

HIS SWADDLING CLOTHES

BRITISH EXPERT ANALYZES WAR SAVINGS WORK

Large Number of Investors Gives Greater Stability to Financial Situation.

Of the benefit to a nation of popular investment in government securities of small denominations, a student of the British War Savings movement writes: "As the nation's power to save and accumulate capital depends upon an excess of income over necessary expenditure and as this power to save is obviously greater amongst the well-to-do, it is imperative that future propagandist work should be conducted amongst the upper and middle classes no less than amongst the wage earners. "The work must also be continued amongst the wage earners, for obvious reasons. We all realize the advantages to be derived by the state from the more even distribution of wealth which an increase in the number of small investors implies. We all realize the greater stability which a large number of small investors must give to the financial situation. It is certain also that wise spending and saving amongst the masses of the people tends to increase their efficiency and develop their self-respect. It must also result in the growth of a more efficient race of producers in the next generation. In this direction wise spending may ultimately have no less beneficial effects than saving although not so immediately adding to the material wealth of the nation." There is food for thought in this for the people of the nation with our War Savings Stamps so accessible.

LEAVES LEGS IN FRANCE; DANCES FOX TROT HERE

Uncle Sam Gives Soldier Boy New Lease on Life.

Libbard Evans is a colored soldier boy who had both legs blown off in action. He lives for the present at Letterman General Hospital in the Presidio in San Francisco. He can and does dance fox trots and one-steps. How? Why? Of course to dance a fox trot or a one-step a fellow has to have legs—good legs. Well, Evans has them—not his own legs of flesh and bone, but his own willow legs with joints and everything. He is going to leave Letterman pretty soon and go back to work and make his living and probably get married and raise children. That's the how. The why of it is—the government of the United States has gone in for leg and arm making. It is giving a specially built leg or arm or hand or a pair of legs or arms or hands to every soldier who lost his legs or arms in the war. At Letterman in particular they are making legs and arms and hands in their own workshop. They are making them because they have hit upon a better artificial limb than the private manufacturers are turning out, not excepting the "Liberty Leg" which the government supplies in most cases. This is one phase of the reconstruction work that Uncle Sam is quietly carrying on. It is one of the least expensive, but it is costing hundreds of thousands of dollars. Remember that when Uncle Sam comes knocking at your door with the Victory Liberty Loan. Much of the money you will lend is going to regenerate those men who gave of their flesh and blood for their country.

THE VICTORY DRIVE Make your four small loans into one. And finish up the Victory Loan.

PROFESSORS OF FINANCE WARN NO BANK LOAN

U. of C. and Stanford Experts Point the Way to Sound Reconstruction Finance

The banks of the United States must be left free to finance the reconstruction of productive enterprise and must not be cluttered up with the Victory Liberty Loan. That is the composite, thought-out opinion of two of the West's most noted professors of finance, Carl C. Plehn, professor of finance in the University of California, and Murray L. Wilman, head of the department of economics and finance of Stanford University. Both agree that the money needed to finish paying for the war should not come out of working capital, but should be raised out of individual savings of humble and wealthy. "If the people take the loan, as they must," Professor Plehn says, "the banks will be left free to lend to the manufacturer, the farmer, the grocer, the butcher, and the baker, so that they can get busy again on a peace time basis. Then production and business will grow and, by the formula, prices will come to normal. If we 'leave it to the banks,' they will have no funds left for business, big or little. We, ourselves, will not profit and the day of our redemption will only be postponed." Professor Wilman, whose ability caused him to be called from Stanford to Washington for war finance service, agrees with the California economist, adding: "It would be a grave mistake to saddle the banks of the country with the Victory Loan at this time." When two professors agree, it's time to sit up and take notice. When two professors not only agree with each other, but agree with the Government, that settles it. Finance is their business—particularly Government finance. They have spent their lives studying it and are paid good salaries for, teaching the principles of it to the men who are going to run the nation tomorrow. Finance is not the business of the wisecracker who screws down the corners of his mouth and says, "Let the banks do it." Better take the advice of scientists who know.

THE STATE CHAMBER

The state-wide campaign for members for the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce is on full blast. The state has been thoroughly organized and before the end of next week it is expected there will be several thousand new members enrolled.

Although the actual campaign for members does not begin until next Monday, the workers in some sections report their quota already filled and that the actual drive in those sections will produce additional members. The "flying squadron" of speakers is hard at work, and the splendid cooperation of county and city managers will produce results of a most pleasing nature.

George Quayle, the general secretary, is highly optimistic. "The state chamber," he said, "is out to do big things and is not going to disappoint those loyal Oregonians who are putting their shoulder to the wheel. The state chamber is going to make Oregon a bigger and better and a more prosperous state than it ever has been. It is not going to play any favorites and it is not going to be the tool of politicians and self-seekers. It is going to co-operate in future legislative matters for the good of the state, just as it did in the session of the legislature just closed. The organization made a wonderful progress at Salem and as its aims and objects become better known to the people and to the members of future legislatures, still better results will be had."—Portland Commerce.
