

Appreciation.
 Thou hast made me known to friends whom I knew not, Thou hast given me seats in homes not my own, Thou hast brought the distant near and made a brother of the stranger. When one knows thee, then alien there is none, then no door is shut. Oh grant me my prayer that I may never lose the bliss of the touch of the one, in the play of the many.—Tagore.

Tit's Occupational.
 An English newspaper suggests the use of generic names for household help, as, for instance: "Palmer" for parlor maid, "Jenny" for general "Sentry" for scullery maid, and so on. All very well, but suppose in the first case there were three parlor maids, would it distinguish them as "Palmer," "Palmer" and "Palmer"?—Boston Transcript.

VICTIM OF FATE'S HARSHNESS

Sad Story of Luther K. Linkenhooper Would Move Almost Any One to Tears.

"As I was coming to town just now," said the motorist, "I saw a peculiar sight; a thin, wild-eyed man, clad in a red-and-blue bedquilt, perched in a treetop and every now and then crying 'Hoink! Hoink!' to the unbridled glee of a gang of men and boys assembled below."

"That was Luther K. Linkenhooper, by the symptoms," replied the landlord of the tavern at Grudge. "He accumulated three second-hand Hootin' Nanny curs; one he traded for, one his brother-in-law wished onto him and one was left him by will. None of them were of any account, and so he set to work to take 'em all apart and make one good one out of the three. The task was too much for his mind, and after he had made about five from the ruins of the three and still had a lot of stuff left, and none of 'em would move a muscle, he began to chatter, then to yell, and finally took to his bed a-flopping. Once in a while he escapes from his relatives and gets out and cuts some such caper as you saw. He thinks he is a Hootin' Nanny himself."

"But, great guns! Even a car of the name you mention does not wear a bedquilt and climb trees!"

"Mebby not. But it would if it was as crazy at Luther is."—Kansas City Star.

Art Criticism.

One day a German subaltern who had been ordered to find billets presented himself at my house, writes a Belgian woman in the World's Work. I showed him among others the room occupied for more than two years by the American delegates of the relief commission, in which a reproduction of an ancient work of art—a bust without arms—stood on the mantel-piece. The subaltern thought the room appeared to be comfortable but, seeking to make himself disagreeable, he raised his eyebrows, and after looking at the reproduction, and said in a rude voice:

"Why, madam, did you cut the arms off this bust in a room destined to be occupied by a German officer?"

Words failed me. What could I say? He left the house with an offended air. But the incident had no sequel, which was most extraordinary.

Scientific Research.

Philip, who had received as a birthday present a beautiful new microscope, presently astounded the cook with the exclamation: "Hey, cook, lend me a flea, will you? I'll give it back to you in three minutes!"

BENEFIT OF LOCAL COUNCILS

Deal With Matters Which Vitalize Affect Welfare of Every Member of the Community.

Are you a lonesome citizen or are you a neighborly citizen?
 Are you and yours getting a square deal in your district?
 Are the pavements, the street cars, the gutters clean and giving good service?

Are the prices you pay for meat, potatoes, milk and bread, in your opinion, fair and right?

Is the school furnishing your child a good education in return for your taxes?

Is the landlord profiteering on your rent?

These, according to the councils, are a few of the important matters of everyday city living which should have a satisfactory answer if a man is to remain a satisfied citizen in his community. To get a satisfactory answer he must be a member of his local council. "In these times," says a circular explaining the organization, "the community council is a ray of hope. It is a nonpartisan, nonsectarian neighborhood organization of the people—the voice of the neighborhood."

Parentthetically, it may be added that a large part of the voice is feminine, thousands of housewives being enrolled in the various locals.—Exchange.

TO PREVENT LOSS BY FIRE

Simple Rules, If Properly Observed, Will Lead to an Enormous Annual Saving.

Use only safety matches and make it impossible for children to get them. Always place burned matches in metal receptacles; never throw them on the floor or into waste baskets.

To smoke in garages, in bed or around stables containing hay is deliberately to invite disaster.

One or more approved chemical fire extinguishers should be placed in every home. They must be protected against freezing.

It is well to see that the garden hose may be attached to the kitchen faucet.

Have the telephone number of the nearest fire station on a special card at your telephone.

Familiarize the family with the operation of the nearest fire alarm box. After operating a fire alarm stay near it to direct the firemen to the fire. Every minute is important.

Don't fail to notify the chief of the fire department of anything you may see in the neighborhood that is dangerous or liable to cause fire.—Exchange.

Plea for Home Ownership.

From Portland, Ore., a western view of what the own-your-own-home campaign means to the nation has been received by the United States department of labor.

William A. McRae of the Bank of California writes:

"Whether the home is a cottage or a palace it equily shelters and enshrines the sacred love and devoted affection of all that is best and worthiest in our common humanity. Why should every married man own his home?"

"First, to give his wife a chance to make a home, which is the natural desire of the normal woman, who in the cramped quarters of the boarding house or apartment lacks sufficient breathing space. Secondly, to supply his family with an environment where paternal love and devotion may have ample room and the privacy so essential to enable parents to train their children by setting before them in their plastic stage an example worth while."

Old, but Ever True.

It is in part to help the spiritual growth and to teach the "young idea" of community spirit "how to shoot" that the chamber of commerce published in its monthly bulletin lines like these:

If you like to live in the kind of a town like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike. You'll only find what you left behind, For there's nothing that's really new, It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.

It isn't the town, it's you.

Real towns aren't made by men afraid. Let somebody else get ahead. When everyone works and nobody strikes, You can raise a town from the dead. And if while you make your personal stake Your neighbors can make one, too, Your town will be what you want to see, It isn't the town, it's you.

Many Small Homes Built.

The building projects of 1919 figure up to $2,000,000,000 for the whole country, according to a New York authority. The most interesting feature of the matter is the fact that an unprecedented percentage of the building was in the building of small homes.
