Walter Matteson, who went to Camp Lewis recently with the second contingent of the present draft, writes the Herald that he has been transferred to the medical detachment and sent to Camp Kearney, California. Camp Kearney is 17 miles from San Diego. Walter says it was a fine trip from Tacoma to San Diego with all varieties of country, scenery and climate. He likes it fine at Camp Kearney but says it is rumored that they may not stop there long but may be sent east and to France at an early date. They are not far from the aviation school at San Diego and see many airplanes flying at all times.
