REGARDING THE PAYMENT OF FREIGHT CLAIMS

The following letter comes from R. H. Aishton, regional director of railroads:

The provisions of supplement No. 2 to circular No. 84 regarding the two year and one day limitation in the conditions of the bill of lading are modified by the following ruling received from the division of law:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has held in the Decker case, I. C. C. Docket 10656, that it does not construe the limitation in the bill of lading as prohibiting the payment after two years and one day of meritorious claims if seasonably filed.

"Claims on account of shipments moving prior to Federal control, if filed within the period prescribed in the bill of lading, should be paid or declined on their merits, notwithstanding the two year and one day clause in the bill of lading, provided that in every case, the consent of the corporation to such payment is first obtained.

"Until further notice, claims on account of shipments moving during Federal control, if filed within the period prescribed in the bill of lading, should be adjusted on their merits, notwithstanding the two year and one day clause in the bill of lading.

"Extreme care should be exercised in the settling of all claims of this class so that there will be no discrimination."
