FARM STUFF WILL SELL BY AD IN HOME PAPER

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, April 25.—Can a farmer advertise potato s as a grocer advertises sugar? Can he sell hay, grain, pigs or fruit by advertising? Do you know?

These questions have been answered in a practical way by Dr. George R. Varney, former farmer, now advertising expert and instructor in purchasing and selling at O. A. C.

"Systematic advertising has built up a big business for a wealthy Oregon stockman of my acquaintance," he says. "He deals in thorough-bred cattle, and uses the local paper to tell his neighbors about them."

"I had to learn the value of printers' ink by hard-bought experience in farming myself. I was brought up in Maine, where we had to haul our produce 27 miles to market. Had I known it then, we could have placed a dollar ad in a local paper and saved the big expense of marketing."

Once using local advertising a farmer will always use it, thinks Dr. Varney. The difficulty is to convince him that it pays. He will place a blackboard in front of his farm and advertise three-year-old pigs or hay or grain in hopes that a few persons passing along the road will read it.

"By placing his ad in his home paper he could reach 20 times as many buyers, and probably be sold out before the ad appeared again," says Dr. Varney.

Dr. Varney, an enthusiast in the production of blooded rabbits, has had many years of experience in farming.

"I practice what I preach," he declares, "and it has brought me results. I create a market for my rabbits, and sell all I can produce."

And practically what he preaches is a religion with Dr. Varney. He is pastor of the Baptist church at Corvallis.

SCHOOL GROUNDS SUITED TO BEAUTY AND TO USE

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, April 25.—Correct landscaping will make the school grounds attractive and useful recreation parks as well as space furnishers for holding the buildings, suggests Zed E. Dorris, senior in landscape gardening at O. A. C. But the buildings must be placed in right relationship to one another.

"Plenty of air, sunlight and room for active games are supplied by grounds well laid out and kept up," says Mr. Dorris. "Just how well suited to the children's needs may be seen by the extent to which they use it."

"Part of the grounds may be set aside for the planting of shrubs. Not the light and flowering kinds, but rather hardy ornamentals and a few beautiful trees. Native varieties are often best, and children take more interest in those they know."

"The ornamentals are grouped about the entrance and against the buildings, with the big trees in the background. The playground is not to be shaded, as the children need the sunshine. Benches and sand pits are placed under the trees."

"Lawns cannot be kept up about the buildings if no playground is provided. The little feet soon scuff up even the toughest turf."

"Careful planning will make the school ground the most popular place in the child's life. In planning one should think of them as a place where many hours will be passed when the school is over."

"Good plantings are appreciated not only by the children but by their elders as well."

Doing the BIG things FIRST

HERE is the first tire that ever was given a whole factory to itself!

Firestone Plant No. 2, with a capacity of 16,000 tires per day, is devoted solely to the production of the 3 1/2 inch size.

It was a problem made to order for Firestone — big volume production of a high grade article.

Firestone met it with a typical Firestone answer — a separate $7,000,000 factory.

Most miles per dollar is a Firestone pledge, to the big car owner as well as to the owners of light cars. See the new Standard Oversize Firestone Cord.
