THE CANNY SCOT The temperance reformer was justly proud of having converted the biggest drunkard in a Scottish town and induced him--he was the local grave digger--to get up on the platform and testify. This is how he did it. "My friends," he said, "I never thought to stand upon this platform with the provost on one side of me and town clerk on the other side of me. I never thought to tell ye that for a whole month I've not touched a drop of anything. I've saved enough to buy me a brass oak coffin with brass handles and brass nails, and if I'm a teetotaler for another month I shall be wantin' it."--New York Globe.
