BOARDMAN NEWS

The teachers of the public school were each voted a "valentine" by the school board last Saturday. In the form of re-election. All salaries under $125 per month were raised to that amount. Acceptances are to be filed with the principal not later than March 11th, and it is requested that no one sign a contract unless it is their bona fide intention to carry out the same.

Special flag exercises will be held Friday afternoon in dedication of the new steel flag pole just erected.

Rumors are strong that Boardman is to have a bank. Estimates for a suitable building have been asked for and parties are in town in connection with the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ballenger are enjoying a visit from Mrs. Ballenger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murchie of Wasco.

Rev. Mr. Self of Portland, preached in the Community church last Sunday and announced services for next Sunday. He will also preach at Irivion.

E. Francis Williams, architect for the school building made his regular visit of inspection Monday.

A dangerous fire threatened Cramer & Co.'s place of business last week one night about 1:00 o'clock. The fire started outside under the rear of the building and just below the sleeping apartments. Flames pouring through a hole in the floor left by the removal of a drain pipe awakened the family in time to arouse the town and save the building from serious damage. Incendiarism is suspected.

There are several pupils out of school owing to the grippe but school will continue if matters do not get too serious. It has been our experience that pupils are as well off at school as on the streets.

A special school meeting is to be called March 12th to authorize the school board to sell the Castel Rock buildings.

Charles Chick, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Chick, returned from Moscow, Idaho, where he has been attending the University of Idaho. He was forced to take a vacation from the university on account of ill health.

SOME OF THE STYLES OF INTEREST TO THE LADIES FOR 1920

The following is a summary of the new styles which will grace the forms of the fair ladies for the coming summer and attract the attention of the male population to a certain extent:

The styles in suits vary but the Eton or bolero jacket is popular, also the pony or box coat as well as the more tailored style with longer unbuttoned coat. The ripple coat is still good style. Navy blue is the most popular color. Skirts of suits seem to be a trifle shorter and wider. Materials are tricotine, serge and tweed.

The leading fabric for afternoon dresses is Taffeta, followed byorgette as a close second. Long tight-fitting sleeves have again been discarded and midday will be seen with the short sleeve on her afternoon dresses. The Bouffant effect is another feature of the dresses, which show increased width. Besides being be-ruflled and be-frilled is in some cases wired at the hip line. A new effect is obtained by the use of black taffeta and white organdy.

Sport clothes will be much in style this season and their popularity will increase after the early spring months. Jersey and tricotee are the favored materials and are shown in the shades of rose, blue, green, etc. Silk sport skirts will be popular, as will the black velvet jackets which were introduced last summer. Blouses are of tricotee, georgette and cotton materials. One interesting note for blouses is the use of Batik designs, which are hand painted in colors.

SALVATION ARMY CARES FOR UNFORTUNATES

Portland, Feb. 14.—It is the girls from the small towns and country districts, rather than those from the city, that furnish the majority of the inmates of the Salvation Army rescue and maternity home here, according to Major Sophia Harris, matron of the home. Investigation of the home's records, which are never shown except to rightful authorities, reveals that the institution shelters girls from practically every Oregon county although more than half are registered from this city.

Major Harris explains the apparent majority of Portland girls in the home with the assertion that unfortunate girls naturally turn to the large cities when leaving their homes to avoid discovery. It is not their original intention to enter a maternity home but when forced to it by circumstances they give Portland as their address rather than the smaller towns or counties where they may have a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Not infrequently their condition is kept from the knowledge even of the members of their immediate family. Everything is done at the home to guard the girls.

Salvation Army advisory boards already formed as part of the Army's Home Service Program for 1920, which are investigating their local conditions, are bringing to light unexpected problems relative to immorality. In several sections where there are large industries employing many women housing conditions have been found to be such as to contribute directly to immorality and the Army officers already have under advisement suggestions as to how these may be remedied.
