Your reporter begs leave to offer the following pactic effusion for publication in the Herald. It was picked up near the Irrigon school building and is supposed to have emanated from the fertile brain-box of one of Irrigon's bright pupils. A little attention shown by your paper may so occurage the youth of this county that we shall have many excellent erses with which to while away the julet hours:

Woman, woman, thou art a peach. Hanging on a tree beyond man's reach:

But, if a man, he throws his kinn; He winks his eye and the peach is
