginning of the century, says the Boston Post, a constable in England named John Dun became celebrated as a first-class collector of bad accounts. When others would fail to collect a bad debt, Dun would be sure to get it out of the debtor. It soon passed into a current phrase that when a person owed money and did not pay when asked, he would have to be "Dunned." Hence it soon became common in such cases to say: "You will have to dun So-and-so if you wish to collect your money."

Until the nomination of Franklin Pierce for the presidency the word "outsider" was unknown. The committee on credentials came to make its report and could not get into the hall because of the crowd of people who were not members of the convention. The chairman of the convention asked if the committee was ready to report, and the chairman of the committee answered: "Yes, Mr. Chairman, but the committee is unable to get inside on account of the crowd and pressure of the outsiders." The newspaper reporters took up the word and used it.

"You are a daisy," is used by Dickens in "David Copperfield" in the sense of calling a person a daisy in the way to express admiration and at the same time to laugh at one's credulity. Steerforth says to young Copperfield: "David, my daisy, you are so innocent of the world. Let me call you my daisy, as it is so refreshing to find one in these corrupt days so innocent and unsophisticated. My dear Copperfield, the daisies of the field are not fresher than you."

"Too thin" was given currency by Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, in the United States congress in 1870. Some members had made a reply to Mr. Stephens, and the latter had his chair wheeled out in the aisle, and said in that shrill, piping voice which always commanded silence: "Mr. Speaker, the gentleman's arguments are gratuitous assertions made up of whole cloth—and cloth, sir, so gauzy and thin that it will not hold water. It is entirely too thin, sir."

AMERICAN FOOD AND COOKING.

Some Remarkable Statements in a Recent French Review Not Taken Out by Facts.

The ignorance of French writers who treat of matters relating to the United States is generally very much in evidence. One of them in a recent issue of the Revue Scientifique, writing upon the subject of our edible turtles and incidentally of cookery in this country, makes the statement that green turtles are taken in the neighborhood of New York—from there to Florida. He also asserts that it is only in ailments of aquatic origin that our food products are superior to those of Europe, that our fishes are abundant and generally good, but that our culinary treatment of them is inferior. As regards our meats, poultry and game, the Frenchman dismisses them as little worthy of attention. Of the first two it may be conceded, says the New York Sun, that the average quality is not so high as in France. His estimate of our game is probably based upon the condition in which it reaches European markets, where it is sold in large quantities in the close season here. This estimate is not a fair one, inasmuch as almost all of our game which goes abroad has, previous to shipment, been held for months in cold-storage warehouses, to its deterioration both in quality and flavor. As regards our native cookery, the French writer asserts that there is not much in it to tempt a European particularly, and especially a Frenchman. While this may be true concerning the country at large, an exception must be made in favor of the native cookery of Maryland and eastern Virginia and that of the creole population of Louisiana, which, within its compass, is second to none. The fact must not be lost sight of that in the last decade culinary skill with us has made great advances, the results of which would not be apparent to a superficial foreign observer. A case in point illustrative of our progress in this direction is offered in the alimentary department of our exchanges for woman's work. Within the restrictions which it imposes, the edibles there on sale, the work of native feminine bread winners, are promptly bought by discriminating purchasers, so far as they are superior to foreign preparations of a similar character.

Man-Eating Wild Men.

In the celebrated "Travels" of Edward Webb (1830) are dozens of stories that would make Joe Mulhatten turn green with envy. One of the most celebrated of these is his story of the wild men of Prester John, which is as follows: "In the court of Prester John there is a wild man, and another in the high street of Constantinople, whose allowance is every day a quarter of raw mutton; and when any man dyeth for some notorious offence, then they are allowed every day a quarter of man's flesh. These wild men are chained fast to a post every day, the one in Prester John's court, the other in the high street of Constantinople, each of them having a mantle about their shoulders, and all over their bodies they have wonderful long hairs. They are chained by the neck lest they speedily devour all that cometh within their reach."

Mechanical Curiosities.

Darius L. Goff, of Pawtucket, E. I., who has a fancy for mechanical curiosities, possesses a clock that never runs down. Through an ingenious contrivance it is kept wound by the simple opening and closing of the front door of the house. Electrical appliances, operated by the running of the clock, raise the gas jet in the hall at dusk and lower it at bedtime; ring an early rising bell for the servants, a later one for the family, and an hour later the breakfast bell, and when the hour is struck musical cathedral chimes respond in the chambers of the house.

Campaign Song.

BY JOE STEWART.

(Tune of Willie Branson.)

'Tis of a noble statesman, A story I will tell; His name is Willie Bryan, In Nebraska he does dwell.

Chorus— Bryan's all the go, Bryan's all the go, Bold, gay and dauntless stood, Young Bryan's all the go.

One day he met a milling Bill, By the name of David Hill. They talked the money question Till David got his fill. And then he went to the corner His fingers for to knead, And shouts up to heaven To nominate the boy.

It was on the king's highway, One day as willing he sat down, He met old Bill McKinley One mile outside of town, And Willie knowing his features, And thus to him did say, "You are out for gold and protection; You cannot win the day."

And now we hear of something else, It's called the McKinley bill, It passed both houses of congress Against the people's will, And now they are trying to raise it again To drown the money cry, But before they beat young Bryan They will fold their arms and die.

McKinley's wife went down in town Some medicine for to buy, And when she returned and saw old Bill She began to weep and cry, "O, hand to me that silver tea And let me apply it quick, For I tell you, my gold companions, Old Bill is very sick."

For fear the silver tea alone Will not restore his health; We will give him a dose of free trade To purify his breath, And then we will shake him up again And hear the people yell, "Protection and single gold standard Is going to—H—!"
