"You've GOT To Earn MORE"

It isn't a question alone of whether you want a better salary—it's a hard condition of life that you must face to protect yourself and those dependent upon you.

You can't stand still—if you don't want to go backward, you must go forward—that is, you've got to earn more.

Earning more means holding a better position—independence, happiness, and a chance to provide for the future.

Thousands upon thousands who once held low, poorly paid positions now earn high salaries as a result of letting the INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS show them how to accomplish the change. During last year about 4,000 students voluntarily reported increases in salary amounting to over two million dollars! Every month an average of 300 men voluntarily report to us advancement in position and earnings. Why not make YOUR start this month?

HOW TO DO IT

Simply mark on the coupon the position you wish to secure, then tear out and mail the coupon to the International Correspondence Schools. This puts you under no obligation whatever but allows our experts to adapt a Course to your individual needs and circumstances. You've got to earn more money. The I. C. S. will help you. Will you take the start today?

International Correspondence Schools

Dinners and Dinners

Every little while some enterprising correspondent sends out to the daily press of the country a glowing account of a dinner given by some metropolitan multimillionaire. This twaddle is extended and amplified even to a description of the virtues of the $10,000 a year chef or the latest pet monkey that ate from the same table.

We haven't any $10,000 chef, and we don't hanker after the company of four footed monkeys, but we want to say right here that the fellow who eats at our table will get a meal set before him that has more solid enjoyment in it than any of those produced for multimillionaires and monkeys. And there's many a man in this town who has the same opinion of the good old fashioned dinners served up by his own wife.

STORING SILVER.

When Not in Use Pack It Away From the Air.

Silverware not in use should be packed away from the air. Take an ordinary wooden starch box or other box of convenient size and put the articles to be stored in it, covering with flour. If polished when put away they will be ready for immediate use when taken out and the flour brushed off.

Or put the silver away in unbleached cotton flannel bags or bags made of cotton flannel. Be sure the material is unbleached, for the chemicals used in bleaching will discolor silver.

The daily silver should be kept in a drawer lined with cotton flannel or chamom. It should be cleaned well every day and polished once a week.

First wash it thoroughly in soap suds with a little soda in the water. Boiling the silver in the soapy solution for a few minutes is good. Then pour off the suds and pour on clean boiling water. Dry and polish with chamom skin.

Whitening wet with alcohol or sweet oil, prepared chalk and cream of tartar make good polishes for silver, or the whitening may be moistened with soapy water rubbed on the silver, permitted to dry and then rubbed off. Use a soft brush to get the whitening out of carved or engraved parts. Where spots on silver do not come off easily try rubbing with the wet surface of fresh ly haired potato.

A way recommended broadcast for cleaning tarnished silver is to lay it in a tin dishpan—it must be tin—with a piece of zinc and enough water to cover and boil for a few minutes or until tarnish disappears.

THE CLOTHES CLOSET.

Method of Keeping Garments Nice and Economizing Space.

The usual method of preparing a closet for the proper keeping of wearing apparel is to place a row of hooks along the back and ends, with possibly a long rod extending from one end to the other, from which hangers may be suspended.

As we all know, this means that garments that hang in the rear are not very easy to get at. Only those on the rod are in evidence. For the others we grope blindly, grasping a skirt to discover whether it is the blue serge, the gray voile or the white mohair we want. And as for the things suspended on the hooks behind, they might as well be in trunks and boxes as far as distinguishing one from the other goes.

Now some clever woman has found that by fixing a swinging rack—very much on the order of the towel rack, a dozen arms extending friendly ends out for holding garments—the capacity as well as the convenience is trebled. These arms are made of light wood, so they can be doubled, with light clamps on the outer ends that slip in a groove, holding fast anything placed between. In this way half a dozen pairs of trousers or the same number of shirts, hung by folded belts, may be nicely and neatly kept in order on one rack, and if there are two, one at either end of the closet or one with longer arms directly in the center at the back, it will be such a comfort to find double the amount of room with garments all visible without extra light of any sort.

Who Will It Be

Flowers, plants and shrubbery will beautify any yard or any home. A systematic cultivation of them by the people at large will make a veritable garden of beauty out of any town.

A few seeds, a little elbow exercise and the work is done. The principle occupation then is to watch them grow. Women invariably take the lead in the beautifying of the home and its surroundings, and we have seen many women in this town who are experts in this line.

This summer some one of these women in this town is going to have the most beautiful yard in town.

Who will she be?

We would like to see every woman in town strive to be that one. We would like to see every woman make of her place a spot that is pleasing to the eye a spot that attracts the attention and compels the admiration of people as they pass by.

We would like to see the husbands encourage the wives in such a laudable undertaking by preferring or securing the manual labor necessary slight though it be.

We would like to see this town converted this summer into one of the show spots of this state and we'll personally join the procession any time it is formed.

What do you say brother, sister? Are you game?

RECORD OF ASSISTS FROM THE OUTFIELD.

One Rasty Wright of Cincinnati Set the Mark Years Ago.

Fred Clarke's record of four assists from the outfield—two at the plate—made in the game with the Phillies several years ago, is unquestionably an unusual performance, but it is not a record. Nearly twenty years ago a right fielder on the Cincinnati team, "Rasty" Wright by name, beat that by at least two, if not three, and the beauty of it was that every assist he made cut off a base hit. The Reds were playing the Phillies at Broad and Huntington streets, and there was a tremendous crowd in attendance, necessitating the stretching of the ropes to accommodate the overflow in the outfield. They did not carry the ropes so near the right field wall in those days, the crowd as a rule surging away in front of the old bicycle track.

This Wright seemed to be a pretty wise gazabo and had a rattling good whip. Instead of playing in the turf where the right fielder usually played he measured his distance so that he could back and get any ball that did not actually go into the crowd. This brought him practically equidistant between the ropes and the base lines. As a result all flies that went to his territory were either out or two base hits, but whenever a grounder was out his way there was nothing to it. He was really playing right field-short stop, and he nailed either six or seven men at first on what would have been base hits under normal conditions.

NO FLUKE HERE.

Ed Walsh Made an Honest to Goodness Comeback.

Ed Walsh had numerous things to rejoice about when he beat the Yankees recently and showed that he really had come back. In addition to winning his first full game of the year he held a better hitless than he has always feared above all others.

When Walsh was at the height of his pitching fame a baseball writer in Chicago went to him and inquired how he pitched to various batters. Big Ed had at the tip of his tongue methods to circumvent Speaker, Cobb and Crawford, but when the reporter mentioned Birdie Cree Walsh had nothing to say.

"I don't know what to give that fellow," Walsh confessed. "He hits most everything I've got."

Cree came up in the eighth inning in Walsh's comeback game with a chance to drive home a run, but Walsh fanned him. And now the pitcher will have to look for another hoodoo batsman.

The Word "Rajah."

Literally the word rajah means king, and maharajah the great king or ruler over several kings, but generally speaking the titles rajah, maharajah and nabab have no greater significance than the words feudal lords as used in medieval times in Europe. Many of them have been made by the will of the reigning chief, many bestowed for meritorious acts and deeds.—Exchange

The Best Book

Of course the best book is the Bible. The man who said the best book was the pocket book, tried to say something smart and failed.

The bank book is a better book than a pocket book. The thief might steal your pocket book, or you might lose it in many ways. It's gone for good too. But in case of accident we will gladly supply you with another bank book and your funds will always be secured in our bank. Place your dependence on a bank book in preference to a pocket book every time. We will furnish you a nice one free any time you wish to open an account.
