A MONKEY ROARING DRUNK.

He Had the Regulation Fun, Including Ar-rest and a Swelled Head. Two policemen conducting a drauken monkey to jail was one of the unasual sights seen Sunday. The monkey is a member of fled Backer's circus, but has been occupying winter quarters as a side attraction at Elston's saloon on seen occuping winter quariers as a side attraction at Elston's salom on East Water street, and was left chained during the temporary absence of the proprietor. He managed, nowever, to free himself and walked over behind the bar. He glanced in the big looking glass back of the row of redered bettles, and seeing another fellow of his own size picked up a decenter and let it go with his right, and Mr. Elston's $200 glass was a wreck. His opponent having been got rid of, the monkey proceeded to test the various liquid refreshments on hand. He torned on the beer and tear a long, deep draft. Then he sampled the whisely, gin, wine and various kinds of bitters. It wasn't long until he was roaring drunk. Then he tackled the cigar case and demolished that, throwing the cigars about the room in handfuls.

The monkey's screams and the noise of shattered glass attracted a crowd about the front of the salcon, but the door was locked, and there was no way to get in. Finally two policemen came and boosted a bold young fellow through the transom. After a lively tussic he managed to get a rope around the drunk-en monkey, and he was holsted through the window and escorted by the two poficemen, one on each side, to jail, and ledged in a cell. The next morning the prisoner was very sick and held his head between his paws. Although it was his second offense, the recorder suspended second drense, for recorder suspended sentence, and he was led back to the salcon and chained up. The next time he gots drunk the owner will sand him to the Keeley cureat Binghamton.—Eimira Despatch.

THE REFORMER'S ROCKY ROAD.

A Temperance Agitator In Austria Has to Fight the Liquor New and Governor. American temperance agitators would not enjoy themselves in Austria. A manot enjoy themselves in Austria. A mi-tive of a small village after a long cal-aleptic trance a year ago declared that he had been to heaven and had been commissioned by the Almighty to re-turn and teach the peasants the wickedness of drinking spirits. Soon the en-tire village took an oath of total abstinenco. The district governor commit-ted the man to the madhouse, where the dectors kept him for six months and then declared him sane. He resumed his agitation, and in a short time reven villages had taken vows of abstinence. The result was that a number of liq-The result was that a number of higher dealers to whom the government had granted licenses refused to keep their contracts. The district judge gave orders that the dangerous agitator be arrested if caught preaching abstinence. The man has not left his house for weeks. Deputations come to him from far and wide to hear his words and to repeat them when they return home. The authorities are consoling the dealers by declaring that the peasants must soon drink again.-Vionna

Heirs Apparent and Matrimony. There are few ladles whom an heir apparent can marry. Mrs. Moore keeps a bearding house at 225 Havemeyer street. He develor Annie, known in the neighborhood as Miss Moore, is slender. Among the boardors is Mr. File, who now claims that he is known among Annie's friends as Mr. Moore, her brother. In short, al-though the marriage ceremony was per-formed between them Drc. 1, 1886, he declares under each that the ceremony ended at the church door, and close einthen Annie has refused to play the part of wife to him.

File says that out of a salary of $15 a week he has paid his mother in law $13 part of the time and $10 the other part for the board of himself and "Sister Annie."

A year or two ago, maddened by the circumstances by which he was surrounded, he left town. His wife persuaded him to return, but it was not to marital happiness, for his wife continued to be a sister to him, as before.

At last the husband-brother got one of the visiting cards of "Miss Amile Moore, 225 Haveneyer street" and paid a visit to Mr. Westloturn and asked him for advice. Papers were prepared and served upon the daughter. The answering affidavit was to the effect that Annie had been his wife and lived with him as such until he left her and began preceedings. She asked the court that he be forced to pay her £10 a week and $300 counsel fees in order that see might defend the action. Justice Bartlett has signed an order directing the plaintiff to show cause why he should not put up the cash.—New York Journal.

Amarchist Lega Liles July.

Paul Lega, the author of the attempt on Signer Crispi's life, occupies an iso-lated cell in the Carceri Nucvi, in Rome, and is observed day and night through an opening in the wall. He sleeps well, and when awake talks to himself. The other morning on rising he drauk thirst-ily from his jug of water and then said By from his jug of water and then said alond, looking about him and beating his breast: "Now I feel better. I am in julison, it seems. At last I am in possession of a small estate." Then he began to hap he and whistle, drumning with his macris in time to the time. When the julier entered the cell, taking him his breat and sony, Lega said: "Thank you. I am better served here then to me, inc. I am better served bare than in a him, all the more because I have authing to pay. At last I have succeeded in getting a palace and servants of my own!"— London News.

Mr. Astor Criticises His Newspaper.

Although Mr. Astor does not attempt to control the opinions of his papers, he occasionally ventures a criticism on their contents, and his comment son times takes another epigrammatic form. For instance, not long ago the sditer of one of the Pail Mall publications—I for-teer to awation which on—had a copy of the paper returned with. "Is this pa-per written for housemalds?" loseribed all across it in blue pencil. The editor retaliated shortly afterward by returning an article written by Mr. Astor with the simple remark that it was "declined with thanks!"—London Figuro
