Necessities of War.

When Lloyd George in England undertook to organize the ministry of munitions a glazier began to stamp out cartridge clips; a manufacturer of music rolls used his equipment to make gauges; a concern engaged before the war in preparing infants' food began delivering plugs for shells; an advertising agency manufactured shell adapters; watchmakers began adjusting fuses; a manufacturer of baking machinery became a contractor for six inch high explosive shells; a jewelry house devoted itself exclusively to periscopes; a phonograph concern sent millions of delicate shell parts to the assembling stations; a firm which made nothing but sheep shearing machinery started turning out shell cases; a cream separator factory manufactured shell primers. Among other producers of finished shells were candle-makers, flour mills, tobacco manufacturers, syphonmakers and the manufacturers of sporting goods.—World's Work.

Stocking the National Parks.

The United States is carrying on a very interesting work in exchanging the wild animals of one region for those of others—transplanting elk and deer and Rocky mountain bighorns from regions in the United States where they are plentiful to others where, so far as known, they have not lived. Some of the animals are being shipped long distances, says the Popular Science Monthly.

Wyoming is full of elk. The herds in the Jackson Hole country are the largest of any of North American wild animals since the days of the countless buffaloes. But the big Yosemite National park of California, with its three-quarters of a million acres, until recently had no elk, or at least only a very few scattered specimens. But the elk shipped in from Wyoming have become very much at home and are breeding and multiplying rapidly, adding to the charm and picturesqueness of this popular national playground.

Love and Marriage.

"First love is very apt not to be the lasting love," said Dr. Antoinette Komikow, speaking at the Boston School of Social Science.

"Young lovers try to excuse all the faults of the loved one because they are not in love with the individual, but with love. Hence they may not choose the partner with whom they will find their happiness in later years. Many a man and woman is glad by middle age that the first love was frustrated.

"Marriage should be based on love alone or it is immoral, and some change is necessary if marriage is to be saved from degradation. Real love always makes people better. Romantic love is the source of all the best things in life—the foundation of all the arts. And individual happiness makes up the happiness of the race."—Boston Post.

Use of Bacon Drippings.

Bacon drippings make splendid shortening for light, flaky pie crust. It takes just a little less of the drippings than of ordinary lard or vegetable shortening. Use it for shortening in spice cake, gingerbread or any dark cake and note the delicious flavor.

Spread rye bread with a thin layer of the pure drippings and sprinkle a little salt on it. Add to this a thin slice of any salt meat and you will have a delicious and highly nutritious sandwich. The European housewife has long made use of such sandwiches for the between meal snack for growing boys and girls.

The Pygmy Hippopotamus.

One of the animals least known to the outside world is the pygmy hippopotamus of West Africa.

This animal is just what its name implies, a pygmy hippopotamus. It is much smaller than the common hippopotamus, being no larger than an ordinary or fair sized hog. It differs somewhat from the common hippo in the character of its teeth, and instead of spending its time in the rivers and lakes in large herds it wanders about through the jungles singly or in pairs, much after the manner of swine in search of mast.—London Spectator.

Just the Time.

"No, I have never played bridge before."

"So I should surmise," said the distinguished partner. "But how came you to enter an important tournament like this?"

"Oh, I thought it would be a good time to learn."—Louisville Courier.

All Wrong.

"Now, look here, Alice, I know every thing. You've been carrying on with another man. I even know that his name is Rupert."

"How ridiculous you are! First of all, I haven't flirted with any one, and secondly, his name isn't Rupert."—Passing Show.

Profitable Writing.

"My writings bring in a lot of money every month."

"That so? I didn't know you were an author."

"I'm not. I'm the man that makes out the bills for our firm."—Detroit Free Press.

Trials of Authors.

"You do not know," Saint-Benoit wrote to George Sand, "what it is to remain a whole day with your head in your hands, squeezing your unfortunate brain to find a word."

Silent Heroes.

"Father," asked Tommy, "what are silent heroes?"

"Married men, my boy," replied the father.—London Telegraph.
