FARMERS ORGANIZATIONS FAVOR EDUCATIONAL MEASURES

Oregon's organized farmer folk have been quite united in support of the higher educational measure on the ballot May 21—the measure providing one and twenty-six-hundredths mills for protection of the work of the State Agricultural College, State University and State Normal School.

Pomona and subordinate granges, farmers' unions, livestock associations, farm bureaus, and community clubs in all parts of the state have adopted resolutions endorsing the bill and pledging support.

The resolutions as a rule express the appreciation of the country and town districts of the advantages of free and equal education for their sons and daughters, and of the benefits of extension service. They also often express approval of the improvement in farm life and home life and in farm and orchard yields, more or less of the credit of which they give to higher education.

One set of resolutions noted the statement that so tersely sums up the case as follows: "If a family had contained four persons in 1913, and had an income of $100 a month; and if now, in 1920, it has 10 persons and an income of only $45 a month, then its situation would be the same as that of the Agricultural College, State University and State Normal School."

Since March 1, more than 350 organizations in Oregon have endorsed the higher educational bill, and now that election day is almost here, endorsements are being sent in at the rate of ten to fifteen a day. As in the case of the elementary measure, all classes seem able to unite in support of education.
