

TONES OF RUST LEAD TO BROWN

New Red Types Run From Darkest Into High Tints That Touch on Russet and Gold.

GREEN IN FASHION'S FAVOR

Shade Is Promised Bright Future, Especially the Dark Bottle and Olive Hues—Navy Blue Losing Popularity.

Color, always an important factor in fashions, is claiming more than usual attention this season. This is particularly true, notes a Paris fashion correspondent, that the Paris dressmaker has had an opportunity to launch absolutely new colors. During the years that have succeeded the signing of the armistice it has been largely a question of using up stocks of both manufactured goods and raw materials. But throughout the seasons which have intervened the French manufacturer has had time to readjust himself to a new regime, so that what is being shown this winter as novelty is actually new. Hence the new colors appearing for 1921 are worthy of more than passing mention.

Strong, well developed and definitely defined lines shown at the center of the new color. The color of the dressmaker's palette is not only a new color, but it is a new shade of red, and it is a new shade of green. In the new color red shades will be infinitely popular.

Red Color Leads Into Brown.

These new tones gradually lead to brown, a color in high favor and shown in a very large assortment of tones, ranging from the deepest possible black browns into high shades that touch on russet and gold.

There is no reason why red and brown ever should have been considered as belonging to the autumn and winter. They are infinitely more suitable to wear in the springtime. When the little green birds are showing forth on the trees and under trees, who is putting on new dresses you feel that you must be in keeping with our surroundings by being clothed in fresh new material, and no color adapts itself so readily and so cheerfully to the mood of spring as bright, warm red. Now does it ever show off to greater advantage than in red, a setting in the soft green of new foliage. Later in the summer, when the birds are fat and plump and the leaves are green and brown, red is not attractive.

Green is another element for fashion's favor and the fashion designer is looking for it, particularly the dark blue and olive shades.

In the new color materials for the coming summer dress are prominent. It is interesting to note the resemblance with which all the shades seen in styles have been reproduced in cotton fabrics. These are lovely deep-sea-green, with a slight pinkish in lighter shades of the same color. Of chooses the same color and the same model.

In faces, veillings and pattern veils the launching of these new colors is very pronounced. Lovely lace pattern veils in colors are being used by the smartest milliners. Manufacturers are looking forward to a big midwinter and early spring season on colored veils. Often such a novelty will constitute the entire trimming on a very smart hat. In all millinery lines a predominance of these new shades is apparent.

Feathers in Greens and Browns.

Costly feathers, such as paradise and egrette and their imitations, are no longer in black, but must be in one of the new dark greens or browns. Preference is given for these colors in evening headdresses of metal fabrics, which show a combination of them in Jenny Model in Russian Effect Developed in Dull Red Velours De Laine; Trimmed With Molekin.

The new, deep emerald navy or in combination with molekin, is very popular for evening headpieces.

Breakfast muffins are spoiling the new red hats. Red shades enter into practically all embroidered designs. Lavish in outline a big figure of black and white and red, and everywhere is found the same evidence of marked preference for deep reds, rust color, dark browns and dark greens.

A new dress or robe designed by Christy developed in colors of blue is in the new fashion. Note the drape across the stomach and the fact that the dress is entirely of moleskin, one exception, the collar and the cuffs are made of the softest silk, with an interesting touch at the top.

Robe Manteau Paris Facional.

The type of dress known as the robe manteau has been a Paris favorite. It has proved so popular that dressmakers will make no more new types of this character. The classic in dress is impossible to this day, as shown in a heavy wrap is rarely needed until Christmas, and the robe manteau furnishes a lovely background for a beautiful fur trimming or a separate piece of fur.

Christy has made stunning coat dresses in velours de laine. The model described above is one of her latest numbers. It may be said to look exactly like a coat, except that across the front the skirt portion drapes slightly in the new wonderful stretch effect and over this falls a soft rovers, or slip, thus making a simple and clever variation of the coat dress.

Miss Jenny also is very successful with the robe manteau. She too makes it of velours de laine and trims it with fur, but keeps somewhat to the Russian type, though one notes also the slight introduction of the stomach drape or finished effect about half part of the back.

Jenny Model in Russian Effect.

One of Jenny's models of this type is developed in dull red velours de laine and trimmed with moleskin. It has the creased fullness drawn close over the stomach. At one side is a long slash of the cloth lined with a beautiful gray satin. Where the slash is attached to the dress a buckle of carved shell is placed.

There is considerable dissension over long skirts, but about the only places where one actually sees them is the dressmaking establishments. Promet is among the dressmakers who stand out in favor of the long skirt. Some of her models are ankle length. Just to what extent women will accept these mature-looking gowns is yet to be determined.

A model of this character is developed in red lace and black satin. The novelty of the lace, as well as the form of the dress, adds to its interest. The lace is an all-over pattern and embroidered in gold threads. The low waistline girle is made of flowers and beads.

Conservative houses such as Beer are keeping to the somewhat conventional type of evening dress—that is, the draped style with extreme décolletage and sleeveless bodies. It is to be noted, however, that many of the draped forms suggest a princess outline.

"I Believe That Every Girl Should Be Trained to Do Something."

By MISS MABEL BOARDMAN, District of Columbia Commissioner.

Do I think a young woman should enter public service provided she has the inclination? That depends upon circumstances; family conditions must always play a large part in a woman's decision. Her first duty lies at home, and nothing can ever change that.

On the other hand, I believe that every girl—rich or poor—should be trained to do something, either by which she could make a living or by which she could benefit humanity. There is no excuse for an absolutely selfish existence. Every woman with the possible exception of the young mother with a growing family, should find some opportunity for public service.

I believe in beginning early to educate for citizenship. The children should be made to realize that citizenship means service. I also believe that in the schools girls should be given some special business instruction and, in fact, all possible equipment that will help to fit them for their particular niche in life. What the "particular niche" may be is a hard question to answer. You can't lay down any law because it all depends on the woman herself—the circumstances of her environment, her training, talent and, most important of all, her inclination.

As to the rewards and disappointments of a career of public service, women are young yet in their new field of opportunity. But I believe they are going to be less material than men; that when they go into public service they have bigger objectives and will therefore have bigger rewards. Of course, they will have the same disappointments that men have, added to the sacrifices women have to make when they enter public life that men do not.

As a matter of fact, I believe women are better fitted for municipal positions than they are for national, that their breadth of human sympathy and understanding of civic problems enable them to do a much bigger municipal work. In the Red Cross, for instance, the national work is such a huge undertaking that unless we had given women something to interest them in a local way we never could have moved them.

The KITCHEN CABINET

There never was an emergency that did not have a remedy. Unfortunately it is not always possible to find the "best" and to the "best" that was known, and it is well for all to be prepared for the "best" emergency by reading this little book and a little in advance.

FOODS IN SEASON.

A most delicious serving of the season is the following:

Cantaloupe Cup.—Chill the melons on the cut in halves, removing all seeds. Fill with ice cream, decorated with browned almonds and sugar.

Russet Cream.—Heat a quart of milk until boiling, add two cups of cream and two cups of sugar, and mix with a small amount of vanilla and beat until stiff. Turn into a large pastry-lined plate and bake 45 minutes. Serve when cool with grated cheese over the top, or with whipped cream sprinkled with ground cloves.

Peach Betty.—Put the soft kernels from the center of a stone fruit of peach. Mix these kernels of the kernels with one-half cup of butter, melted. Put a layer of the kernels into a buttered baking dish, and arrange over them a layer of sliced peaches, sugar will do, sprinkling each layer with sugar, and sprayed orange or lemon juice. Bake one hour. Cover the dish during the first half of the baking; then remove to brown. Serve hot with cream and sugar.

Quinces Baked en Casserole.—Wash, core and pare the quinces, then arrange them in a casserole; fill the centers with sugar, add three tablespoons of water for each quince, cover and bake until tender. Serve with the strap from the dish and cream with sugar. It will often require two hours to cook quinces until tender.

Coat Dress or Robe Manteau by Christy Developed in Velours de Laine the New Plantain Green.

This treatment is not confined to green, for the new cottons appear to have been successfully dyed in every hue under the sun, but much more is made of the green shades this year than for a long time past.

Navy Blue Loses Popularity.

Owing to the marked preference for the foregoing color blue is less important. In fact, there is a minimum of blue in the new color cards in proportion to the prominence of the above mentioned colors. It will not be easy for the American woman to depart from navy blue, which always has been a favorite with her. She has worn it so continuously that the navy blue dress or suit has become almost a national uniform. It will be refreshing to see a number of other colors, for the one great criticism of our dressing is that there is so little variety in it. Apparently every woman
