Mr. Ely, merchant and postmaster of Morgan, was a visitor here last Thursday having come up to put his shoulder to the wheel in the new county fair project. Mr. Ely keeps a few good race horses and is naturally interested in helping promote a real fair in his own county with a real race track and other up-to-date features.

Chas. Lambirth is here from Tillamook county looking for investments in Morrow county wheat lands in the interest of a number of Pendleton wheat growers who are being attracted to the more or less undeveloped resources of Morrow county as a profitable field for investment. The Lambirth operated the W. B. Findley ranch 20 miles north of Lexington last season and being a practical wheat farmer he is looking for an opening in this county for the future.

C. Melville, who raises wheat in "the sand country," 20-some miles north of Lexington, was an interested spectator at the fair meeting here Thursday. Mr. Melville gets his mail by rural route from Echo which, being a loyal Morrow countian, does not please him much and he is a strong booster for a rural route out of Heppner to serve his section of the county. He says such a mail service would enhance the value of every acre of land out there about $5.00.

L. A. Hunt, Morrow County's bushing agent, is no small potatoes when it comes to boosting for a bigger and better county fair. Mr. Hunt and F. E. Brown started the ball rolling last fall when Brown was secretary of the fair board and trying to make some-what better without much success and they have been keeping at it pretty nearly ever since. When Hunt came out of retirement who he is, and was tried during his last year of opening out and killing a few hundred thousand rabbits just to keep from working themselves.

Just to show they are good steady contributors Padberg and Blackman agreed to stay over one day after other county business had been disposed of to help work out the new fair project. It paid them, too, because they not only made a good deal with the fair association for the county, but they also helped make a good deal with the county for the fair association. Both gentlemen had a good strong yard in the hole in the Get that both Hardman and lower Rhoe creek have ideal locations for a fair ground and race track so it behove the Heppner bunch to get busy.
