NAVY EVER ON THE ALERT

Case of Carelessness at Sea Is a Thing That Commanders Punish With Necessary Severity.

With not a light showing the transports plowed the Atlantic, bringing American soldiers to France, writes a naval officer in the Saturday Evening Post. Lookouts high and low, under navy discipline, searched the seas for hostile periscopes. The convoy, the apex of which was a big cruiser, was invisible in the black night. The vigilance of the navy training protected the soldiers, sleeping with their life belts.

Suddenly out came a bright light on the leading transport; a merchant sailor, one Jesus Fernandez Mendoza, a Spanish fireman, flashed an electric torch, fumbling about the deck. The light could be seen for miles. Instantly a navy lookout reported the occurrence to the navy officer in charge of the ship. A sharp command, a scuffle on deck, a bluejacket kicking the torch overboard stayed the Spaniard's desire to fondle an electric flashlight in the submarine zone. Five days' solitary confinement ended the lesson. Showing a light on a man-of-war at night in time of war is a confidential offense; even lighting a cigarette or having matches. The navy commander, in absolute charge, enforces military discipline on a merchant vessel carrying troops and punishes the guilty.

Because of the navy, criminal carelessness and conduct involving the safety of thousands of men cease to aught and a possible catastrophe was averted. The navy was in command.

Suttee.

The English government, after long discouraging suttees, by the agency of Lord William Bentinck formally abolished them in December, 1829, but they have since occasionally taken place. The wife of the son of the rajah of Beygoon thus perished in June, 1864, and several wives of Sir Jung Bahadoor, minister of Nepal, on March 1, 1877. One voluntary suttee occurred at Poona, in November, 1880, and it has continued to the present time in isolated parts of India, or even as late as 1905 several persons who took part in a suttee in Bihar were condemned to penal servitude.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE UNDER WAY

W. T. McRoberts has definitely decided to build a concrete garage 66x132 on his Main street property. He has sold the old livery barn to Willis Stewart who will move it to his lots on upper Main street where his barn was destroyed in the big fire.

Indications now promise the finest fall building line Heppner has experienced in many years.

Work is under way on the new FBI Garage on Willow street and the architect in charge says the building will be ready for occupancy in about 30 days. The same parties erecting this building have bought the adjoining property from D. C. Wells and in understood a substantial concrete structure will also go up on that location immediately.
