FORMER RESIDENT VISITS HERE

J. H. Gemmill, of Tumalo, was a pleasant caller at the Herald office last Thursday. Mr. Gemmill was a former resident and successful farmer of this county but has been living on the Tumalo project near Bend for a couple of years and is here with Mrs. Gemmill for a short visit with relatives while looking after property interests here. Mr. Gemmill is an ardent booster for the Tumalo country and thinks Morrow county should emulate the Deschutes country particularly in the matter of good roads. Every dollar judiciously expended for good roads, Mr. Gemmill thinks is worth considerably more than 100 cents in any country.

OREGON MEN WELCOMED

SALEM OR.—Today Oregon's soldiers who return daily from overseas receive a warm welcome in New York according to O. C. Leiter, chairman for the Oregon welcome committee at New York, who, in a personal letter to governor Olcott details some of the things which are being done to make the homecoming of Oregon's sons worth while.

He says: "We are all organized and going now have opened a modest headquarters and have received some money in addition to the state appropriation. We will handle this very carefully and in accordance with the spirit of the appropriation. The boys are drifting in now 25 and 30 a day, and we are doing all we can to cheer them up and make them realize that the people of Oregon are still with them and back of them."

"I attended a meeting the other day of all the chairmen of state committees in New York. There were 35 states represented, so you see that we are not alone in this work. I believe that we will do some good work. We have done a good deal already. The boys seem delighted to meet Oregon people and have a little place of their own to go. The women are calling on the wounded men in the hospitals, we help the boys get discharges from the army and navy if they need them. We make little advances to men temporarily out of funds which so far all have been paid back, and we are of as much practical assistance to them as we can be."

ranch went up to Heppner Friday to bring Uncle Joe's car home, where it had been receiving some repairs.

HOTEL MERGER "ON AGAIN"

The hotel situation has again settled down to a one company proposition and, it is understood that the deal for the Star Theatre has been closed and a substantial deposit paid on the property. This culmination of the situation seems to meet the hearty approval of those most interested in the building of a hotel as well as of the public generally. If Heppner gets in her gravity water system and a county-wide system of good roads the time may speedily come when the city will need two or three hotels but there will be plenty of time to build others when the need is established. One strictly modern first class hotel will fill a long-felt want in Heppner just now while two might prove to be in the white elephant class.

Both young men are well pleased with university life and are getting along with their work nicely. Norton is now a resident of Eugene his parents having removed to that city since he entered school last fall.

John Kilkenny, who estimates his sheep thousands in blocks of five and ten, was in town Saturday looking after business matters and jolly-ing his friends. John says the lambkins are gambling on the green on Sand Hollow these days but that the sheep business would be a better gamble if the green grass would keep nearer space with the rapidly increasing lambkins.

EX-COWBOY STOPS RUNAWAY

When Garnett Barratt rove his four-horse team to the wood yard near the depot Thursday afternoon to get a load of wood he took it for granted that horse teams accustomed to bucking automobiles on the narrow grades of Morrow county's roads would take no offense at a railroad train and the like but he found himself mistaken. When the Heppner flyer rumbled in the horses snorted, when the bulgine backed down right alongside of them they bolted and lost no time about it. The leaders soon disengaged themselves from the others and took to the suburbs but the wheelers stuck to the middle of Main street and made the time they could with the heavy wagon on a stiff up-grade. As they passed the First National Bank E. L. Wallace, one of the cashiers of that institution, saw what was happening and made a run for it. Wallace used to wrangle cow ponies and hog tie refractory steers on the Montana ranges in the good old days when the annual round-up was the event of the year, and a bit of a runaway had no terrors for him. Proving that he could still qualify as a sprinter Wallace soon grabbed the tail-board, vaulted into the wagon, put on the brake and then grabbed for the reins but didn't get them because they were dragging on the ground. Just then a pedestrian coming down the street got in the game and threw some sort of monkey-wrench into the wheels which gave Wallace his chance. Taking a flying leap alongside the off wheeler he grabbed the bit and succeeded in bringing the outfit to a halt. No particular damage was done and Mr. Wallace was, perhaps, glad of a bit of excitement to bring back the memories of round-up days.
