Sam E. Van Vactor returned from Portland Monday evening after spending a week in the metropolis on legal business.

M. B. Haines mine host of the Iona hotel and who is held in high esteem by the travelling public who come that way, was a Heppner visitor Thursday.

Judge F. H. Robinson, of Iona was a business visitor in Heppner Thursday. He reports everything lovely in the Egg City even to the price of eggs.

Jack Knox who has been working down on the sand for a month or so came to town Sunday and went down on the Hynd ranch for the summer.

C. L. Freeman, head of the dry goods department in the Minor & Co. store went to Vancouver Wash., Saturday on a business trip connected with the sale of a fine fruit farm he owns near that city.

R. F. Wigglesworth was in from Butter creek this morning and reports everything lovely in that fertile region. Lambing is in full swing on the Wigglesworth ranches and a splendid record is being made.

Another hotel consolidation meeting was held last evening and it is understood that the next move will be the solicitation of subscriptions for stock in the new company to build on the Star theatre corner.

Mrs. Bertha Drew Gillman, of Heppner, department president of Oregon Woman's Relief corps, is a visitor in the city, and while here is being entertained extensively by members of the order.—Oregonian.

Lovers of peace and harmony have feared a violent clash between county and city authorities this week. Commissioner Bleakman has been having his teeth worked on by Mayor Vaughan but as the job is about completed it is hoped bloodshed and black eyes may be averted.

Mrs. McKinley, of Portland, was in Heppner last week visiting her mother, Mrs. N. H. Whetstone and her brothers Guy and Glenn Boyer. Mrs. McKinley returned to Portland Monday accompanied by her mother who will spend a week visiting in the Rose City.

Mrs. W. D. Newlon of the artemisia well ranch, and Mr. Sam Ritchie, a neighbor, were in Heppner Thursday trying out the depth of mud in which a Ford can conveniently navigate. Mr. Newlon is still in the east where he went a couple of months ago on business connected with the further development of his section of the county.

J. W. Harrison took a trip over to the Irrigon country last week where he looked over several properties with a view to buying a home and locating there. He was well pleased with the possibilities of that country and expects to return and invest there. Mr. Harrison says many orchards are being pulled out and the ground planted to alfalfa and thinks the future prosperity of the section will come from a combination of alfalfa, corn, cows and pigs.

John McHugh, a prosperous resident of the Boardman project, was a visitor in Heppner for a few days last week. Mr. McHugh recently returned from a trip to New York city where he spent several weeks visiting his sisters and other relatives and friends. Mr. McHugh has forty acres of as well improved land as there is on the Boardman project and is a strong believer in the future possibilities of the water, soil and sunshine of that section as a wealth producing combination. On one-tenth of an acre last season Mr. McHugh grew two tons of as fine potatoes as one could wish to see—or taste.

GEORGE DYKSTRA VISITS BEND

George Dykstra has returned from a visit at Bend where he was called recently by the death of the two-year old child of his son, Valley Dykstra.

Mr. Dykstra came through the place where Bend now stands some thirty years ago when he first came to eastern Oregon from the Willamette valley, and he says he absolutely was amazed to see the wonderful changes that have taken place since that time. While on that trip he camped where the city of Bend now stands and in the morning he sought the highest ground near his camp and then climbed the highest tree handy to get a view of the country. As far as the eye could reach all he could see was rock and juniper trees and there was no visible evidence that a million square miles of such country could support even a jack rabbit. Now, however, the country is under irrigation and far and wide are scattered prosperous ranches whose owners are getting rich raising alfalfa and beef cattle. A prosperous city has sprung up with big saw mills employing thousands of workmen and the air on every hand is pervaded with a spirit of optimism and progress.

On the train going in Mr. Dykstra met the government engineer in charge of a big project now under construction who told him that the main canal of the new project will be forty feet wide on the bottom and will carry a stream of water six feet deep.

While Mr. Dykstra thinks well of the Bend country he says Morrow county will beat it once the John Day project is put through and he is of the opinion that if the people now in Heppner and Morrow county were imbued with the same spirit as are the people of the Bend country that the John Day project would soon be in course of construction.
