THE SILK SHIRT CRAZE

So many millions of dollars are tied up in silk shirts for men that the production of real necessities is hampered by exhaustion of credit resources, according to a statement issued from the Pittsburgh office of the Savings Division, United States Treasury. Information given to the treasury department by silk shirt manufacturers indicates that the man who possesses a half dozen of these articles will have to keep them in a safe deposit box in order to be safe. In 1921 silk shirts will be so valuable that the owner will keep them with his Liberty Bonds. Manufacturers say, however, that those who have bought silk shirts in half dozen lots will not have many Liberty Bonds left by that time.

One manufacturer told the government investigators, that his company now had orders for $13,000,000 worth of shirts for this spring and that half of this amount was for silk shirts. Many of the other grades ordered, he said, contained silk stripes. "Never has there been such a craze for silk," this manufacturer said. "Ten years ago we sold practically no silk shirts. The workmen now wear silk shirts but wealthy men do not. They know the cheaper weaves will give better service."

According to the government figures, raw silk for spring shirts which sold recently for $6.00 a pound has advanced now to $18.30 a pound. The price has increased so rapidly that both manufacturers and retailers in many instances are refusing to put money into such merchandise because they do not care to finance such a huge trade at present prices. One manufacturer declared that the country was near the limit of credit resources.

The remedy for the high cost of necessities lies with the public, according to the treasury department. If the public refuses to buy more than absolute necessities and conserves the money saved, prices will be reduced. Extravagance not only affects the persons practicing it but injures the entire country according to the treasury department.

S. A. CUTS RED TAPE

State lines and the inelasticities of the laws of sovereign states are not permitted to hamper the Salvation Army in its work of service to humanity. The Salvation Army takes care of the man from Oregon, wherever he is, if he is homeless, friendless and in want.

C. E. Ehrman of Portland, fell ill on the overland train and was taken off at Willows, California. He was not a resident of Colusa county and could not be sent to the county hospital, although he was near death. Willows people interested themselves in his case and sent him to San Francisco. There he was denied entrance to a state institution because he was not a citizen of the California commonwealth. His friends of Willows bought him a bed in a San Francisco hospital and paid for an operation which saved his life. But it became necessary for him to leave the hospital. No door the friends knew of was open to him. He was weak from illness and his operation.

Representatives of the Salvation Army Home Service program for 1920 at this time organized Colusa county advisory board. "Here's a case" said the board. And they told about Ehrman.

A wire to San Francisco brought the case to the attention of the Salvation Army there. In three hours he was out of the hospital, in kindly hands, cared for and provided for and has a place in the Salvation Army Industrial Home where he may remain as long as he desires. The service is free because it is a service to a man in need. Nor does his Oregon citizenship bar him from the ministrations of the Salvation Army in the California metropolis.

Happy Thought.

A married man has to be a brilliant liar to keep peace in the family. One of them talked about Mary in his sleep all night recently, and his wife's name is Sarah. And there was helpup next morning until he had an idea and explained that he went to see Mary Pickford in a movie drama the night before and he dreamed about the show all night. And he got away with it, too.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Beliefs That Center About Pearls.

Many superstitious beliefs prevail in the East concerning pearls, those gems of the ocean deeps. For instance, it is a common practice (only among the rich, needless to say) to powder a pearl and swallow it either as a tonic for failing vigor or to ward off impending disease or ill luck; or a maiden may rub her eyes with a pearl and thereafter, by merely gazing at a man, she may make him her slave!

A little of the Real Tobacco Chew gives more genuine satisfaction than the big chew of the old kind.

Saves money, too—because this class of tobacco lasts much longer. The rich tobacco taste stays right with it.

Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.

Seven Edwards, Kings of England. Seven English kings have borne the name Edward. The first three belonged to the Plantagenet family; the fourth belonged to the house of York, and so did the fifth, the boy murdered in the Tower by his uncle, Richard II.; the sixth was a Tudor, and the seventh was Edward VII.

A "Rattling" Good Car. At the sale of government cars recently held in London one of the cars was described as a "rattling" good one. It is said that the sale included a tame squirrel trained to run behind and pick up the falling nuts. Truly English humor is of a more gentle kind than ours.—Living Age.

Proper View of Peace. Peace is our proper relation to all men. There is no reason why, as far as we are concerned, we should not be at peace with everybody. If even they are not at peace with us, we may be at peace with them. Let them look to their own hearts, we have only to do with our own.—J. B. Mosley.
