Dated at Heppner, Oregon, this 4th day of December, 1920.

GEO. McDUFFEE, Sheriff of Morrow County, Oregon.

Hon. Charles A. Enslow, a well-known Wisconsin lawyer, was recently making a trip from New Orleans to Washington. While in the smoking car of a Southern railway train he was talking about ambition. "Yes, gentlemen," he said, "real ambition starts in childhood. And if we obey its impulses we not only attain to it, but we actually go far beyond it. Yes, our ambition is gratified beyond our wildest dreams." "Yes, gentlemen," said a military-looking gentleman who was also a passenger. "I had in my childhood an ambition. I desired to become a pirate." "Well," said Lawyer Enslow "you are pretty close to it are you not? I believe you are General Amer, manager of a hotel in New Orleans."

THE PUBLIC AND THE TELEPHONE CO.

In spite of the fact that a great majority of the telephone using public thoroughly understand the rights, duties, and obligations of public service companies, we find now and then an individual who does not understand the matter.

A telephone company, in its broadest sense, is a partnership consisting of the State as an institution, the public as a group of customers, and the company. The State determines the extent to which the company may go and regulates its rates, services and practices. The company furnishes the facilities with which these rights are exercised and the services rendered. Those members of the public who constitute the customers furnish the revenue with which the company is enabled to perform these services. No telephone company can exist without customers, and these customers must be treated with fairness both by the company and by the State. The State does not permit any undue burden to be placed upon a customer.

A public service corporation, in a broad sense, is merely an organized right to render the public a service, and in the same larger sense the service belongs to the company's customers. What benefits or harms the one has a like effect upon the other.

We are anxious that our present customers, applicants for service, and the company shall be treated fairly. To continue to extend our service under present condition is impossible. We invite our customers, the public of Oregon, to interest themselves in our problem.

Accommodation AND WHAT IT MEANS

"Accommodation" is an empty phrase until put into actual practice. A bank's many facilities are as naught until actually made use of. That is Why we offer to the growing business man a banking service that will help him grow still bigger. It may be in our checking department, or in all departments. But, no matter where, the hearty, complete accommodation of this bank is yours always. We Believe in a bank OFFERING accommodation, rather than waiting to be asked for it. That is why so many young business men, the older concerns too, rightly regard this as THEIR bank.
