

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Ed. Clark arrived home Tuesday for the fair.

"The Call of the Master" will be the subject of Minister Handaker's sermon at the Christian Church next Sunday morning. Evening sermon "The School of Christ," special music at each service.

Miss Helen Cowgill, from the O. A. who addressed the teachers during the Institute about Domestic Science. was a guest at the Rev. Ferris home and left for Dallas, Oregon, Wednesday morning to do similar work.

For the next few weeks, O. M. Yeager, the carpenter contractor, will be at the R. F. Wigglesworth farm on Butter Creek, and anyone wishing to consult him on the subject of building or repairing, please call him at that place.

Drs. Lowe & Turner, the well known eye specialists of Portland will be in Heppner again Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 27-28-29, at the Palace Hotel Parlors. Don't fail to consult them about your eyes and glasses.

Mr. Ray Turnbull, who had charge of the Heppner Light Co's exhibit in the Scrivener building some time ago, came up from Portland Tuesday to perform a similar service during the fair.

O. M. Yeager, Contractor, will do your building, repairing, etc., and take your wool, hay or anything of value in exchange for the work.

Misses Winiford and Jennie Roe came in from Monument last Tuesday and departed the following day for Lexington, where they will attend school. They will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Clint Roe.

W. D. Newlon has had his Velic car thoroughly overhauled by Henry Nagle of the Jack Rabbit Garage and is now ready to speed over the chuck holes again. W. D. has asked permission from the fair management to allow him to enter his car in the auto parade and has asked for the position immediately following "348".

NOTICE.

My new Fall and Winter hats will be ready the first week in September. Mrs. D. B. DeLaney, Lexington, Ore.

LOST—A brown mare, 6 years old and weighs about 1200 pounds. Is marked with a star on the left shoulder and with a brand on the left shoulder C. R., with a Z directly below it. It was last seen about two weeks ago near Parker's Mill. O. E. Wright, of Heppner, is the owner and will give $10 reward for its return.

Al Slocum is in the city from Portland. Al says Heppner is the best town in Oregon. He autoed all over Central, Southern and Western Oregon several weeks and says the people of Morrow County are not aware of the real value of their land as compared with land selling in other localities at a much higher figure.

Wm. Scrivener has a small safe and two showcases which he will sell cheap. Look at them in the Commercial Club rooms next to his shop.

Mrs. F. M. Bayless and daughter and Mrs. Vess Hinton, of Dayton, Washington, also a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bayless, made the semi-weekly call on Wednesday and were shown through our plant. Mrs. Hinton is here to visit her folks and will remain during the fair.

(East Oregonian.)

ECHO, Ore., Sept. 14—Mrs. J. R. Jordan gave a reception last evening at her home on Dale street in honor of Miss Helen Aiken of Heppner, who has spent the summer with Mrs. Jordan and who expects to leave for her home to attend school.

The undersigned firms will close on Saturday of this week. Farmers Union Warehouse Co. Heppner Milling Company. Phill Cohn.

With this issue of the semi-weekly we offer a clubbing rate with Collier's Weekly. The statement in the ad. tells all about it. Here is a chance to get the semi-weekly and Collier's Weekly and the Memoirs of Napoleon for three Woodrow dollars or less than the price of three bushels of the staff of life. Think that over and then send in the cash.

R E S T.

The parlors of the Federated Church will be open for fair use by those in need of a place for quiet and rest during the fair. You are welcome and we trust our people may thus do you a kindness.

Pastor Ferris.

"When The Devil Was Sick." Capitalism is sick. It is deathly sick. It is writhing in its death agony over a large section of Europe.

Being sick it is repentant. It is anxious to make terms with its enemy, and the enemy that it fears and hates is not Germany or Russia or France or Austria, but the working class.

While the war still rages and its outcome is in doubt, it is hard to follow the example of 1871, when Bismarck helped the "hated French" to crush the workers of Paris. It would not now be quite safe to attempt to use Russian Cossacks against German Social-Democrats, nor German Uhlans against French Socialists, although this may easily come later, as it did 43 years ago.

But just now rulers are sick and repentant. So Belgian clericals rush to grant long refused privileges to the workers of that nation. Food for the children in the schools, protection for the co-operatives, long refused, was eagerly proffered when war threatened.

The Russian czar, realizing its urgent need for absolution from its hideous sins against the Jewish and Polish workers within its realm, has hastened to reform and to promise citizenship to the first and national autonomy to the second.

It is not a coincidence that the Jews and the Poles in Russia's grip are the backbone of the revolutionary movement that has been the one breath of healthy life in the decaying carcass of the Russian bear.

England's rulers hastened to press into law the demand for state feeding of school children, for which the Socialists of that country have been working for years.

So the story goes all along the line. War has always been the opportunity of subject classes. When the master needs fighting men he must grant them some sort of alleviation of their slavery.

But in this case there are 10,000,000 united workers who know what they want and who, when the masters come to confess their sins will not be easy in the penance inflicted.

This compact body of revolutionary workers will see to it that these advantages once gained are not lost when the war is ended, as has been the case so many times before.

When the Russian devil was sick with the Japanese war he granted a whole series of reforms, but when he was well again, "the devil of a monk was he" and all the reforms were rescinded.

When this war is over there will be such a casting out of the devils of autocracy and capitalism that they will be able to do little harm in the future.

Several months before the warcloud burst over Europe, King George of England sent Capt. C. B. Gaunt of the Royal Navy on a special mission to the United States.

Capt. Gaunt is now in Pittsburgh investigating the various processes of manufacturing armor plate. One of his first places of call was the DeRoy Motor Car Co., Pittsburgh Studebaker dealers, where he arranged for the garaging of his Studebaker "Six" which he had bought in London.

"Of course, I must have an American car," Capt. Gaunt told Mr. DeRoy. "Why? Well, His Majesty ordered me to, for one reason.

"Before I left, he gave me my instructions.

"Live as the Americans do," he said. "Make their ways your ways. Be sure to drive an American car. You'd best have it a Studebaker. They are fine, big people, and they'll take good care of you."

"So I called to pay my respects to President Wilson. I drove to the White House in my Studebaker car. You may be sure, I called the President's attention to it, too. He laughed and said I had done the right thing, not only from a policy point of view, but from the motoring point, as well."
