HORSES IN DEMAND

The demand for mules to work in in the Texas oil fields has nearly denuded Kansas of mules which are selling at phenomenally high prices. Montana and Nebraska have been drawn upon heavily and now Kern county is shipping horses to compete with the mules in the new oil fields.

With the rapidly mounting costs of fuel, oil, rubber and machinery the economic factor of the horse cannot be ignored and the more trucks and are put in use the greater demand there will be for the horse. Each have their uses, and each is supplemental to the other. With every section of new land brought under cultivation, with every new oil field opened up, with every new enterprise established by trucks and tractors, there is an increased demand for the horse that can do the work.

The lines are sharply drawn between drafters and inefficient, the weaklings being inexorably scrapped, the demand being for bigger and weightier horses with more quality, spread and bottom.

BOOST

Boost your city, boost our friend, Boost the lodge that you attend, Boost the street on which you're dwelling.

Boost the goods that you are selling, Boost the people round about you, They can get along without you, But success will quicker find them If they know that you're behind them

Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement, Boost the man for whom you labor, Boost the stranger and the neighbor, Cease to be a chronic knocker, Cease to be a progress blocker, If you'd make your city better Boost it to the final letter.

GOOD SEED CORN SELECTED

To start a good corn crop right for next year, the best growers are planning to select their seed in the field this fall. Farm bureaus, county agents, and farm crops extension specialist, W. S. Carpenter, will conduct seed selection demonstrations in some of the leading corn counties.

THE FARMERS' KICK

Freight rates have been increased 25 per cent, which means that it will cost about $44 more to ship a car of wheat to Portland than formerly. This means that 88,000 pounds of wheat will be worth just that much less at the warehouse in Condon than under the old rate, for the buyers will figure that way—and they set the price.

Yet when the farmer goes to buy his implements the price will be raised by the amount that it costs above the old price to get them here. All of the other things he buys will be raised in price by the increased freight rate.

In this instance he gets it in the neck both as producer and consumer. Other producers set the price for what the place on the market, and pass the increase along to the buyer. The farmer is the sufferer by both of the increases.

And after he has received a lower figure for his wheat on account of the increased freight rate, doubtless the mill again raises the price of flour and collects the increase again. This collecting of the bill that the farmer paid is doubtless an endless chain and the sooner a week link is found in it and business brought back to a semblance of honesty, the less chance there will be for the bolsheviks, the non-partisans and others of their ilk.—Condon Globe.
