Sergeant Lillie, in charge of the detachment of Oregon Military Police on duty in this county, has his men scattered throughout the wheat sections keeping a lookout for fires, labor trouble or any thing that might delay the harvesting of the wheat crop. While but little trouble of any kind is encountered the moral effect of the patrol, Sergeant Lillie says, is good. Idleness on the part of any able-bodied men is frowned upon and men are discouraged from quitting their jobs on harvest crews etc. without a valid excuse. On the other hand employers are given to understand that their men must be properly fed and well treated while it is pointed out to the men that the urgent need for saving every possible bushel of wheat makes faithful, whole-hearted service the imperative duty of every patriotic citizen.

Conductor Lewis, of the Heppner branch, spent a few days in The Tuesday for Portland and the beach where they will spend several weeks enjoying a vacation. They are traveling in their car and will go wherever their fancy dictates.

Willard Browning left for Portland Thursday morning having been selected to enter upon a course of mechanical training in the Benson Polytechnic school for service in the army.
