W. H. Clark, a well known Willow Creek rancher, left last Saturday for Portland where he will take in the sights also the stock show.

See O. M. Yeager for plans and estimates on that new bungalow, cottage or barn you are going to build. Estimates and inquiries cost you nothing.

Doug. Gurande has been pursuing the newspapers to see what honors his chickens won in Portland where they are entered in the Portland Poultry show.

Theo. Anderson was in from the ranch last Saturday. He has a fine new garage on the place now. Theo. says that he has more chickens than Geo. Perry.

Mrs. Travis, who has been employed near Lexington, was in Heppner, Saturday and will leave soon for Newport where she will locate and will probably invest in city property.

Waldo Vincent was a Heppner caller last Saturday and said that three inches of snow had fallen during the latter part of last week but his way. The wind piled this up so that it did not do the land much good. Waldo reports that the stock look fine and also that the ranchers have nearly all their fall seeding done.

Jack Doherty dropped into the city last Saturday and in the course of our conversation with him he told us that there was considerable snow fell the latter part of last week at his place.

One of the largest audiences that ever packed the new High School auditorium was present last Friday night when the students of the High School gave their Literary program. The first number on the program was an instrumental duet by Edith Barton and Charles Wattenberg. Edith shows considerable talent with the violin, while Charles played well on the cornet. Norton Winnard told an original story which was well received by the audience. The next number was a scene from "The Virginians" with Edward La Trace as the Virginian and Norma Friedrich playing the part of the school teacher. The Male Quartet was one of the main hits of the evening and right here we want to say a word of appreciation to Miss Long who drilled them. They were encored twice and left the stage with the audience wishing for more. Harley Adkins, Clarence Scrivner, Elery Hayes and Tom Hughes composed the quartet. The quartet was followed by a play entitled "Rooms to let." The cast comprised Edith Thorley, Grace Van Vector, Lera Githens, Tom Hughes, Pearl Thomson and Harley Adkins, everyone of which took their parts well. David Wilson gave a History of the Potato and the program closed with songs by the Glee Club. The program was given in excellent fashion and to an appreciative audience.
