TAKES NEW JOB

Bill Ayers, who keeps the home fires burning at the court house when artificial heat is needed and acts as custodian of contraband when there is anything to "custodian," but who finds time hanging heavy these hot dry days, has taken a new job—that of weather prophet. His first prediction was made yesterday when he stated that because the sky was absolutely cloudless and the atmosphere absolutely clear that we would have rain soon. Bill argues that as the present summer has proven that clouds do not always mean rain clear skies do not always mean dry weather. By way of illustration Bill pointed out that he once knew a man who kept a bottle of red-eyes in his house for years and never took a drink and that he knew another fellow who used to get full every few days and never bought a drink, so there you are. We shall see what we shall see about this rain business.

PENDLETON MAN DIRECTOR

At a meeting of the exhibitors of Oregon and Washington the other day Guy Matlock, of the Pendleton Amusement Co., was made a director of the new corporation. The new concern will make it possible for exhibitors who are members to secure the latest and best pictures without the expense of buying individual admissions, and will enable them to offer first class attractions without exorbitant prices.
