The word pharmacy comes from the Greek meaning witchcraft. In the healing of disease, the supernatural has had an important place. In early days all disease was thought to come from God as a punishment for sin. The Egyptians were the world's first students of medicine. Magical rites and incantations were practiced upon the patient to drive out the demon that was within.

The famous Greek Hippocrates, did much to emancipate the art of healing from superstition and ignorance and make it a scientific study, that he is called the "Father of Medicine." His central doctrine was that there are laws of disease as well as laws of healthy life. His works are the basis of modern medical science. Progress was slow because their feelings respecting the body caused them to look with horror on its deliberate mutilation. Surprising as it may seem the statement of Aristotle, the son of a physician and well acquainted with the dissection of animals, regarded the brain as a "lump of cold substance, quite unfit to be the seat and organ of sensus communis," but attributed the thinking faculty to the heart, the brain being useful mainly "to supply fluids for lubricating the eyes."

Physicians at one time compounded their own drugs but as the science developed it was found that one man could not care for patients and keep up with the new methods of manufacture. Gradually a class sprung up which devoted its entire time to the developing of drugs and their manufacture. They were called pharmacists. The pharmacist at the present time knows all that's worth knowing about the latest and most improved preparations with which disease is combatted and which makes its entrance into the system a difficult thing.

A few days ago I paid Mr. B. R. Patterson, of this city, a short visit. Mr. Patterson and his father, J. A. Patterson, are the owners of one of the finest pharmacies in this state. Mr. Patterson was born back in York state just about forty years ago. He chased the elusive "elements" for three years in the University of Buffalo. He worked in the old Phill Cohn store in this city and then in Washington, returning, however, to Heppner and locating where he is at the present time in the year 1899.

The store consisted of a small room and the stock was not large. As his trade grew he grew with it. To the south of him was a millinery store which in a few years moved and the space was added to the store making a frontage of forty-five feet.

The Patterson store is more commonly known as the "Rexall Store." It gets this appellation from the fact that it handles the Rexall line of preparations. This is a sort of co-operative system and has over seven thousand branches in this country and Canada. Thus you can see the immense buying and selling advantages of an organization of this nature. The financial and personal management of any store applying for membership is most minutely scrutinized and any store displaying the "Rexall" emblem is a safe place to trade.

In the main salesroom the cases are arranged in a square, the entrance being from the northeast corner. In one of the first cases you see is displayed fancy sets of Persian Ivory, toilet sets and toilet articles. These range from modest sums to the more elaborate selling for twenty-five dollars the set. For service and exquisiteness of workmanship, nothing excels Persian Ivory. The next case on the north side which attracts attention is filled with purses and ladies handbags. No matter what your needs are for monetary purses, you can find a suitable article here and at a reasonable price. Being a printer, I did not glance at them long; I was interested in the next case which was filled with brushes and files for the teeth and nails. The toothbrush is a modern thing. Very few people use a toothbrush industriously, skilfully and opportunely. There are a vast number of diseases which spring from and unhealthy mouth. Pyorrhea is a disease which comes from an uncleanly condition superinduced by some slight accident to the gums. Nails should be cleaned by some of the instruments which the Rexall store handles. The next time you visit a physician's office take a peek at the waste substances which lurk beneath your nails.

On the west side of the room are the patent medicines and the Edison phonographs with supplies. Whether you believe in patent medicines or not matters little, many people do and these people are supplied with the fresh medicines in any size or quantity that they desire. The Edison machine was playing when I entered. I remember the first phonograph I ever saw. It was one of those kind in which you put a nickel and placed the two rubber tube to your ears and "heard the pig squeal." It was a great invention but it looks mighty crude when placed beside one of Edison's latest mintages. Machines ranging from thirty dollars up to two hundred and fifty dollars are kept in stock. These are finished in different woods and will harmonize with your house furnishings. Mr. Patterson said that he sold more high priced machines than the cheaper grades. The day I happened in he sold an eighty-dollar phonograph. Records of all descriptions are received monthly and I listened to a few selections from El Trovatore and some from the Follies of 1914. Grand Opera, Comic Opera, readings, speeches, anything to suit your mood can be heard on the Edison.

On the west side I saw books of all description. The late copyrights, the works of the past masters, all are there for your inspection and selection. Emerson was once asked by a student, "How may I become great?" "Eat great men," replied Emerson. What he meant was to read. Besides books, all school supplies are handled by Patterson's. It is perfectly safe to send your children to the Rexall store for their school supplies, if you don't, they are liable to go there anyway. Children are always welcome to this store.

Stationery of the best grades is a specialty with the Rexall store. At the present time we meet few people, we get to know many by our correspondence. Your writing mirrors your character and to protect yourself—be exact in your correspondence. I also noted our worthy contemporary, the Oregonian, on the counter. This store has handled the paper for fifteen years and while I seldom advocate reading any but the local paper, the Oregonian will make you think—all that any paper can do.

This store is the home of the Eastman kodak. Supplies for all models of cameras are here in profusion. Spalding has his agency here. Tennis supplies, baseball articles, in fact anything that is known to the sporting fraternity can be purchased here. Candies, pipes and cigars and everything that makes life more pleasant during our stay on earth are on the shelves or in the cases of the Rexall store.

At Christmas time, so I am told, this store is overflowing with appropriate gifts. The stock of cut glass is materially enlarged, giving a wide selection. The stock, however, at all times is exceptionally large for a city of this size.

The prescription department is Mr. Patterson's sacred spot. Here I saw a still which makes the distilled water which is used exclusively in all prescriptions. Pills and other preparations are made while you wait. Guesswork has been eliminated and you don't take your life in your hands when you accept a preparation with a Rexall Store label on the outside. The various serums used in the modern attack on disease are all handled here and to those of you who have never seen these, I would say, drop in at any time and ask to see them and learn how they are prepared. It is a liberal education in itself to know the progress that has been made in this branch of medical science.

I asked Mr. Patterson if his trade in any certain department was growing and if the people were buying more and better goods. He told me that he was building up a good trade on toilet articles. He has sold more Rexall hair tonic in the last year than in all of the preceding years that he had been in business. Tooth pastes, soaps and face preparations are disposed of in great quantities. Fancy stationery is now the call. It used to be that people bought a tablet and pencil and made that do, but not now, it's the handy Rexall self-filler and a box of Symphony Lawn, the best at one dollar per pound.

The first requisite for a man is to be a good animal, said some great man years ago. Here is a poetic remark that we just discovered was true day before yesterday. We owe it to ourselves and to all with whom we come in daily contact to keep in perfect health. Only the people who are healthy are able to do the right kind of work and to get the right kind of satisfaction out of the work. The Bible says, "They who are well need no physician," which is true but the fine art of keeping well is a thing that has received too little attention in the past. Not long ago I received some valuable information from my life insurance company on the subject of keeping well. I have since learned that the Association of Life Insurance Presidents has been working to educate the public in the most important science in the world, the science of prophylaxis. Every good druggist is interested and cooperates with the physicians for whom he prescribes to keep the body politic well. As a class they are far above the average in intelligence, they work long hours and are not overpaid. They are the progressive men of the community for this is implied in fact that they must be so to keep in line with the latest improvements and additions to their profession. Heppner and Morrow County can well be proud of an institution like the Rexall Store. A thing is useful only as it can be used, as it will serve, make use of the Rexall Store.

Women Can Do Great Work by Helping Along the Go to Church Movement

It is up to the women to make the men GO TO CHURCH. It is unnecessary to say that women have a wonderful influence with men. It is not enough that a woman go to church. She should insist on her father, brother, husband or sweetheart attending divine service. And there is no denying that if the women will take an interest in the GO TO CHURCH movement it will be a wonderful help.

DOES ANY ONE DOUBT THAT THE YOUNG GIRL WHO HAS A SWEETHEART CAN INDUCE HER YOUNG MAN TO ATTEND CHURCH? IF SHE CAN'T PREVAIL ON HIM TO GO TO THE HOUSE OF GOD SHE SHOULD DROP HIM. HE WILL NOT MAKE A GOOD HUSBAND. IF THERE IS A GIRL WHO HAS A BROTHER WHO DOES NOT ATTEND CHURCH LET HER BEGIN RIGHT NOW TO START HIM ON THE RIGHT PATH. LET THE LOVING WIFE PLEAD WITH HER HUSBAND TO GO TO CHURCH WITH THE SAME FERVOR THAT SHE ASKS FOR AN EASTER BONNET. SHE GENERALLY GETS THE EASTER BONNET. IT WILL BE JUST AS EASY—PROBABLY A GREAT DEAL EASIER—TO GET HER HUSBAND TO GO TO CHURCH.

Men will not deny women anything. If some of the women of the country would put one-half the energy into the GO TO CHURCH movement that they do into other uplift work the churches wouldn't hold the crowds. The wife should tell her husband that when he was married he went to church; that when their child was born he went to church. Women can and must make the men GO TO CHURCH. The churches are the very life of the nation. If the attendance has fallen off it is due to carelessness. Men need but to be reminded and they will do their part.

Make the men GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!
Then make them go the following Sunday!
