Robert Young, well known Heppner boy who enlisted in the Marine corps last spring, returned to Heppner Monday evening, having been given a medical discharge from the service on account of frequent attacks of pleurisy since going to the training camp. Bob hopes, however, that a few lungfuls of good old Eastern Oregon ozone will make him all right again and he expects to register in the draft and take chances on being called to the colors later.

TABLE GOLF.

It is a Slippery Sort of Game, and It Lacks Rules.

The writer is endeavoring to formulate rules for a game that has been played for a great many years in a haphazard manner and requests the aid of your readers in systematizing it.

It is played by those of us who cannot afford the time nor money to play golf and requires no tools other than those furnished by "the best twenty-five cent meal in the city" and forms a very exciting game for noontime. It is known as table golf.

The course is any smooth wooden or marble top table, the ball is the butter, the club is the knife, while the hole is bread or butter.

To play, warm the knife in a hot biscuit and, cutting a piece of butter with

YOU CHASE IT AND CHASE IT.

it, endeavor to convey the said butter a distance of at least six inches to the biscuit. If you succeed you call that a hole in par; if, however, it drops on the table top the real fun begins. You chase it and chase it through all the hazards of salt-cellar, cruet, sugar bowl, etc., until you finally corner it at the water glass and triumphantly hole out in (possibly) six. If the butter melts before you hole out you call that a lost ball and start all over again.

You can see what an interesting and exciting game this would be if it had proper rules.—N. W. T. Golf in New York Sun.

Wake Your Angel.

Deep in the heart of every son of man lies an angel, but some of these angels have their wings folded. Wake yours!—Olive Schreiner.

Cause For Gratitude.

The following story comes from the pen of a Turkish writer, Nasir-ed-Din: "Having lost his ass, the minister went forth in search of it. During the search he was seen to raise his eyes to heaven, while his lips uttered the words, 'Allah be praised!'" "On being asked what reason he had to offer up thanks for such a visitation he answered, 'I am grateful because I was not riding the ass, for then I must have been lost too!'"

His Mild Rebuke.

Harold McCormick of Chicago is a rich man and a generous man, but he does not like to be "done." McCormick on one of his visits to a fashionable resort neglected to stipulate his hotel rate in advance. The hotel man took advantage of this oversight, and the bill he presented was exorbitant. McCormick, however, said without a murmur. Then he said as he folded the receipt in his wallet: "By the way, have you got any two cent stamps?" "Yes, sir," said the hotel man. "How many would you like to have?" "Er—" said McCormick mildly, "how many are they apiece?"—Detroit Free Press.

Where the Wool Comes From.

In addressing a group of small children recently one of the workers of the American Humane Education society tried to impress on their minds the fact that they obtain a great many of the necessities of life from the animal kingdom. Her difficulties are told in Our Dumb Animals.

"Where do you get your milk and butter and cheese?" she asked.

"Cows," answered most of the children, although some replied, "From the store."

"And eggs?" demanded the instructor.

"Hens," answered those who did not answer "Store."

"And wool?" asked the instructor. There was only one answer to this question, "The store."

"Yes," said the instructor, "but how does it get into the store? Now think, wool—wool you get from the back of—what?"

Apparently she waited the answer. Presently it came from a small girl in the front seat:

"Back of the counter!"

A Movable Headache.

Mr. Battlegate put down his teacup and for the fifth time remarked to his hostess:

"Well, I must be going."

"Well, don't let me keep you, Mr. Battlegate, if you must go," said his hostess hopefully.

"Yes, I really must go," said Battlegate. "But, believe me, Mrs. Bearit, I do enjoy a little chat with you. Do you know, I had quite a headache when I came here, but now I've entirely lost it."

"Oh, is that lost?" said Mrs. Bearit patiently. "I've got it now."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
