BE NATURAL--

Lay Something Away for the Future

It is natural to save—to provide for the future. The squirrel gathers nuts—the bee honey, to provide for the days when they cannot work.

The day will come when you will not be able to work—start NOW to provide for this time. If you have no account, open one here now. If you have one, add to it regularly, and watch it grow.

High school work was recently authorized by vote of the district, and a beginning class started with good prospects for a successful year's work. While the school is not a large affair the enrollment is considerably larger than it was a year ago and the spirit seems to be most excellent. The school board employed several persons in various capacities for nearly a week putting the building and grounds in good shape, and the new books will be had as soon as they can be delivered by the dealers.

The Irrigon school district has installed a transport for pupils who live some distance from the school building, and Mr. Battle Rand is in charge of the bus. All went finely until Friday when trouble began. He started on the course with the Metz the usual vehicle, but after a short-ling start and a run of a mile or more it stopped short and refused to go further, notwithstanding a volume of encouragement from the driver. The driver, however, understands the obligations of public service, and he walked back a mile or more and got the "H'ol" Ford." When he was about half way to school the gas supply ran out, so he had to go afoot back to his home to get a supply of gas. In the course of half an hour he had the machine recharged and then the company rambled right along, reporting at the school building only a few minutes late.
