Economic Preparedness!!

The first essential requirement in time of war is that the people shall have food. With world conditions as at present this country cannot afford to allow the food supply for the coming year to be determined by the ordinary influences affecting production.

The whole world is bare of food supplies, and dependent upon the crop of 1917. The fields of Europe are poorly tilled and scantily fertilized, with the result that a short crop is already foreshadowed. Our own winter wheat crop is unpromising.

The price of food this year depends upon the efforts of the next few weeks; there should be a general comprehension that the high prices of the past winter have been due to failure to grow and store enough food last summer. The same experience will be repeated next winter, perhaps more severely, unless production is increased and intensified. Every acre of tillable soil should be utilized, every available pound of fertilizer used to enrich the land, garden cultivation should be resorted to as never before, to meet the serious conditions which this country, in common with other countries, is facing for this year.

Our entire industrial situation may be disorganized by high prices for food, and the outlook demands the most serious attention of our people.
