BLACK CAT RESTORES SIGHT

War Veteran Sees Dimly After Fight—Ducking in River Does the Rest.

London.—Charles Appleby, who went to France in the Royal Air Force in 1914, was severely wounded in the Ypres sector. He lay unconscious in a hospital for ten months with a fractured skull, and when he recovered, was blind. He was sent to St. Dunstan's hospital.

While there, a black cat jumped on Appleby's head. The shock had the effect of enabling him to see just a glimmer of daylight with his left eye. He left the hospital and returned to Kingston, being able to go about with a stick to lead him.

He wandered into the river a few weeks ago but was rescued. It was then found that the shock of the immersion had again restored the sight of his right eye.

The two eyes are not equally affected. The right eye is now seeing quite well, but the left eye is still very dim. He has been able to see his way home since then.
