THE SALVATION ARMY

TIME was when the Salvation Army was looked upon by those of the "upper classes" of society who had ever heard of it, as a good deal of a joke. When even the ministers of fashionable and near fashionable churches would no more think of fraternizing with Salvation Army workers in religious work, social improvement activities or charitable endeavor, than they would consider going down into the red light district to select their bosom friends or to find guests for social functions in their own homes.

The times have changed, however, and today no religio-charitable organization on the face of the earth holds a higher place in the esteem of real people, be they rich or poor, christian or infidel, democratic, republican or socialist, than does the Salvation Army—that wonderful organization of consecrated men and women that for more than 70 years has been going down into the dark and loathsome places of this earth intent on the religion of service, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, ministering to the sick and afflicted, lighting the beacon of hope before the eyes of the discouraged outcast; bearing a word of cheer to some distressed soul that most needed it.

While in recent years the work of the Salvation Army has become recognized as one of the biggest factors in reclaiming the submerged strata of society and its motto "The World for God," one under which all right-minded people may in a way unite, it required the world war to bring out boldly the real heart and soul, the lofty purpose and the untiring zeal of the men and women workers of this army of salvationists.

In the early days of America's participation in the war we heard but little about Salvation Army work over there and had it not been that the big-hearted, red-blooded Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks got wise to what the army was doing, what it wanted to do and what stupendous things needed to be done, we might have continued to give all the glory to some of the larger, more popular and better advertised organizations.

However, when the Elks got wise they at once proceeded to get busy and without pomp or ceremony, brass bands or newspaper publicity, within the confines of their own lodge rooms the Elks raised a fund and turned it over to the lassies for coffee, pie and doughnuts that must have looked as good to the army as the crisp doughnuts and the steaming coffee tasted to the doughboys after a day in No Man's Land.

In the United War Work drive in which $170,500,000 was called for and $205,000,000 actually subscribed, the money was partitioned to seven authenticated war relief organizations as follows:

Y. M. C. A., $110,142,000; Knights of Columbus, $36,015,875; Y. W. C. A., $18,677,100; War Camp Community Service, $18,677,100; Jewish Welfare, $4,203,910; American Library Association $4,517,800; Salvation Army, $4,210,500.

Thus, while it is apparent that the Salvation Army received but a fraction of this aid allotted to some of the other organizations it has never been claimed by any disinterested person familiar with the relief work done on the battlefield that the service rendered and the actual free relief afforded the American doughboys by the Salvation Army workers were in any manner limited by the amount of money received by that organization nor has this writer ever heard one word of criticism from any returned soldier or civilian directed at the administration of army funds. Outside the actual expense incurred in getting workers and supplies to France and maintaining them there, every dollar donated or allotted to the Salvation Army went straight to where it would do some doughboy or other allied soldier the most good and if there was ever a single case of Salvation Army workers selling a penny's worth of supplies to any soldier, it has not been reported in Heppner. As much may not be said of one of the other beneficiaries of the war campaign drive.

Since the war closed the Salvation Army has abandoned the old way of raising money by the perpetual solicitation plan and have adopted the "drive" plan which was developed in financing the war. By this change they expect to get the money in a week sufficient to carry on their work for a year thereby conserving the time and energy of the workers heretofore expended in raising money, allowing them full time for doing the real work of the army.

For this Home Service Fund the army is asking of the people of the United States $13,000,000, and of that sizable amount Morrow county is asked to contribute $1200. In order to make a shaft job of this Heppner Lodge, No. 328, B. P. O. E., has undertaken to gather in the entire amount next Saturday evening at the fair pavilion when an entertainment such as only a band of Elk can put on will be provided. If you are an old-timer this night's fun will carry you back to the good, old days when everything went and money grew on the sagebrush; if you are of the younger generation you will get a glimpse of how your father and grandfathers lived, and loved, and made a "stake" or "went broke" as the case may have been. There will be money to burn that night and plenty of places to "burn it" and you will never spend a dollar in a better cause.

BRAIN LEAKS

Senator Knox says the new covenant of the League of Nations is "worse than the old one." And his newest reasons for continuing his opposition are worse than his old ones. Republicans propose to enact a law requiring Congress to convene annually on the fifth of March. Is this plan designed to enable each succeeding session to pass bills that Republican filibusters kill in the previous Congress?

A new floor has been put down in Hotel Echo dining room this week, says the Echo News. What became of the other one—did the guests eat it? Spouting of cooties an eastern Yank writes home that he knows now why Napoleon always had his picture taken with his hands inside his shirt.

The county agent wishes to announce that his office will endeavor to co-operate with the farmers in handling the labor situation as was so well done by Mr. Brown acting as county agent last year. He has several men listed now looking for work. He hopes to arrange for permanent office help very shortly so that it will be open at all hours of the day.

The Building Question

Is paramount in the country today. During the war practically all building operations throughout the United States were stopped—while the demand for houses and other buildings went on increasing day by day until it is now one of the most important questions before us.

The need is greater than ever today and you can build cheaper now than you can six months hence. Lumber and other material will get no cheaper but will go much higher. We are doing everything possible to encourage building in Heppner and have a fine showing of

Plan Books, Blue Prints and Estimates

Which we gladly place at the disposal of our patrons. They cover a broad field in the building line and include everything in the way of late ideas in residences from a neat little cottage to the most pretentious bungalow. On the farm nothing adds to the pleasure of life more than a correct solution of the housing question. And we can solve it for you—whether it be a residence, a barn, machinery shed, dairy house, chickenhouse, grainery, or whatever the need may be.

We have everything you need in the way of High Grade Lumber and Building Materials and will be glad to talk over your Building Problems with you.
