NEW YEAR OPPORTUNITIES

WHAT has the coming year of 1919 in store for Heppner and Morrow county? Will it bring us good or evil? Shall we, as a community, have prosperity or adversity? Will the end of the year 1919 see Heppner a more pleasant town to live in, a better place to do business in, a town in which its people can take a bit more pride and its visitors a considerable greater degree of comfort?

These questions, which are pertinent at this season, can only be answered by the people who live in Heppner—those who have made their homes here, those who do business here, who pay taxes here, who elect the public officials and delegate to them authority to handle the affairs of the town which are of general community concern.

A town can never be anything other than what the people who live there make it. A town is a collection of houses and streets and alleys and other inanimate things which must be constructed after the most modern plans, the most beautiful designs and of the most substantial and costly materials but without people in that town to occupy the houses, to make use of the streets and to enjoy the beauty of the parks and other amusements and recreation places it would be a ghastly joke on the face of civilization.

Just what progress Heppner will make, then, during the coming year must depend entirely on we people who live here on—what we collectively desire and collectively determine to have. If we really want a new and modern hotel—want it in the collective way, we will have a hotel. If we want a better water supply we will have that too, or at least we will get things going in the direction of our collective desire and we will realize that desire at the earliest possible moment. If we want an opera house or assembly hall in which entertainments and public meetings can be comfortably held we can have that too for, mind you, the people of Heppner, once they line up in a collective way and go after most any proposition are no pikers. They represent a lot of brain, a lot of money and a lot of energy and those three things collectively used, will accomplish much.

Heppner has suffered some heavy heavy losses during the past year but as losses belong to the past there is no use wasting valuable time grieving about them. It is more to the point to put in our time being thankful for all the good things the old year brought the town. We are not wading in mud like we were a year ago, thanks to the macadam paving and we have a new city charter which will permit more and greater improvements in the future. We have shown the world that Heppner and Morrow county can go over the top in Liberty Bond and Red Cross campaigns with the best of them. Shouldn't we be thankful for these things?

As a direct result of the fire the old town is rid of a lot of old fire-trap buildings that had pretty well outlived their usefulness and there is mighty little debris left to be cleared away to make ready for new concrete buildings on which the insurance rate will not be prohibitive.

In fact there was never such an opportunity in Heppner's history for her people to get together and, collectively do big things for the town.

It's up to we people who are now here to start in. Let's get busy.
