

Ladies' Long Coats.

I have a lot of long coats made of good wool cloth which I intend to close out. They are old styles, of course, but for many purposes they are better than a Mackintosh and will cost you half the money.

They cost the manufacturers $5.00, $10.00 and $15.00.

They are offered at $1.50 to $2.50 each

A Broken Leg.

Tuesday morning a work train was started out on the O. C. & E. to the front to clear the track as far as possible.

The train ran slow over the track at the bridge over the South Santiam, and Conductor McErlane, with Messrs. Allen McClain and Bob Sellers walked ahead of the train to view the safety of the track.

Arrived at this end of the bridge Conductor McErlane stepped to the left to let the train pull up and McClain and Sellers on the other side. The conductor jumped on as the engine moved slowly forward, but the other two failed to get on, and when the car came opposite them it was so wide it crowded them off.

Mr. McClain fell upon the rocks below and the other man clung to the foot rail of the trestle until he was pulled up. Mr. McClain was very badly bruised and sustained a compound fracture of his leg below the knee.

The train immediately returned to the city, bringing him to his home. Dr. G. W. Weston was summoned and reduced the fracture. Luckily Mr. McClain carries an accident policy which will bring him in a stated sum, and is also a member of the Knights of Pythias and will be entitled to benefits from that order.

No blame can be attached to anyone in the case, it being a purely accidental affair. After bringing him in, the work train pulled up the road to Kiphart's bluff and finished removing the landslide there and then came back to Albany.—Herald.

Mr. McClain is a brother-in-law of Miss Fannie Griggs, of this city.

John Scanland Gets Three Years.

The U. S. grand jury, which met in Portland last week, found a true bill against John Scanland, of this city, John was arraigned in court and pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for Dec. 2.

But on Tuesday of this week he changed his mind and withdrew his former plea and plead guilty. His counsel asked the court, in passing sentence, to consider the youthfulness of the prisoner.

Judge Bellingher said that he would give all these things their due weight. Considering the prisoner's youth, however, and his plea, the court sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary, and to pay a fine of $100.

"Three years," gasped Scanland, with a look of mingled astonishment and horror, which showed that he had been anticipating something not so severe, and he sank limply into his seat. He will be taken to the penitentiary to commence his term as soon as convenient.

The Salem Mill.

R. H. Coshow returned Sunday from Waterloo and Thos. Kay, manager of the woolen mills in this city and Waterloo, is expected Monday. The dyeing and finishing plant at the Linn county mill has been moved from there; one carload of the material having already arrived here.

The plant will be erected in this city and will be run in connection with the local mill. The Waterloo mill will manufacture cloth as heretofore; wool will be carded, spun and woven there, after which it will be sent here to be finished—one set of finishers handling the output of both mills—and will be placed on the market from this city.

The finishers and dyers, who went to the other mill from Salem after the fire of a year ago which destroyed the mill here, have returned and will be at work in the new factory as soon as the finishing department is put in shape.—Statesman.

The train on the Lebanon and Albany branch has a new schedule which went into effect yesterday. On the new time card the Lebanon train arrives here as follows: Morning train arrives at 8:20 and leaves at 8:50. Evening train arrives at 6:20, leaves at 6:50. The old schedule will go back into effect as soon as the bridge is rebuilt across the Santiam.

Last Saturday night some sneak thief broke into Mr. D. Andrews' store by taking out a panel in the back door and raising the bar that held the door. Mr. Andrews thinks they stole about $20 worth of goods, consisting of about $10 worth of tobacco, a sack of flour, a side of meat, etc. On account of this theft, our business men have decided to put on a night watch, as they expect a good deal of thieving to be done in Lebanon this winter.

Don't prepare a thanksgiving dinner, but eat with the ladies of the Methodist church. On that day they will serve a first-class dinner for only 25 cents. Let everybody come.

The Waterloo Road.

Corvallis Times: Miles Wilkins, builder of the Hotel Corvallis, was over from Lebanon recently. For several months he has been engaged in making arrangements for the construction of a railroad from Lebanon via Sodbville to Waterloo, Linn county.

The distance is seven miles, and Mr. Wilkins says that already four miles and a half of the grade has been completed and is now ready for ties. Grading for the present, on account of the inclement weather, is to be laid aside until spring, and meantime the force will be set to work getting out ties and timber for the track.

In the spring the grade will be completed, and by June 1, Mr. Wilkins says the iron horse will whistle at the terminals of his railroad. The road is to be a motor, standard gauge, with a locomotive weighing about eighteen tons. Forty pound iron is to be used in the track.

Honor Lodge, A. O. U. W., assisted by the Degree of Honor, of this place, are making arrangements for a big time on Dec. 2. There will be a public program, consisting of music, recitations and addresses. It will be at the opera house. At the conclusion of the program, a banquet for members and their families only, will be served in their hall.

Grand Lecturer and Instructor, D. C. Herring, one of the best orators in the state, will be the speaker of the evening.

Albany Democrat: Mr. O. C. McFarland, who has been residing in Lebanon for several months, was in the city Wednesday. In a few days he will leave with his father and sister Miss Maggie, for Orville, Calif., where the two latter will spend the winter for the benefit of the health of Miss Maggie.

Fall Season, 1896.

Some people wonder how we can sell such good merchandise for such little prices. Others wonder why we do so. The how and the why matter little, so the fact remains. We'll say this, however, this business has grown to its present proportions by doing just one thing,—selling good articles at low prices. We are still doing this. If you are not now our customer come and see us and be convinced.

Democrats, republicans and populists lend me your ear. I come not here to bury Caesar, but to criticize his politics.

David B. Hill, the author of "I am a democrat," will no doubt be glad he did not stand in on the Chicago nominations, when he finds that "Caesar" is also a democrat. Apply at some museum Caesar; birds of that species are rare since the election. Glad you told us your politics. One would think from your windy assertions and the beautiful hirsute appendages that adorn your rosy cheeks that you were a Pefferian Populist, who would flood this great and glorious country of ours with paper money or with the initiative referendum, or at best a straddle of the fence, you could get that way if legs counted for anything. We knew you belonged to some party that was badly split up.

The following verse is hereby dedicated to Caesar and D. B. Hill: When D. B. Hill to Chicago went By gold bugs he was surely sent, He tried to drown people's voice, But Bryan was the democrats' choice, He shouted loudly, "I am a democrat," So also does this Thomas—Caesar. STAYER.

Mark Hanna Meets Davenport.

Homer Davenport, who did Mark Hanna up in all kinds of shapes during the late campaign, met Hanna last week in New York.

Mr. Hanna said: "I know you quite well, Mr. Davenport, from your work. I admire your talent and execution, but damn your conception." Davenport said: "Of course, no broad minded man looks upon a caricature as a personal affront."

To which Mr. Hanna replied: "That's all right, Mr. Davenport, but you had better keep out of the way of my wife, that's all."
