ties of crabs and apples. The entire center of the pavilion being filled with tables arranged in sections presented a good view and especially since there were many flowers scattered at judicious intervals. With the many colored fruit and vegetables, it was a beautiful sight to witness. There were all the side attractions that the grounds would hold and plenty of opportunity to enjoy one's self in any manner that he desired. On entering the grounds the first stand on the left was occupied by our old friend Doug. Gurdane who had a little ice cold lemonade and a few packers of ice cream to furnish the children with cones. The only thing that he could have been arrested for was selling squakers, which we are told he sold. The second stand was a novelty stand where you can get the picture of your best girl on a button which pins to your coat. Many fellows who we never knew had girls were in line here to get supplied. The next stand was operated by the ladies of the Federated Church. They sold light lunches which were greatly appreciated by the visitors. S. E. Notson was standing around here considerable but the ladies were watching him pretty close and he didn't fare well. The next stand was the abode of the palmist, the one we mentioned some time ago in connection with Andy Hood. Ed. Brown and Jim Huddleston were seen in here and emerged with smiling faces. Jim has gone in with Ed. on that new automobile and the seerss said that success would smile upon them. There were two hot sandwich stands on the ground, the merry-go-round was full most of the time and old and young alike were around it in crowds until late at night. The Ferris wheel with a diameter of about fifty feet was an innovation to many of the children and it enjoyed a liberal patronage. No fair could be complete without the niggerbaby dolls and hundreds of infants were reported to have been killed in the three days' battle. The moving picture show and the Venetian glass blowers were other attractions. Glass is a wonderful thing and many people were in to see the wonders accomplishable with glass. All of the side attractions were free from any objectional features and all of the old standbys were there. The glass blowers, the palmists, the merry-go-round, it would be hard to imagine a fair without them. The Chicken exhibit was one of the finest displays of its kind ever seen in the county. It is a well known fact that Morrow County has some of the finest chickens in the state. Claud Cox carried away the sweepstakes for the best exhibits, and he had some of the finest birds ever shown. Judges of chickens say that he has chickens which if he enters at the State Fair will be prize winners. Doug. Gurdane, Gene Noble, George Bleakman Bert Stone are among the other well known chicken men who have high-class chickens. In all there were 52 pens of chickens. There were 4 pens of turkeys, 2 of ducks, 2 of bantams and 6 pens of rabbits. There was one cage of canaries. Nearly every kind of chickens were on exhibition. The White Wyndottes were excellent specimens, spring chickens weighing eight and nine pounds. There were some fine Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Leghorns. Hundreds of people filled this building and we believe that more chickens will be raised in the county in the next twelve months. Oscar Minor, however, says that it is cheaper to grow egg plants like he does. The Live Stock was not large this year. It is arranged in the north end of the grounds and in the first pen was a Duroc Jersey boar, a large and well formed animal. The next four pens contained Duroc Jersey hogs, one a sow with nine pigs. There were ten pens of sheep with 17 animals in the pens. Among the horses and mares were 7 good animals. The Shetland ponies of Miss Josephine Woolery of Ione, were on exhibition and are the finest ponies of their kind in the county. There was one grade stallion. Nearly everyone who attended the Fair was well impressed with the institution as a whole. To most people it was a revelation. Mr. Freytag who is regarded as an authority on such matters said, "If this exhibit was sent to the State Fair, it would take front rank as a display of county products." The melons and squash are as good as you will find anywhere in western Oregon, likewise the corn. I have been very favorably impressed with the fair, especially since the exhibits started to pour in."

Hon. R. A. Booth, of Salem, said, "This fair has been a revelation to me. I have seen exhibits here that compare favorably with those of any section of the state. This fair has impressed me more than words can express with the wonderful possibilities of Morrow County and of Oregon." Judge William Galloway used almost the same words in expressing his impressions of the fair. He said that within his recollection a time existed when it was thought impossible to ever grow anything on these dry hills but this fair has demonstrated the wonderful change which has been brought about. Mr. D. J. Russell, of San Francisco, who owns much land in the county and who happened to be in the city during the fair, was a regular attendant at the grounds and in speaking of the fair he said, "The thing which impresses me most is the smiling and healthy looking faces of the people. The fruit, grain and hog exhibits are also fine."

Mr. Roadruck, who with his wife had charge of the Irrigon exhibit said, "I have attended the State Fair for the last five years and I had charge of the winning county exhibit at the Lewis and Clark exposition but in all of my experience I have never seen any exhibit that was very much better than the Morrow County Fair. Some of these exhibits, especially the grain and fruits are commendable. I never heard of a county fair with 1500 exhibits in the fancy work department. R. F. Wigglesworth was a fair enthusiast and his only adverse remarks were about the stock department. "We will have to get the farmers to bring in more stock. It's expensive business, bringing in the stock, but we will have to make it worth their while before we can expect them to do anything." Ed. Brown, Jeff Jones and Oscar Minor said that the average was higher than last year. This year's fair was a better balanced fair than last year's. There was no one department which stood out conspicuously above the others. On all sides were impressions heard of unqualified praise for the fair. Those who have had it in charge have worked industriously and no work was left undone which would have added in any way to its success. The ultimate aim of all fairs is to impress the people of the county and state with the possibilities and the better ways of farming and how life on the farm can be made more attractive and measured by these standards, the fair was a great success. One of the greatest advantages which fairs offer is the opportunity to see and hear entertainments of various kinds which go to broaden the intellect and make life more pleasant here below. Fairs are now becoming institutions where the farmer and the city man can spend a few days vacation profitably and well. The free entertainment this year in connection with the fair afforded many an opportunity to hear some of the premier musical organizations of the Northwest and some of the best orators in the state. The program started Thursday morning with Parson's band, of Portland, giving a program on the streets. In the afternoon there was a second band concert on the grounds at 2:30 o'clock. Rozalez gave an aerial gymnastic exhibition immediately following on the platform erected just north of the dance hall. This was much enjoyed by all. After supper he repeated the performance, this time introducing more gymnastics. Ali Zada, the well known Punch and Judy king, was on hand at 3:30 in the afternoon with his Wonder Working tricks and with his Punch and Judy that evening. The balloon ascension was made late in the afternoon. The rain interfered with the program on Thursday, making the roads too muddy for the Seale Brothers, the well known fancy riding artists, to give their exhibition. In the evening the band was on hand and after its concert the dance was on in the hall. The floor was well filled and Parson's orchestra furnished excellent music. Friday morning started out with perfect weather conditions. It sprinkled a little in the middle of the day but to no great extent. Friday was Roundup day in Heppner. The special train from Pendleton pulled in early that morning and they took possession of the town, also the Palace Hotel. Among their number were many old timers in this country who were well known here years ago. Some twenty women were included in the list of excursionists. After the dinner hour G. W. Phelps, R. Alexander, Leon Cohen, G. H. Bishop, Will M. Petersop, Fred Judd and Mayor Kyle of Stanfield were called on for speeches. Jack Coleman, the famous Scotch comedian, sang his Roundup song in his usual wild-west manner. An outsider could have told that the people of Heppner and Pendleton are no strangers. Goodfellowship abounded on every hand and the visitors left for home feeling that they had been royally treated. Ali Zada and Rozalez as usual gave their exhibitions on the grounds in the morning and likewise at night. The big treat of the afternoon was the two speeches by Hon. R. A. Booth and Judge Galloway. These were before the pioneers who had gathered in the dance hall. The balloon ascension and double parachute drop was witnessed by many people and done perfectly. Late in the afternoon the Seale Brothers gave a splendid exhibition of fancy riding on the street. Dancing was in order that afternoon as well as at night. The Portland Ad. Club Quartette were in the pavilion at 7:30 and entertained a capacity hall. Other attractions during the day were speeches by E. C. Roberts, Pres. of the State Board of Horticulture and C. A. McCrum, fruit inspector of Hood River County who addressed the Fruit Men's Congress on ways to grow better fruit and means of keeping blights out of the county. Saturday was the big day and the morning program included selections by the band on the grounds interspersed by acts by Ali Zada and Rozalez on the platform. In the afternoon the sun shone continually and the grounds were packed with people from all over the county. The balloon ascension was made at 1:30 p. m. without a hitch, except that the lady performer injured herself slightly when she landed on the ground. Ali Zada and Rozalez gave another performance for the crowd and a third exhibition at 7:30 that evening. Ali Zada was the favorite performer of the children and with many of the grownups. As a Punch and Judy king, he deserves the title. The Portland Ad. Quartette entertained the crowd both afternoon and evening. The Seale Brothers gave their fancy riding stunts on the streets at 5:15. The dance lasted until midnight when the fair was officially closed. The entertainment features of the fairs are steadily growing in demand and better features are being added every year. The Morrow County Fair is in the lead with the best talent which money can hire. The exhibits will develop one side of the man, the entertainment will balance up the other side.
